WILLKIE MEETS FARM LEADERS IN IOWA TODAY

Flies to Des Moines for Conference.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 4.—Wendell L. Willkie, Republican candidate for President, arrived here tonight from Colorado Springs, Colo., after a 600 mile flight in three hours on the "Willkie" special of the United Air Lines. With Mrs. Willkie he went to the home of Gardner Cowles, Des Moines and Minneapolis publisher, for the night.

Gov. George A. Wilson.

Tomorrow morning Willkie will sit down in the state capitol for an all-day session with farmers, editors, and politicians of the corn belt states. He will discuss with them their needs and problems and try to work out a program under which federal aid would become progressively less necessary.

Willkie was met here by Gov. George A. Wilson of Iowa, who arranged the conference at Willkie's suggestion. More than 2,000 persons were at the airport to see and cheer the candidate.

Will Appear on Capitol Steps.

Willkie's only public appearance will be at noon tomorrow on the capitol steps, where he will make a brief talk. This is the spot where President Roosevelt and Candidate Alf M. Landon had their historic meeting in the last campaign.

Six Republican governors will give their aid to tomorrow's conference, which is to be a guide for the candidate in framing the farm section of his acceptance speech, which will be delivered Aug. 17.

Besides Gov. Wilson, the governors are Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota; Harlan J. Bushfield of South Dakota; Julius P. Heil of Wisconsin; Ralph Carr of Colorado; Payne H. Ratner of Kansas. Dwight H. Green, Republican candidate for governor of Illinois, is on the program to represent that state.

Clifford R. Hope of Kansas, chairman of the agricultural division of the Republican national committee, also will attend.

Lauds G. O. P. Enthusiasm.

Mr. Willkie declared today that yesterday's conferences of Republican party leaders in Colorado Springs ended on a note of enthusiasm. He made the following statement:

"The conferences yesterday with the national Republican organization resulted in the approval of budgets, departmentalizing of work, and smoothing out of such minor kinks as there were in the organization. Everybody left with great enthusiasm, prepared to commence an active, aggressive, organized campaign reaching to every precinct in the United States. I was greatly impressed with the zeal and desire for activity manifested."

Texas Democrats Plan Parley.

Willkie received word today that within a week a call will be issued for a massmeeting of all Texas Democrats opposed to the third term. He was assured a tremendous welcome when he goes to Texas. Stephen L. Pinckney, who resigned as Texas delegate at large when President Roosevelt accepted nomination for a third term, wired Willkie about the massmeeting.

"I cannot subscribe to the theory that Mr. Roosevelt is indispensable," said Pinckney.

Robert T. Jones Jr. of Atlanta, golf champion, wired his support of Willkie.

Elizabeth B. Howry, former secretary of the Women's National Democratic club, offered her services to Willkie in a message from Lee, Mass.

Rex Beach, writer, wired from Sebring, Fla., that he wanted to work for Willkie.

THE START OF THE BIG PARADE

Kidney Ailment Is Fatal; Strife Is Predicted Over Successor.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Mike Carrozzo, Italian immigrant who came, saw, and conquered a big sector of Chicago's labor front, died yesterday in Presbyterian hospital. He was 45 years old and one of the richest labor leaders in the country.

Carrozzo entered the hospital July 27, suffering from kidney stones. He was operated on Friday by Dr. Herman L. Kretschmer. He suffered a relapse yesterday morning after having shown evidence of recovery.

Shortly after his death his family, friends, and associates arranged to give him a regal funeral, with burial in a $10,000 bronze coffin.

Ruler of 25 Unions.

Carrozzo was president of the International Union of Pavers and Road Builders and a power in the International Hod Carriers', Building, and Common Laborers' district council. Thru them he ruled with an iron hand and 23 affiliated unions, including the street sweepers', which union had started him on the road to wealth and political power.

His associates predicted that the filling of his vacant thrones will bring bitter conflict. Twenty-five labor unions are regarded as a rich prize.

Carrozzo was presumed to have several million dollars. He owned a fine estate near Hobart, Ind., and a $75,000 home in Long Beach, on the Indiana shore of Lake Michigan.

Just a few days before his illness he walked into the United States courthouse and deposited $277,251 in bonds to lift a lien of $241,000 placed against him by the government.

Lien Based on Tax Claim.

The lien was based on a claim that Mike had evaded a tax of that much on his 1937 and 1938 income. This was just a few months after he had publicly proclaimed:

"What this country needs is a Hitler or a Mussolini."

When the lien was filed the government did not reveal the secret of Carrozzo's huge income. For years it has been common talk that Mike profited greatly by his close tieup with paving contractors. It has been reported that several asphalt companies enjoying political favors were owned by Carrozzo.

New Competitions Likely.

And, as a battle of seekers after Mike's main job as the big union padrone is expected, paving officials expect his demise may throw Chicago's contracts open to competition hitherto missing. Carrozzo was under indictment on charges of violating the Sherman antitrust law, the specific allegation being that he and his associates for years have prevented contractors in Illinois from using ready-mixed concrete.

Other charges, which had not yet resulted in indictments, alleged that every contractor awarded a public job in the county or city had to pay tribute to Carrozzo and Frank [The Enforcer] Nitti, head man of the old Capone booze, vice, and gambling gang.

Mike's influence in politics as well as union affairs was such that he had been considered immune until he was indicted on the antitrust charges a few months ago at the instance of Leo F. Tierney, special assistant United States attorney general. Tierney's investigation showed that Carrozzo's rule was absolute over 15,000 workers and that Carrozzo and Nitti were in close alliance.

Attorney Placed in Charge.

Tierney found that Anthony D'Andrea, a vice president of the Hod Carriers' union, was Carrozzo's right hand man in Chicago operations. City officials, however, said Carrozzo's local unions are under the technical presidency of Samuel Karl, Carrozzo's personal attorney. It was recalled

Late Czar's Domain

Mike Carrozzo, the labor boss who died yesterday, had direct control of six big unions. They are:

Municipal Sewer Cleaners and House Drain Inspecters, No. 340.
Street Maintenance Employés, No. 1001.
Asphalt, Resurfacing, and Road Builders, No. 1002.
Vehicle Tax, Granite, Brick, and Concrete Laborers, No. 1003.
Water Pipe Extension Bureau of Engineering Laboratory, No. 1092.

In addition to this direct domination Carrozzo, as president of the Hod Carriers' and Common Laborers' District council, had control over 18 other union locals. Total membership is 15,000.

Nazi Raiders Bomb Ports of West England

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—Germany is continuing her systematic attacks on England's west coast in an effort to completely paralyze British shipping.

The German high command stated in today's communique that German planes succeeded in setting on fire the oil port of Stanlow, near Liverpool. Other planes, the high command said, attacked Canday Island and the port of Swansea on Bristol channel while still other craft engaged in reconnoitering duty between the English channel and the Hebrides.

Prepare for Decisive Blow.

The great number of German attacks on England's western coast mentioned in recent days by the German high command indicates that the Nazis find that region important for preparations for the "decisive blow against England," and in a drive to undermine the British morale.

[The British, declaring that their air forces was engaged in offensive warfare yesterday, reported heavy attacks on troops, truck convoys, an armored train, and barges which the Germans have gathered on the French side of the English channel preparing for the invasion of England.]

The German high command said British planes again entered north and west Germany last night. It added that "tho the English threw more bombs than in the preceding nights—exclusively on nonmilitary objectives—the damage done was even less than heretofore."

Claim Civilians Are Targets.

Germans are being told that the British are concentrating their attacks on civilian objectives.

"Hundreds of thousands and millions of Germans today are feverishly clamoring for the hour of accounting," the Schlesiche Tages Zeitung said in echoing the pronouncements of enthusiastic Nazis who believe that the day of the main attack on England is near.

"When the German soldiers finally get the main enemy in front of their swords the crime of the so-called royal air force against the populations of Hamburg, Hanover, and a few Rhenish towns will be avenged."

Calcutta Train Wrecked; 17 Die; Sabotage Blamed

CALCUTTA, Aug. 5, Monday (AP).—At least 17 persons were killed and 40 injured today when the Dacca-Calcutta mail train was derailed about 75 miles from Calcutta. Authorities said they suspected sabotage. A length of rail had been removed from the track.

RALLY CHEERS LINDBERGH PLEA FOR U. S. PEACE

Stay Out of Europe, Air Hero Urges.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was for a while no longer the "Lone Eagle" yesterday as he led a throng of Americans in an enthusiastic demonstration of the will to keep this country out of the European war. The crowd in Soldiers' Avery Brundage, citizens' committee chairman.

field, where the peace rally was held by the Citizens' Committee to Keep America Out of War, was estimated at 35,000 to 40,000 by George T. Donohue, general superintendent of the park district.

The crowd had cheered other speakers, but the greatest ovation was reserved for the hero of the air as he walked up to a battery of microphones for his third radio broadcast to the nation warning against involvement in the conflict overseas.

Tells of Increased Agitation.

Agitation for America's entry into the war has increased with alarming rapidity, Lindbergh said, but "when the danger of foreign war was fully realized by our people, the underlying tradition of American independence arose, and in recent weeks its voice thundered thru the weaker cries for war."

Recalling the scores of erroneous predictions by "experts" as to European events, he urged that the people form their own opinions as to where this country's best interests lie.

Lindbergh's voice was eager and crisp. He smiled frequently—a youthful smile—as applause interrupted his remarks. He wore a dark blue suit and looked almost as he did when he landed in Paris 13 years ago after his epochal flight across the Atlantic ocean.

"In the past we have dealt with a Europe dominated by England and France," he said. "In the future we may have to deal with a Europe dominated by Germany.

"But whether England or Germany wins this war, western civilization will still depend upon two great centers, one in each hemisphere.

"With all the aids of modern science, neither of these centers is in a position to attack the other successfully as long as the defenses of both are reasonably strong."

McCarran Cites Nation's Experience.

The other principal speaker was United States Senator Patrick A. McCarran [D., Nev.], who was introduced by Congressman James E. Van Zandt [R., Pa.].

"As a people, having gone thru the fire of experience and the crucible of war," McCarran said, "we announce to the world here and now that we are not going to be drawn into a European tragedy—that the life of one American boy is worth more than all that can be gained by our involvement in the war.

"Our course is to marshal our resources so as to make it impossible for a foreign power, however ambitious, to bring war to us, and to make known to the world that neither ambition nor fear nor favoritism will cause us to make war abroad."

He attacked peacetime conscription as an "unnecessary, undemocratic thing."

Civil War Volunteers Recalled.

Another speaker, whose age of 91 contrasted with Lindbergh's youth, made a hit with the crowd. He was Capt. Thomas Ambrose, national adjutant of the Grand Army of the Republic.

"It will not be necessary to draft our boys when there is actually a threat against this country," Capt. Ambrose said, recalling that 2,600,000 men voluntarily joined in the fight to save the Union.

"This citizens' committee is a spontaneous movement of the people themselves," said Avery Brundage, the chairman.

"Its members will, if necessary, fight for a principle the same as their forefathers fought, and fought victoriously, in 1776, in 1812, and in 1861."

JAPAN'S PROTEST ON OIL EMBARGO TO SET OFF ROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—President Roosevelt's attitude toward the wars of Europe and Asia will be the fundamental issue in prolonged senate debate, beginning tomorrow, on bills authorizing the President to mobilize the National Guard and to raise a mass conscript army.

Senator Johnson protests guard mobilization provisions.

The crisis in relations between the United States and Japan, precipitated by the administration's embargo on the exportation of aviation gasoline, is the foremost object of apprehension among senate noninterventionists at the moment. The Japanese protests and threats of retaliation have produced fears in the senate that Japan will take some drastic action which might plunge the United States into a world war thru the far eastern back door.

Seek to Insulate Islands.

Because of the Japanese crisis, it was learned today, the senate noninterventionists will seek to eliminate from the National Guard resolution a provision specifically authorizing the President to send the guard to the Philippines.

The resolution as written empowers the President to order the National Guard and the regular army reserve and retired personnel into active federal service, for a year of intensive training, and to send any or all components thereof anywhere in the western hemisphere or overseas to the American territories and possessions, including the Philippine Islands.

The resolution specifically mentions the Philippines, presumably because they are neither a territory nor a possession of the United States.

"Grave Responsibility."

When Senator Edwin C. Johnson [D., Colo.] protested at a military affairs committee hearing that the Philippines are neither a territory nor a possession, Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, replied that they nevertheless are "a grave responsibility."

The guard mobilization resolution will come up for senate consideration tomorrow. According to the noninterventionists, there will be little opposition to it if the Philippines are excluded from the President's authority to send the guard overseas.

However, adoption of the resolution may be delayed if Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] and others carry out a tentative plan to offer as an amendment the anticonscription proposal made by former Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring.

Asks Raise in Army Pay.

The Woodring substitute for conscription would raise the basic pay of enlisted men from $21 to $30 a month and permit voluntary enlistments for one year instead of the three year period now required.

If the Woodring anticonscription plan is not offered as an amendment to the guard mobilization resolution it certainly will be offered when the administration's conscription bill comes up later in the week, Senator Wheeler declared.

The senate military affairs committee is expected to report the conscription bill tomorrow in a form subjecting to registration and possible compulsory service about 4½ million men between the ages of 21 and 31.

Backed by Eastern Claque.

President Roosevelt contends that a large, highly trained army is essential to what he calls "total defense" and that such an army can be obtained only by compulsory selective service. The conscription bill is strongly supported by eastern interventionist elements, those who have clamored for more and more American aid to the allies, or, since the collapse of France, to Great Britain.

Noninterventionists contend there is no military necessity for a mass conscript army to defend the United States, a sea power, with the greatest navy in the world.

Noninterventionists also rely upon expert military opinion that the army has neither the equipment nor the officers to train a million conscripts. Gen. Marshall has testified that the army has equipment on hand sufficient only for a field force of 75,000 men. Other official testimony indicates that it will be well into 1941 before the new equipment contemplated by the administration's multibillion dollar armaments program begins to be delivered in quantity.

PERSHING URGES NAVAL CRAFT BE SOLD TO BRITISH

Talk Is Climax for Intervention Drive.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—In a nation-wide radio broadcast urging the release of at least 50 American destroyers to Great Britain, Gen. John J. Pershing, commander in chief of the American Expeditionary Force in the world war, tonight brought to a climax an extraordinary campaign of forces within and outside the Roosevelt administration for immediate action to "stop Hitler." Gen. Pershing said it is the duty of the United States to help England.

The 79 year old retired general of the American armies spoke over the national networks of the three major broadcasting systems, a privilege that has been accorded few persons other than the President. Because of his age and the state of his health, facilities were arranged for him to speak from a suite in the Carlton hotel, across the corridor from the apartment in which he lives.

Urges U. S. Perform Duty.

"If a proper method can be found, America will safeguard her freedom and security by making available to the British or Canadian governments at least 50 of the overage destroyers which are left from the days of the world war," Gen. Pershing declared. "If the destroyers help save the British fleet, they may save us from the danger and hardship of another war. Americans should not shrink from duty because of possible hazards."

Officials of the broadcasting companies said arrangements for the broadcast were made by Senator Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], who is regarded as the foremost interventionist in congress, and Joseph W. Alsop Jr., newspaper columnist and coauthor of "The American White Paper," a book which expounds and defends President Roosevelt's policy of giving all possible aid "short of war" to Great Britain.

Gets Presidential Backing.

Alsop, a distant cousin of the President, was assisted by officials of the Roosevelt administration in the preparation of the book and the President put his official imprimatur upon it.

Senator Pepper for months has been demanding all possible government assistance to Great Britain. He is regarded as the senate mouthpiece of the New Deal inner circle and frequently has advocated policies which later were adopted by the administration, such as the release of American army and navy planes to the allies prior to the collapse of France.

Senator Pepper denied that he asked Gen. Pershing to make the speech or had anything to do with arranging the radio time. "But it was a great speech," he said. "There are thankful prayers in the hearts of millions of Americans because of what Gen. Pershing said."

Denies Official Assistance.

Gen. Pershing asserted that several of his friends urged him to make the speech. When asked to identify them he said he "wouldn't go into that." At first he said he "wouldn't go into that" when asked whether any public officials urged him to speak or helped arrange for the radio time. Later, however, he declared that "nobody in official life had anything to do with it."

Gen. Pershing specifically denied that Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson had anything to do with his speech. It was assumed in some quarters that Stimson may have arranged the broadcast because of his extreme interventionist views and his friendship for the aged general. Stimson was Pershing's official superior when he was secretary of war under President Taft. Pershing was Stimson's superior when he was commander in chief of the A. E. F. and Stimson was an artillery officer.

Presages Battle in Congress.

In a speech at Yale university on June 18, two days before his appointment by President Roosevelt, Stimson urged all possible assistance to Great Britain, including the opening of American ports to British warships and the use of American naval forces to convoy munitions shipments in American vessels to England.

The Pershing appeal, together with widespread agitation in and out of the Roosevelt administration to release for sale to Great Britain 50 or 100 American destroyers and all the motor torpedo boats and submarine chasers possessed by the navy, is expected to produce another violent intervention debate in congress.

The proposal to turn over American warships, which would violate not only international law but domestic law now on the statute books, has been denounced repeatedly by senate noninterventionists as a step that would mean certain war with Germany.

Timed To Offset Peace Rally.

The Pershing radio appeal obviously was designed to climax the drive for immediate action to make 50 or 100 American destroyers and the navy's mosquito fleet available to Great Britain. In Washington it was deemed significant that he was put on the air a few hours after Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's antiwar speech was broadcast by radio from Chicago.

Within the last week the "stop Hitler now" drive has assumed the proportions of a crusade, in which eastern interventionists, New Deal columnists, interventionist organizations such as William Allen White's Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, and many officials of the Roosevelt administration are participating.

Advisers Warn Roosevelt.

This campaign, culminating with the Pershing speech, is regarded as part of a softening up process, intended to condition the public mind and prepare congress for any move the President may undertake.

It is known that administration leaders in congress have warned the President that a request for special legislation to permit the sale of warcraft to Britain would touch off a violent war intervention debate, the political consequences of which could not be calculated.

There have been indications that the President would like to obtain some assurance of acquiescence from Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican Presidential nominee, before approaching congress on the explosive issue.

Willkie Withholds Opinion.

It is known, for example, that Archibald MacLeish, librarian of congress and an intimate associate of the inner circle New Dealers, appealed to Russell Davenport, one of Mr. Willkie's advisers, to enlist the "coöperation" of the Republican nominee. Mr. Willkie said he assumed the appeal came from an individual acting on his own responsibility and therefore expressed no opinion.

Early in June the senate naval affairs committee discovered accidentally, according to Chairman David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], that the administration had agreed surreptitiously to release 23 motor torpedo boats and submarine chasers, under construction for the navy, for sale to Great Britain. The White House later acknowledged that President Roosevelt had ordered the release of the navy's "mosquito" fleet.

The revelation created a sensation in congress. Senator Walsh assailed the plan as an act of war. Representative Francis Case [R., S. D.], unearthed a 1917 statute making it a criminal offense to send or authorize sending any vessel of war out of the jurisdiction of the United States for the use of any belligerent nation.

Sale Banned by Congress.

President Roosevelt later canceled the deal, explaining that Attorney General Robert H. Jackson had ruled that the proposed transfer would be unlawful.

To remove any possible legal doubt, Senator Walsh inserted in the bill to expedite naval construction, which became law, a provision making it unlawful to sell or otherwise dispose of any naval yessel, or any vessel under construction for the navy, without authorization by congress.

According to the arguments of interventionists who are demanding release of the warships to Great Britain, the British have greatly understated their destroyer losses.

It is claimed that out of a total of 183 destroyers when the war began, the British have fewer than 100 left.

The United States navy has a total of 238 destroyers, of which 123 were constructed during or shortly after the world war. Interventionists argue that the United States could well spare 50 to 100 of these to help stop Hitler.

Bath, Me., Aug. 4 [Special].—The first destroyer to be named for a navy chaplain, the U. S. S. Livermore, is being rushed to completion here after its launching Saturday. The vessel is of 1,630 tons and will have cost $5,000,000 when completed. It bears the name of the late Samuel Livermore of Concord, N. H.

PERSHING'S PLEA

The text of Gen. Pershing's address, which was entitled "The Security of the Americas," follows:

"I am speaking tonight because I consider it my duty. It is my duty to tell you that, in my opinion, we face problems of the utmost seriousness; that all the things we hold most dear are gravely threatened. I must tell you that we can defend them only if we make up our minds now to speak the truth without concealment; if we make up our minds to face the truth without flinching; if we make up our minds to act upon the truth without hesitating.

"I think you will believe me when I say that no war ever was prevented by hiding the danger and by arguing that the danger does not exist.

Tells of Grave Dangers.

"The men who are best qualified to know what is going on in Europe and in Asia and in this hemisphere, the men whose business it is to know the facts, are very nearly unanimous in believing what I am saying to you tonight—that grave danger for us lurks in the present world situation. So the time has come when we must rise up as a united people to make secure our country's independence and our great inheritance of constitutional liberty.

"More than half the world is ruled by men who despise the American idea and have sworn to destroy it. They know that while one great people remains independent and free, because it is strong and is brave, they never can crush finally the people they have conquered. The example of liberty here will always continue to inspire resistance to tyranny over there.

Reviews Fate of Appeasers.

"They are fanatical and they are strong. They are efficient and they are ruthless. Eight nations have tried to appease them. The appeasers of eight nations are dead or in jail or discredited and ruined. In seven of these eight nations, the appeasers who would not take the danger seriously, who would not prepare when there still was time, had led their countries to disaster.

"It is not hysterical to insist that democracy and liberty are threatened. With democracy and liberty overthrown on the continent of Europe, only the British are left to defend democracy and liberty in Europe.

"By sending help to the British, we still can hope with confidence to keep the war on the other side of the Atlantic ocean, where the enemies of liberty, if possible, should be defeated.

Stresses Perils In Delay.

"But some are bold about what they would do tomorrow, if Great Britain is defeated and the war comes to this hemisphere. I say to you solemnly that tomorrow may be forever too late to keep war from the Americas. Today may be the last time when by measures short of war we still can prevent war.

"We must be ready to meet force with a stronger force. We must make ourselves strong by building up our army and navy and by establishment of the principle of universal selected service, which means merely that the men needed are chosen by lot.

"I am telling you tonight, because it is my duty to warn you before it is too late, that the British navy needs destroyers and small craft to convoy merchant ships, to escort warships, to hunt submarines and to repel invasion.

Urges Sale of 50 Older Craft.

"We have an immense reserve of destroyers left over from the other war, and in a few months the British will be completing a large number of destroyers of their own. The most critical time, therefore, is the next few weeks and months. If there is anything we can do to help save the British fleet during that time, we shall be failing in our duty to America if we do not do it.

"If a proper method can be found, America will safeguard her freedom and security by making available to the British or Canadian governments at least 50 of the over-age destroyers left from the days of the world war. If the destroyers help save the British fleet, they may save us from the danger and hardship of another war. Americans should not shrink from duty because of possible hazards.

Opposes Expeditionary Force.

"I know that many sincere patriots are frightened at the thought of even the smallest act because they think such acts would lead us closer to the day when another American expeditionary force sets sail for Europe. It is my opinion that in this war it would be absolute folly even to consider sending another expeditionary force. No one is considering it and those who may say that any one is considering it are deceiving themselves and deceiving you.

"We must have the strength of character to face the truth. Foremost among the truths, which we will ignore as our peril is that the time needed to build our own defenses may be lengthened if we have the courage to make the small but important contribution which is still within our power toward sustaining the British defense.

War Against Our Ideals.

"A new kind of war is loose in the world, fought with all weapons, including treason, and fought most insidiously during what some of our countrymen call 'peacetime.' It is a war against the civilization that we know. It is a revolution against all the values which we have cherished and which we wish our children to cherish in the future. It is a revolution which denies the dignity of man and which banishes the hope of brotherhood and comradeship on earth. We can see it developing right before our eyes.

"It must be faced with daring and with devotion. We must lift up our hearts. We must reaffirm our noble tradition. We must make ourselves so strong that the tradition we live by shall not perish from the earth."

MASS MURDERS LAID TO REDS IN UNION STRUGGLE

One Suspect Arrested as Slayer of Seaman.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 4 [Special].—Evidence that the communist party resorted to mass murders to seize control of the maritime unions and other American Federation of Labor organizations on the Pacific coast will be given to a Los Angeles county grand jury Tuesday, District Attorney Buron Fitts announced tonight.

Fitts admitted he was prepared to tell a grand jury the result of a two year investigation of communist party activity in southern California and along the entire coast. He made the admission after it became known that Brittain Webster, reputed to be a member of the party, was arrested yesterday and charged with the murder on June 24, 1935, of John Riley, a member of the Marine Firemen, Wipers, and Oilers of the Pacific union.

The complaint against Webster, who is 27 years old, accused four other persons of having parts in the murder of Riley, who was killed by a blow on the head during a fight in San Pedro. Three of the four were said by William Simpson, Fitts' assistant, to be Claude H. Smallman, Frank Lockhard, and a man known as "Pegleg" Taylor. They and the fourth man are being hunted.

Reports Dozens of Witnesses.

"Riley was murdered by members of the communist party who were seeking to gain domination of the union," said Simpson. "The murder is only one example of communist activity to infiltrate into as many organizations as possible until the communists are strong enough to take over the government of the United States—at least that is their plan."

Fitts said the two year investigation had uncovered dozens of witnesses and evidence of many more similar murders in other coast cities. Suspects are being sought in San Francisco, Seattle, and Portland, he said.

Pacific coast maritime unions fell into the hands of the communists under the guidance of Harry Bridges, alien C. I. O. boss of the west coast, according to testimony last winter before the Dies committee on un-American activities. Bridges, Australian born and reputed to be a communist, got into the Seamen's union in 1924, and built himself up to the point where he became leader of a waterfront strike called in 1934.

Shipping Kept in Turmoil.

This strike kept Pacific coast shipping in turmoil for three years. The Seamen's union was an A. F. of L. affiliate until 1937, when Bridges and his radical followers jumped to the C. I. O. and Bridges became the west coast representative of John L. Lewis, C. I. O. dictator.

Bridges made several applications for American citizenship, but never bothered to acquire final papers. As a result of his record in fomenting labor strife and the failure of Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, to deport him as an undesirable alien, the national house of representatives passed a bill last June 13 ordering his deportation. Since that time the bill has been held up in the senate by New Dealers on the ground that it is a routine measure and that more important legislation must be gotten out of the way first.

REACHES N. Y. AFTER SECRET MISSION ON BEHALF OF COL. KNOX

New York, Aug. 4 [Special].—Col. William J. Donovan of Buffalo, world war commander of an infantry regiment, returned today from a secret mission to England for Col. Frank Knox, secretary of the navy. Donovan denied that his mission concerned possible sale of American destroyers to the British government. He added that Col. Knox will have to decide whether his mission had been successful.

Donovan returned to the United States aboard the British flying boat, Clare, which left Poole, England, yesterday afternoon. He and two representatives of the British air ministry were the only passengers. Donovan was met by two agents of the federal bureau of investigation after the ship landed on Flushing bay at 6:43 p. m. [Chicago time].

Capt. J. C. Kelly-Rogers, commander of the ship, described the flight as routine. Stops were made in Ireland, Newfoundland, and at Montreal. The British agents stayed in Montreal. Officials of British Airways said the flight was a resumption of service abandoned Oct. 3 and that regular weekly trans-Atlantic flights will be resumed with the Clare and a sister ship, the Clyde, each a 26 passenger craft.

SPANISH PEOPLE GOING HUNGRY, TRAVELERS SAY

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Spain was pictured today by passengers arriving on the Spanish liner Marques de Comillas as a famine ridden country overrun by German fifth columnists in the guise of tourists. The liner reached New York from Bilbao and Havana.

The Rev. Timothy L. Bouscaren of Chicago, who taught canon law for two years at the Gregorian university in Rome, asserted that both Spain and Italy had been reduced to conditions under which "they can't fight."

"The Italian people did not want war and they can't take it now," he said. "There are food shortages and the people are restless. But the conditions in Spain are appalling. There is poverty everywhere, and the people are terribly hungry. They're completely miserable."

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

WARNS AGAINST WAGING WAR WITH OBSOLETE ARMS

Tactics, Weapons Change, Says Col. McCormick.

Men equipped with weapons the United States forces now have on hand would be as helpless before a blitzkrieg as Europe's victims of lightning war, Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, declared in a radio address last night.

It is vital, he said, that the nation's fighting men be provided with arms adequate for use in a war of the future. He urged public support of current trends in this direction.

General Staff Sees Light.

"Our general staff officers are beginning to see the light," said Col. McCormick. "Support them in their efforts to arm and organize our forces for a war of tomorrow. Do not let the hystericals overcome enlightened military judgment!"

Col. McCormick spoke on the Tribune Symphonic hour, broadcast over W-G-N, the Mutual Broadcasting system, and the network of the Canadian Broadcasting system. The address was one of a series given by the publisher on the international crisis and American military policy.

TEXT OF ADDRESS

Following is the text of Col. McCormick's address:

"There are two forms of warfare—the offensive and the defensive. When both sides assumed the offensive, as Grant and Lee did in 1864 and as the French and Germans did in 1914, the weaker is compelled to pass to the defensive.

"The attacker tries to close with the defensive force, get into bodily conflict with it, destroy it. The latter endeavors to protect itself by natural and artificial obstacles and employs missiles in an effort to stop the attacker or weaken him so that he may be counterattacked.

"Combatants have always tried to protect themselves by concealment, by fortifications, and by such armor as the weapons of the day have permitted.

Weapons Fix Type of War.

"All thru history, the ascendancy has shifted between offensive and defensive war—the defensive being stronger in direct relation to the strength of missile weapons, and the offensive mightier when armor and rapid movement have excelled.

"In the early part of the Hundred Years' war the English bowmen successfully shot thru the armor of the advancing French knights and nearly conquered France, but, later armor improving, the French men-at-arms charged thru the arrow fire and drove the English out of France.

"Footmen, in close companies, with spears, pikes, or halberds, at various times in history have been able to withstand the charge of cavalry. When crude firearms came into existence men armed with these weapons were placed among the infantry, and shot down men in armor that arrows could not penetrate.

"The attackers then had to pass thru the fire of weapons before they could close with the defense. The extent of the ground covered by this fire is called the 'beaten zone.'

Many Improvements Made.

"Much of the ingenuity of man has been spent in devising and improving weapons. Many warlike inventions have been adapted to civilian uses. Many essential parts of modern machinery were taken from the crossbows. In these days of war talk, a visit to the museums will be both interesting and instructive.

"As the range and speed of weapons increased, the 'beaten zone' became deeper and the effect of fire greater. Less men being required to furnish fire, the defensive lines became longer and more difficult to outflank. Any part of the defensive line not engaged could fire in front of its neighbors.

"In the revolutionary war and the war of 1812 the 'beaten zone' may be taken as 100 yards; in the civil war, 300; in the last war, half a mile, unless the assailant could approach under cover.

"Very long ago it was found that troops organized in positions could not be successfully attacked either by infantry or cavalry. Artillery was called upon to break up the defensive organization and was effective when the range of the artillery was greater than the range of the infantry weapons—if the artillery men knew how to use their weapons, and where the attacker had a superior artillery.

Pickett's Charge Recalled.

"Various reasons are given for the failure of Pickett's charge at Gettysburg. One of them was that methods had not been devised to direct artillery at the distance the confederate artillery was firing.

"Repeating and automatic weapons—firing as rapidly as 500 shots per minute—so greatly strengthened the defense in the last war that, to enable the infantry to advance, the artillery fire of the attacker had to be so superior to the defenders' that it was said that the artillery conquered the ground and the infantry merely occupied it.

"For about 40 years shoulder weapons have been standardized with a clumsy bolt action repeating rifle, using an inefficient bullet. That has been at a disadvantage against machine guns using the same type of cartridge. In consequence, the individual soldier was of little effect in the last war.

Semiautomatic Rifle Adopted.

"Thirty-five years ago the manufacturers of sporting rifles produced excellent semiautomatic shoulder weapons, but our army did not adopt them until a year ago.

"They raise interesting questions—whether men, armed with semiautomatic shoulder rifles, will not be much more effective than an equal number of men handling machine guns—whether they will not greatly reduce the rôle of the machine guns.

"The crazy doctrine of 20 years ago that the infantry could advance under protection of its own fire may not be crazy today—well, not quite so crazy.

"As we know, the tank was introduced on the allied side in the last war. Unfortunately the command, obsessed with the dogma that infantry is 'queen of the battlefield' and the principal arm, that it is the mission of all other arms to help advance, did not give full scope to the weapon. Tanks were held down to the infantry pace. Progress thru the 'beaten zone' was as slow as ever, permitting the full use of artillery, machine guns, and shoulder weapons to the defenders.

Nazis Upset 'Beaten Zone.'

"Now German tactics, using parachute troops, air infantry, fast, armored tanks, smoke screens, and perhaps infantry in armored vehicles, from which they emerge to fight on foot, have destroyed the defensive effect of the 'beaten zone.'

"In this situation the machine gun is impotent—the old shoulder rifle equally so—the semiautomatic rifle markedly inferior to shorter and more rapidly firing weapons using larger bullets.

"The automatic pistol was in common use 20 years before the last war. For close fighting it was far superior to the bolt rifle. Our artillerymen were armed with pistols, and I never had any fear of an infantry attack on the batteries pressed home to the effective range of the pistol.

"The Germans had developed an automatic shoulder weapon, but with such a weak cartridge as to lose the value of the mechanism.

Automatic Gun Is Effective.

"There is now in some use in the army an automatic shoulder weapon, firing the Colt .45 caliber pistol bullet from drums of 50 cartridges. At close range, say under 100 yards, troops using these weapons would annihilate troops armed with machine guns and the semiautomatic rifle borne by our infantry.

"It seems to have been weapons such as these that made the German parachute troops and air infantry irresistible at close quarters.

"Since the use of parachute troops, of air infantry, of smoke screens, of fast moving armored tanks—perhaps followed by armored tanks carrying infantry—has overcome the defense of the 'beaten zone' so that the attacker can come to grips with the defender without the losses and hazards of the older form of offense, the question must be seriously considered:

"Have both the machine gun and the semiautomatic infantry rifle, upon which we now depend, become obsolete?

Urges Use of Present Lessons.

"We are very wisely proceeding to prepare our continent for war. Yet it is vital that we do not prepare for a war like the last war, but for war as it will come from the lessons of the present war.

"Men armed with the weapons we have on hand would be as helpless before blitzkrieg as all the men who have been overcome in Europe.

"Our general staff officers are beginning to see the light. Support them in their efforts to arm and organize our forces for a war of tomorrow. Do not let the hystericals overcome enlightened military judgment!"

Dies on Wedding Day

GERTRUDE BOGARD.

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Gertrude Bogard, 23 years old, a member of Phil Spitalny's all-girl orchestra, died of pneumonia late last night, a few hours after she was to have been married to Dr. Thomas Bridges. Ill since Friday, she died at New York hospital, where her fiancé is an intern. The wedding had been scheduled for 7 p. m. at the home of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Alexander of Elizabeth, N. J.

SAXOPHONE SOLOIST SCORES

The saxophone, more commonly associated with jitterbugs and jive than with serious music, was proved last night to be as good as the music that is written for it. As one of the features of the Symphonic hour, Oliver Thomas, first clarinetist of the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, appeared as saxophone soloist in a rhapsody written by Claude Debussy in the preswing year of 1903.

Thomas shared solo honors with Michael Wilkomirski, concertmeister of the orchestra, whose violin was heard in the prelude to Saint-Saëns' "The Deluge."

Wagner and Brahms Featured.

The orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, began the hour with Wagner and closed it with Brahms. The Wagner selection was the overture to the music drama, "The Flying Dutchman," and the Brahms offering was the more interesting "Academic Festival Overture" in which the composer used German college songs as themes.

Albert Hay Malotte, American composer whose settings of the Lord's Prayer and 23d Psalm are widely known, provided Miss Marion Claire, operatic soprano, with her first solo, "Among the Living." Another number in which Miss Claire was particularly pleasing was Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me," in which she was joined by the W-G-N chorus.

Roosevelt Has Quiet Day at Hudson Family Home

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 4 [Special].—President Roosevelt today spent a day in the seclusion of his family home in Dutchess county. He had no callers and did not leave the Roosevelt acres on his drive thru the estate. Mr. Roosevelt would not reveal details of his planned campaign to make votes for himself by "nonpolitical" inspection trips in his home state. It is expected that he will visit key defense positions in New York and possibly journey to New London, Conn., where the navy's submarines are built. He is expected to remain away from the capital for a week.

His Day: 38 Jumps

Waltz descending after one of his many jumps.

George Waltz of Cincinnati, O., chief tester for the Triangle Parachute company, yesterday claimed the world's record for parachute jumps in a single day. He began jumping at Westchester airport, Roosevelt and Mannheim roads, at 6:45 a. m. When he stopped at dusk he had made 38 leaps, breaking what he said was the previous world mark of 30.

His pilot was Robert Lindsay, 741 Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, and his packer was Carl Ruppert, 180 North Lamon avenue. Witnesses said that Waltz missed the airport only once, landing about 50 feet from the edge of the field in a nearby cemetery. He used two chutes, Ruppert packing one as Waltz jumped with the other.

Train Service Is Resumed on 625 Mi. of Belgian Track

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Aug. 4.—Resumption of service on more than 625 miles of track has been announced by the Belgian Railway company. It is hoped that the Belgian service will be practically restored by the end of September. Germans have repaired 40 main bridges and Belgians are rebuilding 160 smaller ones. One hundred and ten others must be repaired.

JOLIET AIR SHOW LOOPER UNABLE TO BREAK RECORD

Twelve thousand spectators gathered at the Joliet Municipal airport yesterday for the third annual Joliet air show. The featured event, an attempt by Don C. Stevens to better his own world record of 93 consecutive loops in a motorless sailplane, was unsuccessful, but the throng was thrilled by a four hour program during which pilots demonstrated all types of maneuvers.

Drizzle Delays Takeoff.

First, his takeoff, scheduled for 11:30 a. m., was delayed by a foggy drizzle. Then when the weather cleared and Stevens was ready to go aloft the 320 horse power Waco biplane, which was to tow his glider to 16,000 feet, developed engine trouble. A 100 horse power Fleet biplane was used, and it was unable to lift the sailplane above 4,800 feet.

At that altitude Stevens cut his glider loose from the tow ship and began looping. His 31st loop was performed within 500 feet of the ground.

Stevens flew a standard two seater Frankfort Cinema sailplane, manufactured in Joliet by the Frankfort Sailplane company.

He said he will make another try at a new record on Aug. 24. In the new attempt he will have his glider lowed to 18,000 feet, he said. When he set the 93 loop record, in a glider meet in 1936 in Elmira, N. Y., he started looping from 11,000 feet.

Show for Free Milk Fund.

Yesterday's show was sponsored by the Joliet Junior Chamber of Commerce for the benefit of that city's free milk fund. Donald C. Munch was general chairman.

More than 30 amateur pilots flew their own light planes to the show. Several took part in a "pants race," in which the contestants flew a measured course around the field, landed, removed their trousers, flew the course and landed again, then replaced their trousers.

TEXT OF ADDRESS BY LINDBERGH AT RALLY FOR PEACE

He Pleads Against Mixing in Europe's Affairs.

Following is the text of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's address yesterday at the peace rally in Soldiers' field:

"Several weeks have passed since I received the honor of your invitation to speak in Chicago. At that time it was essential to create strong and immediate opposition to the trend toward war which was taking place in this country.

"The agitation for our entry into the war was increasing with alarming rapidity. Hysteria had mounted to the point where antiparachute corps were being formed to defend American cities against air attacks from Europe. Greenland, with its arctic climate, its mountainous terrain, and its ice filled seas was called an easy stepping stone for German bombing planes invading America.

Foreign Propaganda Cited.

"Cartoons showed the Atlantic ocean reduced to the width of the English channel. American safety was said to depend upon the success of European armies. Foreign propaganda was in full swing, and it seemed in many ways that we were approaching the greatest crisis in the history of our country.

"But events move swiftly in this modern world, and the true character of a nation lies beneath such surface foam. When the danger of foreign war was fully realized by our people, the underlying tradition of American independence arose, and in recent weeks its voice has thundered thru the weaker cries for war.

"We have by no means escaped the foreign entanglements and favoritisms that Washington warned us against when he passed the guidance of our nation's destiny to the hands of future generations. We have participated deeply in the intrigues of Europe, and not always in an open 'democratic' way.

CONSTANT VIGILANCE URGED

Warning Issued on Interests Seeking War Entry

"There are still interests in this country and abroad who will do their utmost to draw us into the war. Against these interests we must be continuously on guard. But American opinion is now definitely and overwhelmingly against our involvement.

"Both political parties have declared against our entry into the war. People are beginning to realize that the problems of Europe cannot be solved by the interference of America. We have at last started to build and to plan for the defense of our own continent. By these acts our eyes are turned once more in the direction of security and peace, for if our own military forces are strong, no foreign nation CAN invade us, and, if we do not interfere with their affairs, none will DESIRE to.

"Since we have decided against entering the war in Europe, it is time for us to consider the relationship we will have with Europe after this war is over. It is only by using the utmost intelligence in establishing and maintaining this relationship that we can keep America out of war in the future.

"I have a different outlook toward Europe than most people in America. In consequence, I am advised to speak guardedly on the subject of the war. I am told that one must not stand too strongly against the trend of the times, and that, to be effective, what one says must meet with general approval.

Offers Opinion as Citizen.

"There is much to be said for this argument, yet, right or wrong, it is contrary to the values that I hold highest in life. I prefer to say what I believe, or not to speak at all. I would far rather have your respect for the sincerity of what I say than attempt to win your applause by confining my discussion to popular concepts. Therefore, I speak to you today as I would speak to close friends rather than as one is supposed to address a large audience.

"I do not offer my opinion as an expert but rather as a citizen who is alarmed at the position our country has reached in this era of experts. As laymen we are often told that the solution of difficult problems should be left to the specialist.

"But since specialists differ in the solutions they recommend, they must at least allow us the privilege of choosing those we wish to follow. And in making this choice it seems that we are back where we started and must form an opinion of our own.

False Impressions Prevalent.

"I found conditions in Europe to be very different from our concept of them here in the United States. Any one who takes the trouble to read thru back issues of our newspapers cannot fail to realize what a false impression we had of the belligerent nations.

"We were told that Germany was ripe for revolution, that her rearmament was a bluff, that she lacked officers, that she flew her airplanes from one field to another so they would be counted again and again by foreign observers.

"We were informed that Russia had the most powerful air fleet in the world, that the French army was superior to any in Europe, that the British navy was more than a match for the German air force, that Germany lacked enough food, fuel, and raw material to wage war, that the Maginot line was impregnable, that Italy would never enter a war against England. Statements of this sort have issued forth in an endless stream from Europe, and any one who questioned their accuracy was called a Nazi agent.

MISLED ABOUT EUROPE

Both Military and Political Conditions Different

"These examples show how greatly we have been misled about the military conditions in Europe. If one goes still farther back, he will find that we have also been misled about political conditions. It has seemed obvious to me for many years that the situation in Europe would have to change, either by agreement or by war. I hoped that we had reached a degree of civilization where change might come by agreement. Living in Europe made me fear that it would come only thru war.

"There is a proverb in China which says that 'when the rich become too rich, and the poor too poor, something happens.' This applies to nations as well as to men.

"When I saw the wealth of the British empire, I felt that the rich had become too rich. When I saw the poverty of Central Europe, I felt that the poor had become too poor. That something would happen was blazoned even on the skies of Europe by mounting thousands of fighting aircraft.

German Strength Gigantic.

"From 1936 to 1939, as I traveled thru European countries, I saw the phenomenal military strength of Germany growing like a giant at the side of an aged and complacent England. France was awake to her danger, but far too occupied with personal ambitions, industrial troubles, and internal politics to make more than a feeble effort to rearm. In England there was organization without spirit. In France there was spirit without organization. In Germany there were both.

"I realized that I was witnessing a clash between the heirs of another war. A generation had passed since the treaty of Versailles. The sons of victory and the sons of defeat were about to meet on the battlefields of their fathers.

"As I traveled first among those who had won, and then among those who had lost, the words of a French philosopher kept running thru my mind: 'Man thrives on adversity.'

"The underlying issue was clear. It was not the support of 'democracy,' or the so-called democratic nations would have given more assistance to the struggling republic of post-war Germany.

"It was not a crusade for Christianity, or the Christian nations of the west would have carried their battle flags to the confiscated churches of Russia.

"It was not the preservation of small and helpless nations, or sanctions would have been followed by troops in Abyssinia, and England would not have refused to coöperate with the United States in Manchuria.

ISSUE ONE OF OLDEST

Territory and Wealth Roots of Conflict

"The issue was one of the oldest and best known among men. It concerned the division of territory and wealth between nations. It has caused conflict in Europe since European history began.

"The longer I lived in Europe the more I felt that no outside influence could solve the problems of European nations, or bring them lasting peace. They must work out their destiny, as we must work out ours. I am convinced that the better acquainted we in America become with the background of European conflicts the less we will desire to take part in them.

"But here I would like to make this point clear: While I advocate the noninterference by America in the internal affairs of Europe, I believe it is of the utmost importance for us to coöperate with Europe in our relationships with the other peoples of the earth. It is only by coöperation that we can maintain the supremacy of our western civilization and the right of our commerce to proceed unmolested thruout the world. Neither they nor we are strong enough to police the earth against the opposition of the other.

New Dominance Possible.

"In the past we have dealt with a Europe dominated by England and France. In the future we may have to deal with a Europe dominated by Germany. But whether England or Germany wins this war, western civilization will still depend upon two great centers, one in each hemisphere.

"With all the aids of modern science, neither of these centers is in a position to attack the other successfully as long as the defenses of both are reasonably strong. A war between us could easily last for generations, and bring all civilization tumbling down, as has happened more than once before. An agreement between us could maintain civilization and peace thruout the world as far into the future as we can see.

"But we are often told that if Germany wins this war, coöperation will be impossible, and treaties no more than scraps of paper. I reply that coöperation is never impossible when there is sufficient gain on both sides, and that treaties are seldom torn apart when they do not cover a weak nation.

Urges Rearming for Defense.

"I would be among the last to advocate depending upon treaties for our national safety. I believe that we should rearm fully for the defense of America, and that we should never make the type of treaty that would lay us open to invasion if it were broken. But if we refuse to consider treaties with the dominant nation of Europe, regardless of who that may be, we remove all possibility of peace.

"Nothing is to be gained by shouting names and pointing the finger of blame across the ocean. Our grandstand advice to England, and our criticism of her campaigns, has been neither wanted nor helpful.

"Our accusations of aggression and barbarism on the part of Germany simply bring back echoes of hypocrisy and Versailles. Our hasty condemnation of a French government, struggling desperately to save a defeated nation from complete collapse, can do nothing but add to famine, hatred, and chaos.

"If we desire to keep America out of war, we must take the lead in offering a plan for peace. That plan should be based upon the welfare of America. It should be backed by an impregnable system of defense. It should incorporate terms of mutual advantage. But it should not involve the internal affairs of Europe; they never were, and never will be, carried on according to our desires.

"Let us offer Europe a plan for the progress and protection of the western civilization of which they and we each form a part. But whatever their reply may be, let us carry on the American destiny of which our forefathers dreamed as they cut their farm lands from the virgin forests. What would they think of the claim that our frontiers lie in Europe?

Counsels Guard of Independence.

"Let us guard the independence that the soldiers of our revolution won against overwhelming odds. What, I ask you, would those soldiers say if they could hear this nation, grown 130 million strong, being told that only the British fleet protects us from invasion?

"Our nation was born of courage and hardship. It grew on the fearless spirit of the pioneer. Now that it has become one of the greatest powers on earth, ours must not be the generation that kneels in fear of future hardships, or of invasion by a Europe already torn by war.

"I do not believe we will ever accept a philosophy of calamity, weakness, and fear. I have faith in an American army, an American navy, an American air force—and, most important of all, the American character which, in normal times, lies quietly beneath the surface of this nation."

OTTMAR GETS IN HOT WATER BY SWIMMING TOO FAR OUT IN LAKE

Whenever Ottmar Stotz goes swimming in Evanston the beach guards stop loiling and get ready for duty. For Ottmar likes to swim far out from shore, beyond the permitted swimming area. He claims to be an accomplished swimmer, but the beach guards say his only stroke is the dog paddle.

Ottmar Stotz.

Yesterday, at Greenwood beach, he swam far out into the lake several times. Each time the guards chased him back into shallow water. What exasperated the guards was that other swimmers began to follow Ottmar into deep water. And Ottmar's answer was always the same:

"This is being a free country. I am a citizen. How about my constitutional rights?"

Finally the police were called. They took Ottmar, who is 41 years old, to the station. He refused to take his clothing along and sat in chilly dignity in his swimming trunks in a basement cell until his wife brought $25 from their home at 1150 Ashland avenue and bailed him out. He will be arraigned today on a disorderly conduct charge.

PARAGUAY VOTES ON MORE POWERS FOR PRESIDENT

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Aug. 4 (AP).—Paraguay voted in a popular plebiscite today on a proposal to accept the new constitution promulgated by President Felix Estigarribia. A government spokesman predicted 160,000 of the 200,000 qualified voters would cast ballots, and that the new charter would win overwhelmingly.

The new constitution broadens considerably the government's power in social and economic matters and concentrates authority. It was drafted in keeping with the president's policy of centralized power since his coup d'état several months ago.

The plebiscite was the second in Paraguay's history. The first approved the armistice with Bolivia ending the Gran Chaco hostilities two years ago.

BANDIT ROBS COUPLE.

Arthur Meister, 2310 North Karlov avenue, and Miss Angeline Ruby, 3449 Monroe street, were robbed of two wrist watches valued at $120, and $5 in cash yesterday by a bandit near Miss Ruby's home.

PLAN TO FLY BOMBERS ACROSS OCEAN FROM CANADA TO BRITAIN

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Two British royal air force pilots announced tonight they were organizing an aviation unit in Montreal to ferry bombing planes from Canada to England.

The pilots, Capt. Donald C. T. Bennett, trans-Atlantic flyer, and Capt. R. H. Page, stopped here briefly en route from Canada to California for a "liaison with west coast aircraft plants." They said their first visit would be to Burbank, Cal., to inspect the Lockheed plants.

The two, employed by the British Imperial Airways as civil pilots, were lent to the British aircraft production ministry to develop a trans-Atlantic system for delivering bombers to Britain under their own power.

They said American neutrality laws prohibit American pilots from participating in such a service and that they were "only in the market for Canadian pilots."

BERLIN NOTES U.S. AUTO UNION FIGHT ON DRAFT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—The official newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter today published an item about the decision of the American automobile workers' union to oppose compulsory military service "of any kind."

Many German soldiers who have returned from the French battlefields said that only a few French tank crews fought because "many of them were automobile workers who belonged to communist or pacifist cells which had been told by their leaders to abstain from fighting."

BRITISH AIR BOMB NAZIS MASSED TO INVADE ENGLAND

5 Days of High Tides May Aid German Plans.

LONDON, Aug. 4 (AP).—Britain plunged her air force into the offensive tonight as hard hitting raiders brought back word of Nazi troop and equipment concentrations just across the English channel.

On the eve of the August high tides, which from tomorrow thru Friday will afford the Germans their best chance of sea borne attack, British pilots told of machine gunning troops at Abbeville and bombing truck convoys, an armored train and barges near Gravelines and Dunkirk, France.

An air ministry communique, terming German defense weaker and less accurate, than usual, told of attacks from Saturday thru last night ranging from the Nazi held coast to industrial centers deep into Germany.

Hit Important Oil Plants.

The announcement said that some of the most important sources of Germany's synthetic oil supply were attacked by British bombers. "At Monheim [in the Rhineland]," a communique said, "a part of the [synthetic gas] works set on fire in an earlier attack served as a beacon guiding later raiders to their objective. Over Bottrop other raiders saw some of their bombs hit an oil plant.

"The docks at Kiel were located by our aircraft in spite of poor visibility. Some of the bombs set fire to naval buildings. At Husum, west of Kiel, buildings of an airdrome were damaged. The runways were hit and antiaircraft fire was stopped abruptly after one of our gunners replied with 200 rounds.

"The large freight yards in the northern part of Cologne were hit with high explosive and incendiary bombs from a plane which cruised about its objective for about an hour.

Airdromes Bombed.

"Airdromes and seaplane bases also were attacked. In daylight raids on Saturday the airdromes at Schipol [Rotterdam] and Heemstede again were attacked. Three British planes failed to return."

Authoritative sources said that emphasis would be kept on the offensive in the air. One source predicted, "Germany is out for a bigger headache than she has yet suffered."

Leaflet raids, patrol work over the Low Countries, and hundreds of bombing visits into the Ruhr valley and beyond were said to have trained British pilots how to grope thru the dark to targets anywhere in greater Germany.

The British attackers were pictured as practiced in gliding in silently, motors cut off, and striking before ground defense forces were aware of their presence.

Increase Size of Squadrons.

The British plan apparently is to increase the size of their raiding squadrons.

"It is clear that Germany's war machine has suffered a tremendous hammering," one source said, "and night bombing can be made even more shattering by larger formations of British aircraft.

"Military objectives well beyond the Ruhr will be within the range of Whitley heavy bombers during the longer hours of darkness."

Britain's defenses were in action Saturday night and Sunday morning against Nazi raiders who bombed the Thames estuary, Wales and eastern Scotland. The heaviest bombings were reported on the estuary where the Thames forms the water link to London, but no casualties were reported.

There were further leaflet "bombardments" in Wales, with Nazi raiders showering the countryside with thousands more of the "Hitler last appeal to reason" pamphlets first dumped in England last Friday morning.

Bombers Sink Trawler.

The admiralty announced that two officers and 18 men were lost when a German aircraft sank the Cape Finisterre, a naval auxiliary trawler.

Four Nazi bombers attacked the trawler Friday evening, the communique said. The first of these was shot down by the trawler's antiaircraft guns when it dove just above the ship's masts but in subsequent dive bombing attacks the trawler was squarely hit several times. She sank soon afterward.

Bomb Nazi Troop Concentrations

(Story in adjoining column.)

British planes bombed Nazi troop concentrations across the English channel and attacked sources of Germany's synthetic oil supply in the Rhineland. German bombers dropped explosives over many points in England, including the Thames estuary.

SLEEPY FRENCH TOWN WAKES FOR WAR GUILT TRIAL

Riom Dusts Off Her Ancient Relics.

RIOM, France, Aug. 4 (AP).—Like a disused theater, this sleepy and almost forgotten town of grass-grown streets and derelict mansions of another era began a frenzy of excited cleaning today, preparing for the history making trials of former Premier Edouard Daladier and other leaders accused of plunging an ill-prepared nation into war and disaster.

Arrow locates Riom.

Altho the names of the defendants have not been announced, Daladier, Georges Mandel, former minister of colonies; Cesar Campinichi, former navy minister; Yvon Delbos, former minister of education and foreign affairs, and several members of the chamber of deputies have been charged with responsibility for the defeat.

Others mentioned in connection with the trials, which will be opened on Thursday before a court that will combine elements of the military and civil supreme benches, are former Premier Paul Reynaud and the former commander in chief of the allied forces in France, Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin.

The possible maximum penalty is life imprisonment.

Palais de Justice Prepared.

At the Palais de Justice, most notable building in the town, the flustered woman caretaker lamented as she learned that the building had been chosen as the seat of the spectacle that may be one of the most notable legal proceedings in French history, perhaps even ranking with the famous Dreyfus affair. Her most important previous duty has been to guide casual tourists thru the palais, but she seized a duster and set to work to make everything tidy.

A few curiosity seekers already are wandering thru the two story stone building, staring at the Louis XIV. architecture and the ancient tapestries.

The palais stands on the main street atop a tree-bordered knoll in the center of the town, which once was the capital of the duchy of Auvergne.

Ancient Relics on View.

Originally built as a château by Duke Jean de Berry in the 14th century, the palais was reconstructed in 1830. The beautiful little Sainte Chapelle is all that remains of the original building. The chapel contains nine 15th century stained glass windows, two paintings of Christ on the cross labeled, "Jesus Christ, King of the Jews," magnificent fleur-de-lis tapestries, and altar paintings showing the duke and duchess de Berry being presented to St. Peter.

In the council hall, where the trials will be held, and in the president's room are tapestries of the Louis XIV. period: "The Prodigal Son" and "The Story of Ulysses," the latter detailing the adventure with Circe, who transformed Ulysses' men into swine.

The council hall is lined with long, black, leather covered seats providing room for about 200 persons.

Bench Like U. S.' Highest.

Behind the bench, which resembles that of the United States Supreme court in Washington, are seven red leather chairs from which the judges can look down upon the accused and their pleaders on an open space of polished hardwood.

Opposite the tapestried wall are six great windows looking out upon the pleasant plain, where peasants are harvesting crops that must help feed France.

Behind the judges' seats is a niche containing a marble bust of Marianne, symbolic of the French republic, which has been superseded by the French state.

Riom's 11,000 people are busy renting rooms and preparing to feed the crowds that will participate.

U-BOAT PERILS CONVOY OF CANADIAN TROOPS; SUNK BY DEPTH BOMBS

LONDON, Aug. 4 (AP).—Depth charges from warships convoying liners which landed Canadiar troops in the United Kingdom last week accounted for at least one and perhaps two enemy submarines, an officer of the naval escort said tonight.

The submarines were detected near the big convoy—in which traveled the largest contingent of Canadian troops to land in Britain to date—on the last night the ships were at sea. A pair of warships immediately went into action.

One submarine was chased across the placid sea and attacked just as the sun was sinking. The second sub was located and attacked 90 minutes later. Few aboard the massive converted liners were aware of the proximity of danger and the drama of the chase.

Costa Rica Orders Ditches Cut in Jap Plantations

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Aug. 4.—The government has ordered the cutting of deep ditches across vast cotton plantations, owned by Japanese, near the Pacific coast. This order altho ostensibly for drainage, actually is a precautionary measure to render the fields useless as aviation landing fields, in view of the increasing tenseness in Japanese-American relations.

ANOTHER ITALIAN SUBMARINE LOST; BOMB WAR RAGES

Fascists Attack Strategic Rail Point in Sudan.

ROME, Aug. 4 (AP).—Italy acknowledged the loss of another submarine and reported crippling air raids today on important British military objectives in the widely scattered "battle for Africa." The Italian communique did not disclose any details of the submarine's loss.

The high command said its bombers aimed telling blows at Haiya, rail center 100 miles north of the border of Italian Eritreq, and the towns of Summitt and Erkowit, all in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

A hangar was set ablaze at Haiya, the communique related, and bomb hits were scored on objectives in the town. In Kenya, a British armored motor train was reported bombed south of Wajir, highway junction 125 miles south of the Ethiopian border.

Still another raid was carried out against Zeila, port in British Somaliland on the Gulf of Aden just south of Jibuti.

At Dobel, 28 miles south of the Italian captured mud fortress of Moyale, the Italians said they counted 64 British dead, including three officers, who had taken part in a repulsed British counterattack last Friday.

British Attack Ships.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 4 (AP).—The British issued the following communique today:

"Three highly successful raids were carried out yesterday on Derna [Libya] harbor and the airdrome there. A large formation of Blenheims first raided the harbor and registered direct hits on a large ship. Near misses on other ships also were observed during the next raid. Direct hits were registered on the jetty and two ships lying in the harbor."

Tell of Attack on Port.

GIBRALTAR, Aug. 5 [Monday].—Pilots of British Swordfish planes told today of a devastating attack on the Port of Cagliari, on the Italian island of Sardinia.

The attack last Friday morning destroyed four Italian aviation hangars and four planes on the ground and destroyed or badly damaged other aviation buildings. One of the cannon armed, torpedo carrying Swordfish planes was shot down and another was forced down and captured, while three Italian planes were shot out of the air, the British said.

The attack was made from British aircraft carriers which steamed out of Gibraltar with other fleet units Wednesday morning on the 800 mile trip to Sardinia.

High and Low Altitudes.

One flight flew low to bomb Cagliari harbor and another went high to attack the airdrome. The flight attacking the harbor skimmed in at 500 foot altitude.

"The harbor was crowded," said one pilot. "Our second load of bombs disposed of two flying boats. At least 20 cannon as well as machine guns were loosed at us, but the firing was erratic."

The high flying attack on the airdrome started at 10,000 feet with a howling power dive down to 4,000.

"Our first lot of bombs fell in the water," said one of these pilots. "The second hit the seawall, which was badly damaged, and the third on the hangars full of seaplanes.

"We encountered one Italian fighter when neither of us was in position to fire. The Italians grinned at us from 50 yards. One of my crew fired three times with his pistol and the Italian made off."

Report Fleet in Mediterranean.

LONDON, Aug. 4 (AP).—The Madrid radio, in a broadcast heard in London tonight, reported the British fleet sailed from Gibraltar into the Mediterranean at 8 p. m. with the battle cruiser Hood at its head.

A BRITISH HOPE FADES AS GREECE STAYS 'NEUTRAL'

Premier Metaxas Tells Nation His Stand.

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 4 (AP).—Premier John Metaxas has announced the neutrality of Greece, another of the nations of southeast Europe upon whom Britain has relied for possible support in the Mediterranean war with Italy.

Premier John Metaxas

Greece "remains and will remain neutral" in order to contribute to the maintenance of peace in southeastern Europe, the premier told the nation in a broadcast last night on the fourth anniversary of his "iron man" régime.

Turkey, ally of Britain and guardian of the Dardanelles, also has announced her intention of staying out of the war unless attacked.

"In this terrible conflict which shakes the very foundations of Europe," declared the premier, "Greece, always ready for every sacrifice to safeguard the integrity of her territory, her independence and her honor, should these precious possessions be threatened, remains and will remain neutral."

Striking at intriguers, of whom he said a few had appeared, Metaxas said he had "taken measures to insure that these few men may be forced to stop defaming the honest name of our country before foreigners."

Metaxas assumed near-dictatorial powers in 1936 in a coup d'état in order to combat communism.

BRONCO OF SEAS IS BRITAIN'S MTB, MIDGET WARSHIP

Tribune Writer Takes a Thrilling Ride.

BY GUY MURCHIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 4.—Since June, when the British and the Germans became separated only by the narrow waters of the British channel, the much discussed motor torpedo boats of both sides have assumed greater importance.

Several times in recent weeks these midget ships, ranging in length from 40 feet upwards, have been featured in the news, laying smoke screens to shield British naval movements against the Germans, fighting off air attacks with their machine guns, attacking submarines with their depth bombs, and sinking at least one ship [the Meknes] by a torpedo.

In order to see some of the fast and potent fighters of a modern navy, this TRIBUNE correspondent yesterday joined a crew of 10 British naval officers and men in a four hour cruise in the English channel on an MTB, as the motor torpedo boat is commonly called in naval circles. Altho much that was seen cannot be told because these craft are being rapidly developed and contain secret equipment, the cruise included maneuvers at a full speed of more than 40 knots, laying of smoke screens, and practicing with multiple antiaircraft machine guns.

Three Craft Go on Cruise.

There was a gray overcast at 9 a. m. when the three MTBs participating in the cruise were checked out of the harbor of a naval base. Passing between formidable fortifications on both sides of the harbor mouth, the three boats hummed seaward at a moderate 30 knots, leaving behind a grayish coast with the familiar sprinkling of silvery balloons standing guard over it in the sky. Two of the three MTBs were entirely black, evidently designed for night raiding. The third, designed for daytime patroling, was bluish. All three were different in length and armaments.

When the 70 foot craft on which I was a passenger began to hit 40 knots in a swell five miles from shore, it was using its bow as a hammer to whack the waves apart as it skimmed thru their tops. It felt like riding a bronco as I clung to the bow and tried to straddle a wooden cleat to hold onto while taking pictures. Once the camera was knocked out of my hand when we did a sharp turn and skijumped off a big wave to land smack against an advancing slope.

Stern Jet Spouts Smoke.

All the time, the young officers were taking turns at the wheel and getting training for this rapidly expanding arm of the navy. Signaling between the boats went on almost continually by wireless, flash lamp and flag semaphore. The laying of smoke screens was done with a small fountain jet at the stern which spurted white smoke to a height of about 20 feet over the sea. This smoke was effective. Its spread blended into the white wakes of the disappearing MTBs, making it difficult to see where the wake ended and the smoke began and creating confusion for any pursuer.

All morning three powerful aeromotors roared softly in the large engine room occupying the after half of the boat. They seemed not to be affected by the terrific whacking the craft was taking from the waves. In the officers' quarters under the forward deck I tried lying on a bunk to recuperate from the beating I received on the bow, but it was impossible to relax; I was actually tossed into the air every few seconds by the boat's motion, and the noise was like falling downstairs in an ash can.

Man Guns as Plane Appears.

We watched mine sweepers dragging for German magnetic mines, but the most exciting moment of the cruise came when an airplane suddenly appeared, flying low and fast from the direction of German territory.

"Man the guns," shouted the commanding officer as he turned his glasses on the plane.

The gunner quickly climbed into the revolving turret of the Lewis gun, and whirled it around until the sights covered the plane. All officers were intent upon the intruder because the MTBs are vulnerable to air attack: their best defense is speed and a smoke screen, but the one craft they cannot outrun is an airplane, and an air attack seldom allows time for an effective smoke screen. The airplane, however, turned out to be a royal air force Bristol Blenheim. It was only after our return to the naval base that we learned there had been an air raid there during our absence and that German aircraft had been driven back across the channel unobserved by us.

A Boat Hard to Hit.

The MTB takes the place of the original torpedo boat of the navy, and, despite its smallness, is regarded more efficient. Its striking power is at least as great, but it requires a crew of only 10 men, is easy and inexpensive to build, is faster than a steam torpedo boat, and is less vulnerable because it can not only outrun any destroyer but its easy maneuverability makes it difficult to hit. Development of the internal combustion motor allowed these midget warships to come into general use. Only the power and light weight of gasoline engines make possible such speed in a craft so small and leave room for torpedo tubes, machine guns and, in the case of the German MTBs, spare torpedoes and a one pounder all purpose gun that is equally effective against airplanes and opposing MTBs.

The German MTBs are about twice as large as the British, which are more like the Italian type. While the German MTBs are better armed, they do not have the speed of the British boats, whose smallness makes them harder to see. In a test in a fairly rough sea, it was proved that British MTBs could cruise parallel to destroyers at a distance of a few miles with the destroyers visible to the MTB crew while the MTB was hidden by the waves and invisible to the destroyers.

Craft Attack Unseen.

This fact is one of the greatest advantages of the MTB which, especially in haze, twilight or moonlight, when visibility is poor, can dash close enough to fire a torpedo at an enemy ship without being seen. Even the submarine has no advantage over the MTB in these conditions, for while it can submerge it has only about one-fourth of the speed of the MTB and often falls a victim to depth charges dropped by pursuing destroyers. Even the MTB's are a great danger to submarines. They have a device to detect the sound of submarine engines and this enables them to calculate the spot where depth bombs should be dropped.

The narrow English channel is ideal for operations of the MTBs and both the British and Germans are using them continuously. The great numbers of planes which are flying back and forth and fighting over the channel occasionally require their help for the rescue of crews shot down upon the water. The capture of enemy aircraft crews is another valuable service offered by the boats. Even apart from the actual damage they do to shipping, the MTBs' nuisance value is high because their existence makes it necessary to take great precautions.

SPY COMPLAINTS JUMP 10-FOLD IN YEAR JUST ENDED

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4 (AP).—Espionage complaints to the Federal Bureau of Investigation increased 10-fold during the year ended June 30, Director J. Edgar Hoover reported today. Summarizing the activities of the bureau for the 12 months, Hoover said that with the outbreak of war in Europe last September, work pertaining to national defense reached a peak of 2,871 complaints on a single day in May.

The FBI investigated 16,885 defense matters during the year, compared with 1,651 in the previous year and 250 in 1938. Prior to 1938, the average for five years was only 35.

Hoover said the FBI had surveyed 270 plants turning out defense materials and had made recommendations for their protection. Eventually, he said, it is hoped to study 12,000 manufacturing establishments for protective purposes.

With the objective of promoting closer coördination of activities by state and federal agencies in guarding against spies and saboteurs, governors or other officials of 42 states will meet here tomorrow and Tuesday with federal officers.

LONDON DENIES TROOPS LAND IN FRENCH COLONIES

LONDON, Aug. 4 (AP).—Reports that British troops landed in the French African possessions, Madagascar and the Cameroons, were denied today by British officials. They added, however, that interest reportedly shown by Nazis in the French West African port of Dakar was regarded as especially serious—possibly foretelling large scale German action in and from French African territory.

MOSCOW'S ORDER BARS AMERICANS' BALTIC FLIGHT

Estonia Refuses to Grant Transit Visas.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Aug. 4.—Acting under instructions from Moscow, the soviet government of Estonia has refused to grant transit visas to Americans living in Latvia and Lithuania who had hoped to cross the Finnish gulf to Finland on their journey to Petsamo to board the liner American Legion. The liner is to take between 600 and 700 Americans home from Scandinavia and the Baltic states.

Protests made by the American charges d'affaires in Tallinn, Estonia; Riga, Latvia, and Kaunas, Lithuania, have not helped matters. The action of the state department at Washington recalling the American ministers from Baltic countries has made the position of the Americans more difficult.

Many Face Long Detour.

Approximately 80 Americans in Lithuania and 30 others in Latvia are now making an attempt to reach Petsamo by going to Berlin and then thru Copenhagen, Stockholm and Haparanda, Sweden, into Finland. This involves a costly journey of approximately 3,000 miles.

Unless the Americans can pay for their tickets in American money in the country in which they are staying, they cannot begin their journey because the new soviet governments refuse to permit any one to take more than $50 out of the Baltic states and all tickets must be purchased with foreign currency. The sum that a traveler is permitted to take out is insufficient to enable him to reach Petsamo.

Another obstacle is encountered at the customs offices. Red officials search baggage for hours for valuables which, when found, are confiscated.

Income Tax Becomes Gouge.

Persons who have resided in the Baltic states for more than six months must pay income taxes. Income tax collectors do not base their calculations on a statement submitted by the traveler but arbitrarily demand any exorbitant amount they see fit to set.

An exit visa, or special stamp to leave the country, is also required, and this means police investigation of the activities and records of each applicant, requiring time.

Some of these impediments to travel were imposed before the Moscow government forced a communist government upon the Baltic states, but the restrictions have been made more severe under the administration of the new Red officials.

A person leaving the country also faces the problem of obtaining a visa to pass thru other countries. Special blank forms must be purchased and filled out. These are forwarded by foreign consulates to their ministries of interior at home for approval. This sometimes consumes weeks. If an application is telegraphed, all charges must be paid by the traveler.

Five Approvals Needed.

Americans in Latvia must now obtain Lithuanian, German, Danish, Swedish, and Finnish visas in order to reach Petsamo. The consular officials of these countries apparently are doing their best to help, but they are handicapped by a jungle of red tape that has developed to impede travel since the outbreak of the war.

In Tallinn, soviet officials have refused to permit American citizens to secure papers for passage to Finland on the pretext they must first obtain a special permit from the ministry of interior. This also affects travelers in transit. More than 30 American citizens have been held up in Tallinn for 10 days.

BRITONS STRIVE TO SAVE LIBERTY AS A WAR WEAPON

Preservation of Democracy Demanded by Press.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The danger that Britain, in her effort to win the war, will saddle herself with those very social and political conditions against which she took up arms is regarded by leading newspapers and periodicals as no less serious than the threat of German invasion.

This theme has been brought up in parliament and re-echoed in the press. David Lloyd George, world war prime minister, has repeatedly stressed the importance of maintaining the traditional democratic form of government in Britain. He declared "Liberty is not merely an ideal to be achieved, but it constitutes the most formidable weapon by which an ideal may be won or defended."

Stirred by Snooping Campaign.

The whole country has been aroused by the recently abandoned efforts to establish compulsory press censorship, and by the present scheme sponsored by the ministry of information to send "snoopers" thruout the country to make a house to house canvass of the public morale and to obtain a cross section of public opinion on the war by listening in on private conversations in public places.

The Weekly Review, in warning against dictatorships, said, "We are fighting to destroy the tyrannical rule of a barbaric people. If as a condition of victory we accept tyranny and barbarism, we clearly are wasting our time, our lives and our money. There are increasing signs of the latter danger being overlooked or not understood."

Warning Against Russia.

Previous to the recent speech by Vyacheslav Molotov, soviet foreign commissar, who berated Britain, many newspapers recommended redoubled efforts to bring about a friendly understanding with Russia. The Weekly Review warned, however, that "the revolution against out traditional civilization is being carried on with as much vigor from Moscow as from Berlin."

The Review cautioned against the advice published in the Daily Express of two weeks ago, that "since we are fighting Fascists we must work for left wing revolutions in Europe."

Opposes Secret Sessions.

The New Statesman and Nation, in praising the press and parliament for efforts to preserve the nation's freedom, cited as a new danger the "secret sessions" of parliament. The London Economist recommended a formal reaffirmation of "human rights" as a challenge to Fuehrer Hitler "which he neither could ignore nor accept."

WINDSOR AND DUCHESS TO QUIT SHIP AT BERMUDA

ABOARD S. S. EXCALIBUR AT SEA, Aug. 4 (AP).—The duke of Windsor, en route to his post as governor of the Bahamas, will disembark on Thursday at Bermuda with his American born duchess.

This announcement today put at rest reports that the duke might go to New York, or leave the ship at Bermuda and send the duchess on to the United States.

The Windsors have no definite plans as to how they will proceed to Nassau nor the length of their Bermuda stay. Some of their furniture is being shipped from France to a European port, whence it will go to Nassau.

Nazis Deny Polish Embassy to Be Established in France

BERLIN, Aug. 4 (AP).—The German wireless quoted official quarters at Vichy, provisional capital of France, today denying emphatically a "British" report that an agreement had been reached to permit the Polish government to reëstablish an embassy in France. YOUNG OFFICERS WILL RULE NEW ARMY OF FRANCE

VICHY, France, Aug. 4 (AP).—Philippe Petain, chief of state in the new French government, today issued a decree setting maximum age limits for all ranks of officers in France's new army. The limits will tend to weed out the older officers and permit younger men to assume posts of authority.

All officers over the age limits are slated for automatic retirement under pension.

The age limit for generals commanding armies is set at 62 years, generals commanding corps or divisions, 60; generals commanding brigades, 58; colonels, 56 to 60, depending on which branch of the service; lieutenant colonels, 54 to 60; majors, 52 to 60; captains and lieutenants, 45 in fighting services, 50 to 54 elsewhere; admirals, 62; vice admirals, 60; rear admirals, 57; captains of the navy, 52 to 55, depending on the type of vessel; lieutenants and ensigns, 45.

FRENCH REVEAL HOW YOUTH CAMP WILL TRAIN BOYS

Farm and Forest Service to Develop 'Patriots.'

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Aug. 4.—With the decision to send 250,000 youths of the military conscription class of 1940 to serve six months in "youth camps," where they will be given physical training and also perform farm and forestry labor, the government of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain has adapted another institution, first developed by the Germans and Italians, to fit the present exigencies here.

Following organization thruout the country of these camps, which will be in charge of Gen. de la Motte du Theil, they will first be attended by the 20 year olds, who were called up in June of this year, and already have a couple of months of military service, but will not be able to complete their tour because of armistice requirements.

Meet Armistice Terms.

The council of ministers last night adopted regulations to progressively reduce French military, naval, and air effectives to the figures provided in the armistice negotiations.

In Germany each youth must do a period of labor, and in Italy the Fascist youth must spend several months in camps in the summer.

The French institution will combine the elements of the two. Gen. du Thiel's camps will be under the direction of the ministry of family and youth, for which Jean Ybarnegaray holds the portfolio. Gen. Maxime Weygand, minister of defense, countersigned the law providing for the camps.

The idea behind the camps, it is announced here is to conciliate the necessity of disarmament and probable abandonment of military conscription with an obligation to regroup the youth of the nation and give it physical education.

Non-Military Aims.

A member of the ministry said today the camps, while under strict discipline, would be absolutely non-military. He described the service as "six months of obligatory Boy Scoutism." Military conscription in this country has always been considered a valuable part of a young man's physical and moral education. Patriotism will be emphasized in the camps.

At first the boys will be set to work on farms and in the forests. Later on, open air manual training shops are planned.

All army reserves of the 1937 class are to be demobilized before Aug. 10, so only the classes of 1938 and 1939 will be left with the colors. How much will be left of the permanent French army is still undetermined, and it is likely to be reduced to much less than one year's class, which usually runs around 250,000.

Discuss Colonies Blockade.

Today the talk of Vichy political circles was a new decree abolishing secret societies, which will hit French freemasonry lodges.

No details have yet been given the French public about the cryptic announcement in a communique on last night's cabinet meeting of an incident in Madagascar and the Cameroons, French colonies, but it is unofficially reported these concern new blockade measures announced by the Winston Churchill government of Britain. Gen. Weygand this morning was in conference with Foreign Minister Paul Baudoin.

Leaflets Urge Rumania to Desert German Ties

Hindsight and Foresight

By HOLGAR J. JOHNSON

President, Institute of Life Insurance

AT a luncheon meeting I attended the other day the chairman announced a question period. The very first query from the floor was: "When I borrow on my life insurance policy, why do I have to pay interest? Am I not borrowing my own money?"

Inasmuch as several letters have asked the same question, I think it deserves an answer here. I can't cover the whole subject in this space, but I'll be glad to send a special memorandum to anyone who wants to go into the matter more thoroughly.

HERE, very briefly, is the situation. What insurance costs you is represented by the net amount you pay the insurance company. Now this net amount would be more if it were not for the interest earned by the investments represented by the reserves.

If you took any money out, you would be reducing the earning reserve funds by that amount, and if interest were not paid your premiums would have to go up. Otherwise the other policyholders would suffer—and remember that only one in 3 or 4 policyholders has a policy loan. Therefore you do not withdraw your own money. Instead you simply borrow against your share—just as if you were borrowing on some government bonds you owned or any other kind of collateral.

As to the matter of interest rates, the main points to remember here are, first, that the rate has to be written into your policy when you take it out and may be in effect for 50 years, in periods of high interest and low interest. Second, under the law the companies must charge the same rate of interest for small and large loans—whether the amount borrowed is $5 or $5000.

Most of the loans are small ones and lending institutions are accustomed to charge a much higher rate on small loans than on large ones.

Your life insurance company simply tries to strike an average which, over the years, is fair to borrowing and non-borrowing policyholders alike.

NOTE: In this regular Monday column, paid for at advertising rates, the Institute of Life Insurance has asked its president to discuss questions of interest to life insurance policyholders. Inquiries may be addressed to 60 East 42nd Street, New York City.

Despite constant pressure Chicago Tribune correspondents in Washington and thruout the world refuse to base their news on official handouts. They do their own fact finding. People buy a newspaper to get the news; they get it in the Tribune.

MORE ARRESTS KEEP ANGLO-JAP FEUD BOILING

Strained Relations to Be Aired in Commons.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 4.—A government statement on Great Britain's relations with Japan and covering the arrest of four Japanese in London under the defense of the realm act as well as the arrest by the Japanese of Britons in Japan is expected in the house of commons Tuesday. This became known as the Japanese embassy disclosed that four more Japanese had been seized by British authorities at Singapore and at Rangoon, Burma.

"This news is most disturbing, as we had hoped that relations between the countries were improving," an embassy attaché declared.

The four men arrested were Japanese journalists, one at Singapore, who was seized yesterday morning, and the other three at Rangoon on Friday.

British official circles tonight reiterated there was no connection between these arrests and the detention of Britons by Japan. Again denial was made the arrests were not reprisals.

Britons Freed by Tokio.

Announcement of the release of three more Britons from the 14 originally detained in Japan on espionage charges left the impression in London that the Tokio foreign office may be attempting to ease far eastern tension. The Japanese press, however, is bitterly demanding retaliatory measures against Britain.

It became known today that in addition to the two Japanese business men whose arrests in London were announced yesterday, two others had been arrested previously. Takayuki Equchi, an employé of the Bank of Formosa in London, it was disclosed, has been in Brixton prison since July 10, and Mrs. Milley Yoshii, German born wife of a Japanese painter, has been detained since July 13. These two, it was announced tonight, have been ordered deported.

It is clear that the arrests, regardless of the fact while declared to have been "without political significance," have contributed toward the demand for clarification of Anglo-Japanese relations.

Mamoru Shigemitsu, the Japanese ambassador, in calling on Viscount Halifax, the British foreign minister, yesterday, acted on his own initiative, it was asserted. It was learned tonight that he called again over the week-end and this time demanded release of Satoru Mikahara and Shunsukei Tanabe, who were arrested Saturday. Lord Halifax's answer already has been sent to Tokio, it was authoritatively stated.

Newspapers express the suspicion that the recalcitrance of the Japanese government is due to increased German influence on Japanese policy in the far east.

Diplomatic Break Urged.

TOKIO, Japan, Aug. 4 (AP).—Recall of Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese ambassador to London, was urged by the newspaper Hichi today in an article demanding that the government "take a resolute decision" regarding the arrest of two prominent bankers Friday. The paper suggested that Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, British ambassador to Tokio, be given his walking papers.

Other Japanese newspapers counseled the government to "deal with the British with firm determination."

Popular feeling appeared to be running high.

The foreign office, meanwhile, denied reports from abroad that Japanese vessels bound for Britain had been radioed orders to remain at Lisbon, Portugal.

EXPECT SPEEDY JAP MOVE TO GET EAST INDIAN OIL

TOKIO, Aug. 4.—Japan's policy on the Netherland Indies is expected to take shape quickly. The press indicates imminent energetic measures to replace from the Netherland Indies, the supplies of oil and scrap metal withheld from Japan by America's export ban.

Cabinet leaders will confer tomorrow on Gen. Kuniaki Koiso's projected mission to the Dutch East Indies after he explains his plans to the premier, Prince Fumimaro Konoye. Gen. Koiso strongly has urged solution of the "southward question." He will offer his plan tomorrow.

In an interview Gen. Koiso pointed out that the Dutch East Indies produced 8,000,000 tons of oil yearly and more scrap metals than Japan consumes.

Noaki Hoshino, chief administrator of the Manchukuoan state councils, told the press that if the South Seas islands were added to the east Asian bloc it would become the strongest bloc in the world.

Envoy Cudahy Arrives in London to Visit Kennedy

LONDON, Aug. 4 (AP).—John Cudahy, American ambassador to Belgium, arrived tonight for a visit of several days with Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy.

KING GIVES CHECK TO QUEEN, 40; IT GOES TO CHARITY

LONDON, Aug. 4 (AP).—Queen Elizabeth celebrated her 40th birthday today. The queen spent a quiet day in the country with King George and Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose. From the king Queen Elizabeth received a check which she will distribute as donations. From her daughters the queen received a gift they had knitted themselves, after having gained practice in knitting for the armed forces. The queen had given away most of her other presents in advance, for she asked her friends to turn over to wartime charities the money they would have spent on gifts.

A MIRACLE LAND FOR CITY'S POOR: CAMP ALGONQUIN

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Camp Algonquin, on the banks of the singing Fox river, is in mid-season

Six times has the rumbling cavalcade of camp trucks rolled out to meet the North Western train, bearing departing campers to the station and bringing others to take their places in the 31 woodland cabins and at the long tables in the community dining hall.

Brisk young Joe Florio and his pretty wife, who, in Mrs. Astrid Save's absence, have taken over the management of the camp this summer, go over the list. [Mrs. Save, camp director for 19 years, has been delayed in returning from a visit to her family in Sweden]. Camp Algonquin has entertained 716 guests thus far this 31st season.

What the Camp Accomplishes.

What of these 716 campers whom the United Charities already has sent to the Fox river vacation ground, and the other hundreds who will come before the season closes at the end of August? Who are they? What does the camp mean to them? What does it accomplish?

These few reflections from Algonquin will best carry, perhaps, the answers of THE TRIBUNE readers who already this season, by contributing to the Algonquin fund, have given their support to the United Charities on this health-rebuilding, spirit rehabilitating project for Chicago's poor.

Who are the Algonquin campers? Typical of the mothers is young Mrs. Blank from the northeast side. Mrs. Blank was pale and listless. The worries of family disunion and a four-year struggle against want had brought her to the verge of nervous collapse. The Charities sent her and her five children off for a two-week vacation.

Clean Air; Good Food; Restful Sleep.

By the end of the first week, clean air, wholesome food, and restful sleep had their good way with the children; they were in rosy health and were almost at normal weight. The social worker who had accompanied the family to camp, returning the middle of the second week, sought out Mrs. Blank. She was out on the river. She waved an eager greeting, skillfully maneuvered her boat about, and rowed to the pier. Her face was brown and merry, and every disfiguring line was erased from it.

Scores of the youngsters sent to camp never before have been out of the city. Joel Hunter, superintendent of the United Charities, who keeps a paternal eye on the camp, admits to a "sneaking, special feeling" for the city kids to whom Algonquin is Wonderland.

A Chocolate Milk Cow.

Take, for example, little Angelo, a rumple haired angel with a dirty face. Mr. Hunter's eyes beam when he muses on Angelo.

"On a nature tramp on the farm one day, Angelo spotted his first black cow," Mr. Hunter relates. "Angelo uses his head. If his conclusions miss the mark sometimes, that is not his fault. His logic always is sound. 'See there,' Angelo called to his companions, pointing out the animal. 'I betcha that's the kind that gives chocolate milk!'"

The country with its strange sights and sounds bewilders some of the small urbanites. They want to go home. Not all the petting and comforting words of her counselors could dissuade Dotty. Dotty was homesick.

A Letter from Dotty.

There is a letter from Dotty on Mr. Hunter's desk. She wrote:

"Dear Mr. Hunter. I am writing a few lines to tell you that I am very sorry I left Algonquin and yous. I thot it would be smarter if I go back to Chicago and have some fun at home but I havent. It is so hot here and in Algonquin it is cool the river and trees make it very cool there. I could of stayed all Summer with my Brother John. Miss Caral told me I could but I was crying that I didnt want to stay but I am sorry I didnt.

"We had a fine time geting the Turtles home. We put our Turtles in a can were we put the flowers but they got out so we put them in a paper bag they tore the bag so we put them in the sleeves of my brothers coat. They come out from the sleeves we got so angry at them so I put them in the suitcase that was about the best place for them. I think I have nothing more to say excep I wish I could go back."

Going over a list of contributions yesterday, Mr. Hunter marked off a $10 donation. "That," he said, "gives Dotty her second chance."

MIKE CARROZZO, RULER OVER 25 UNIONS, IS DEAD

Boss Ill for Eight Days of Kidney Ailment.

Speculation was rife last night over whether Kart would continue to pretend to be president of the various unions or whether D'Andrea would move in. State's Attorney Courtney was reported anxious to learn whether Nitti would attempt to seize control of the unions.

The revenue, aside from the union dues, accruing to the chief of the Carrozzo labor army is so great that it is feared the battle for control will be marked by violence. Autonomy for the unions is said to be out of the question, altho William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, announced last night he would have a representative here to watch the battle.

Subway Union Fees Recalled.

Instances of the perquisites of the Carrozzo preserves were cited. It was recalled that men employed in the present digging of the Chicago subway were compelled to pay an iniation fee of $40 to $50 to the Street and Tunnel Miners' union—which had few, if any, members here before the subway was started. County Commissioner Peter Fosco is head of this union, but it is one of the group in Carrozzo's portfolio.

Last winter the city council made a definite decision that no city employés would receive pay raises in 1940. Into the council strode Carrozzo with a demand that his street laborers get $597,797 in increases.

"You'll pay or there'll be no street work next year," he warned.

The council gave him $154,600.

Mysterious Strike Called.

A few months later Carrozzo called a mysterious strike of 60 employés of the city's asphalt plants. The real reason was said to be that it was Mike's protest over the city's refusal to award a contract for 100,000 tons of asphalt to a concern which had been incorporated and headed by Kart, Carrozzo's attorney and union representative.

Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, who had saved the city money by refusing to grant the contract Carozzo favored, told Carrozzo he couldn't bulldoze the city. When defied, Carrozzo quickly took cover and called off the strike. This gave the aldermen courage to take a peek under the surface of Carrozzo's dealings.

The mysterious death of F. Lynden Smith, state director of public works, in Springfield last winter had disclosed Carrozzo's power in the matter of all state road building. A few contractors were induced to tell how Carrozzo "worked" with them.

Courtney Starts Probe.

States Attorney Courtney began an investigation which still is under way, along with his inquiry into the Nitti ownership of the bartenders' union. The prosecutor announced intentions of seeking indictments, and his latest word is that he will be watching every move in the choice of Carrozzo's successor.

He said one other possibility arising from Carrozzo's death is that outside contractors now may dare to enter into competition on jobs here—to the benefit of Chicago taxpayers. Outside contractors have been virtually barred because Carrozzo would provide incompetent workmen to an outsider who obtained a contract here. Carrozzo control of the labor supply thus had a big influence on contractors.

The contractors Carrozzo permitted to do business were under the necessity of meeting Nitti in Forest Park, according to information given Courtney. Unwillingness of contractors to testify concerning details of the meeting has hampered the state's investigation.

HOW CARROZZO ROSE

Mike had come far from the days when he was a messenger boy and later bodyguard for "Big Jim" Colosimo, vice monger who ruled the old red light district. Mike later shared that responsibility with Alphonse Capone.

From a slugger Mike became a self-proclaimed "big shot." He gave orders to politicians. But his $75,000 home in Long Beach failed to bring his desired place in society. His neighbors regarded him as a Capone gangster and shunned him. So he bought an 805 acre estate near Hobart, Ind.

He became the owner of a racing stable, hundreds of head of Hereford cattle, prize winning swine and draft horses. He boasted of the rise made by a lad born in Montaguto, Italy [according to his naturalization papers], who reached this country in 1906 at the age of 11 and who arrived in Chicago in 1908 as a boy of 14.

Mike a Lavish Spender.

He was a lavish spender and a prince of good fellows in the night clubs. On the night of July 19 he gave a red hot horse race tip to a number of chorus girls and distributed bills with which they were invited to bet on Carrozzo's horse, Bayou Cook, next day. He told them to bet on it only to place—that is, to finish first or second in the race. It ran second, paying $12 for each $2 bet on it to place.

Manicure girls in the Hotel Sherman barber shop said Mike always gave a $5 tip.

Public officials who obtained a dossier on Carrozzo during the last two decades said he owed his start in labor to the late Timothy [Big Tim] Murphy who aspired to be a labor czar and almost succeeded. Murphy was a hoodlum elected to the state legislature for one term. He later turned on his old pal, Maurice [Mossy] Enright, a labor boss.

Accused in Enright Slaying.]

Murphy acquired Carrozzo as a slugger, officials said. It wasn't long before Murphy, Carrozzo, and two others were in jail, charged with the murder of Enright. Some witnesses couldn't be found, however, and the indictments were dropped by the state.

The indictments and their publicity, however, made Carrozzo a personage. Soon he was president of the street sweepers' union. Folks said there had been an election and some one ran against Mike, but he was the unanimous choice of the membership of 1,200. Other elections of that kind followed.

One union wasn't enough for Mike, and soon he was head of the city garbage handlers' union. Next he acquired a handbook or two and warned city officials not to molest the books or he would call his unions out on strike.

Seized as Gun Toter.

Mike was arrested several times on charges of carrying a pistol. Once he won a discharge by proving he was a state highway policeman.

Again he convinced Chief Justice Harry Olson of the municipal court he was a deputy game warden employed by the state and was on his way to inspect some fish when arrested and searched by detectives.

His reputation was against him twice when he tried to become an American citizen. He filed an application in 1927 and later withdrew it. He filed another in 1928, and again the request was withdrawn.

In 1937 Mike had become a man of importance and apparently had little or no difficulty in being admitted to citizenship in the federal court. Government officials recently sought a way to cancel that citizenship and to deport Carrozzo. He was facing a possibility of being returned to his native land at the time of his death.

For many years, it was explained last night, Carrozzo's local unions had no affiliation with any of the internationals or with the American Federation of Labor.

Then, for some unknown reason, he took most of them into the hod carriers' international union and for a short time made his home in New York. He called himself president of the hod carriers' international, but he was in fact only allied with it, altho he was international president of the pavers' group of unions.

His string of local unions included a dozen or more having city employés as members, such as sewer cleaners, garbage handlers, house drain inspectors, water pipe extension laborers, paving workers of all kinds, and inspectors of many kinds. He bossed the hod carriers, wreckers and excavators, and many other miscellaneous groups.

When he went to an American Federation of Labor convention he easily rated the honors of the best front. He usually hired an entire floor of the most expensive hotel, stocked the rooms with liquors and foods, and held open house for all labor delegates. The best and prettiest of entertainers always were to be found in the Carrozzo headquarters.

His First Obstacle.

Until he fell afoul of Commissioner Hewitt last April he hadn't met an obstacle in years. Soon thereafter he was indicted for violating the anti-trust laws in keeping ready mixed concrete out of use here. Then came the government lien against his possessions. He met that with a display of his wealth and was ready to meet an indictment for income tax fraud.

"Worry did not cause his death," Dr. Kretschmer said last night. "He was operated on for a kidney ailment several years ago. A week ago last Saturday he came to Chicago in an ambulance after being suddenly stricken. He had chills and fever, and an operation for removal of stones from his ureter had to be delayed.

"An emergency operation was performed Friday night. He had sustained a shock and a collapse. He had a high fever. He was unconscious for six hours and died at 7:45 o'clock this morning."

Carrozzo's wife was at his bedside when he died. She is the former Juliana Tucker of Keokuk, Ia. They were the parents of two children, Michael George and Carole Ann. Carrozzo was married twive previously. He divorced his first wife, Mary, in 1921 on grounds of desertion.

In 1924 he brought proceedings against his second wife, Helen, whom he accused of "going out" with Joseph [Yellow Kid] Weil, dapper conman who is serving a prison sentence. Carrozzo's third marriage was in 1927, and friends said it was a happy union.

Stable Listing Changed.

Carrozzo's racing stable was listed under his wife's name until he was indicted on the antitrust charges. Thereafter Carrozzo's horses raced under the tag of the Superior farm. He was at the races at Arlington park nearly every day until he became ill, and that was the day after he posted money to insure payment of the income tax claims against him.

His safety boxes, the seals on which were removed by the government when the bond was given, will be sealed again today and may be opened only in the presence of state inheritance tax representatives. The value of Carrozzo's estate will be determined in the Probate court and then will end the story of what America did for, and put up with from, a young immigrant.

Two gunmen took $50 in cash and jewelry and a new sedan last night from a couple they found seated in the car on Lawndale avenue between Arthington and Polk streets. The holdup victims were Roger Scher, 23 years old, 1500 Millard avenue, and Miss Phyllis Eisenberg, 6949 Paxton avenue.

G. O. P. CAMPAIGN FUNDS AGENCY SET UP IN STATE

Committee Replaces Old Finance Division.

Completion of the only official agency thru which contributions may be made to the Republican Presidential campaign was announced yesterday by Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, chairman of the Republican finance committee of Illinois.

Gen. Hammond.

In addition to Gen. Hammond the committee consists of Lester Armour, vice chairman; George W. Rossetter, treasurer, and an advisory group of 33 citizens, including 14 women. This committee has replaced the old Illinois division of the Republican finance committee in compliance with the Hatch act.

Law Requires Accounting.

"In order to be properly accounted for, as required by law, and in order to insure their use for the purpose for which they are made, all individual contributions should be sent to headquarters of the committee at 80 East Jackson boulevard," Gen. Hammond said.

"Various independent solicitations of campaign funds, including chain letters, have come to the attention of the committee. These groups should get in touch with the Illinois committee so proper use may be made of the funds. Warning must be made against various forms of unauthorized solicitation."

C. B. Goodspeed, treasurer of the Republican national committee, also urged all those who wish to contribute to the G. O. P. drive to communicate with the Illinois committee, telephone Wab. 9055.

Schroeder Tells of Rackets.

Werner Schroeder, national committee from Illinois, said a number of "racket agencies are cashing in on the tremendous popular enthusiasm for Wendell L. Willkie for President" by means of unofficial solicitations.

Under the new committee, the division of funds is the same as formerly—50 per cent going to national committees and 50 per cent remaining in Illinois. The state central committee and the Cook county central committee receive their entire support from this fund.

Saturday Night in Elwood— It's a Time of Relaxation

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Elwood, Ind., Aug. 4 [Special].—Saturday nights in small middle western towns haven't changed much in the last 20 years save for the new and ecstatic dancing in the saloons favored by the younger generation.

What went on in Wendell L. Willkie's home town during the closing hours of the week last night probably was typical of hundreds of other communities of 10,000 or less in the fertile grain belts. It was a period of grateful relaxation, meeting neighbors downtown, showing off new babies, final purchases for the week-end, a glass of beer or a chocolate soda, and much gossiping on the corners—with Willkie and the war the leading topics.

Ballyhoo Bingo Game.

One innovation was the street microphone. Last night in Elwood two mechanically equipped barkers were at work on the street where most of the stores are located. One was ballyhooing a bingo game and putting in an occasional plug for an ice cream sociable in a Townsend club headquarters a few blocks away. The other called attention to a storeful of Willkie souvenirs, the production of which is keeping the novelty manufacturers busy.

But aside from the microphone voices, the fascinating hot-cha dances the youngsters were performing in the quasi-night clubs, and the open gambling at the bingo games, the American institution of Saturday night was about the same as most transplanted city dwellers recall it.

All Stores Are Open.

The majority of Elwood folks were downtown, mingling with farm families and the bingo enthusiasts, who, reports said, came from as far as Indianapolis, about 40 miles away. All the stores were open and a brisk business was going on. Summer yard goods had a seasonal call and there was a demand for the new style blue, brown or green sport shirts with short sleeves that the male youth currently fancies.

Elwood's two movie houses were showing westerns, and the number of bicycles propped near the entrances attested to the wisdom behind these bookings.

It was a hot night. The number of men with coats could be counted on the fingers of one hand. Neckties were not the rule. Babies wore next to nothing. Their mothers talked and fanned themselves and moved along slowly, stopping often for a new burst of greetings and then more talk.

Dancers Are Acrobatic.

Several of the saloons had five or six piece orchestras and dance floors about the size of those in city night clubs. Across these surfaces moved the young blood, in perfect and exciting tempo with the surprisingly good music. The way they danced drew wonder, but it did not produce nostalgia. Their acrobatic performances might not have pleased some, yet these typically American youngsters were wonderfully adept either in what appeared to be their more or less established routines, or in attempting some new pirouette. Moreover, they appeared to be completely happy.

When the music stopped most of the kids flocked to tables or booths. Some went to the bar. Beer and soft drinks ran about even in their preference, altho a few drank the hard stuff, in small highballs or "spiked" in a bottle of sweet soda.

They're Never Quiet.

They were never quiet, these blooming adolescents, either when they danced or when they sat, but they were not rowdy.

Out in the residential district most of the homes were dark during the evening, but voices drifting out from porches or chairs in the yard showed that some folks had stayed at home. Generally it was so quiet you could hear what the people on the next front porch were saying. Crickets chirped and occasionally a screen door slammed.

At intervals radios were heard, but rarely two in the same block. In a house near the fields at the edge of town some one had found a concert program or was playing a phonograph, and the powerful music of Tschaikowsky's Pathetique symphony poured from the open door and window, filling the night with majestic bul lonely sound. The symphony ended and far away a locomotive howled faintly, then once more the crickets ruled the night.

WAR VETERANS FORM WILLKIE CAMPAIGN GROUP

18 Set Up Committee for Election Drive.

War veterans are organizing to campaign for the election of their first President of the United States—Wendell L. Willkie, who was an artillery captain with the A. E. F. Formation of the Willkie War Veterans' National committee was announced last night after a meeting of men prominent in veterans' groups.

Among 18 veterans who set up the project were Congressman James E. Van Zandt (R., Pa.), three times national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Edward A. Hayes of Decatur, Ill., Edward E. Spafford of Brewster, N. Y., and Harry W. Colmery of Topeka, Kas., all former national commanders of the American Legion.

Edward F. McGinnis, past commander of the Cook county council of the Legion, was elected national director of the campaign committee. He left for Washington, D. C., last night to seek the approval of Joseph W. Martin Jr., house minority leader and new chairman of the Republican national committee.

Telegram Sent to Willkie.

A telegram was sent to Willkie embodying part of the statement issued by the group at the conclusion of its meeting, in the Morrison hotel. The statement said in part:

"The Veterans of the Spanish-American war and of the world war are overwhelmingly in favor of the election of Wendell L. Willkie as President of the United States.

"He knows war and, like the rest of us, wants no more of it for his country or for himself—but if war comes to us, it will be comforting to know that we have in the White House, as commander in chief of the army and navy, a man who was an officer in the last world war.

"We are just as patriotic now as we were in 1898 and 1917-'18. Our country comes first. It's because we want to save that country and to keep alive that freedom and liberty that Willkie and the rest of us fought to preserve that we are again mobilizing ourselves and our women [there are close to 10,000,000 in that group].

Termed Guard of Freedom.

"We are determined to place in the White House a man whose election will insure a continuation of democratic government, free enterprise, and adequate national defense.

"We can, with proper organization and inspirational direction, be the most effective group in this campaign. The incentive is there. We have a common bond. All veterans are urged to enlist for the period of the emergency to work for the greatest self-made veteran, business man, and leader offered to the American public in this generation."

The committee's operating quarters for the nation will be in room 802 at 100 West Monroe street. On an executive committee are Colmery, chairman; Van Zandt, first vice chairman, and Thomas R. Payne of Detroit, Mich., former national commander of the Disabled American War Veterans, second vice chairman.

Past Commander Hayes of the Legion was named chairman of the finance committee. Spokesman said the plan is a departure from the custom of having political work in behalf of a Presidential candidate done by a division of veterans' activities in national G. O. P. headquarters.

GREEN AND G. O. P. LEADERS DISCUSS FARM PROBLEMS

Dwight H. Green, Republican candidate for governor, and others interested in the Illinois farm problem, met yesterday in the La Salle hotel to discuss what matters to place before Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, with whom Green and others will meet today in Des Moines, Ia.

The group is expected to urge the need for Illinois of a sound soil conservation program, separate and distinct from crop control; a distinction between parity prices and parity income; the need for better means of distributing farm surpluses and an increase in income of the lower working class so that farm products can be purchased.

Those present with Green were Clarence Buck, Monmouth; John Brown, Kansas; Harold Crandall, Winnebago; Vaughn Douglass and Frank Moberly, Shirley; State Senator Simon E. Lantz; Stephen A. Day and William Stratton, candidates for congress at large; Werner Schroeder, Republican national committeeman; Lloyd E. Davis, Morrisonville; Earl Smith, Pike county, president of the Illinois Agricultural association, and Attorney Donald Kirkpatrick of the association.

The deadline for entry of all festival groups and individuals in the various contests of the 11th annual Chicagoland Music Festival is 6 p. m. today.

Signed entry blanks for vocalists, violinists, cornetists, accordionists, choruses, bands, flag swingers, and baton twirlers from out of Cook county must be in the festival office, Room 421, Tribune Tower, at that time. Those arriving after that hour will be returned.

Voice Contests Scheduled.

Preliminary west side and south side voice contests for Cook county men and women will be held starting at 7 p. m. tomorrow in the Graemere hotel, 113 North Homan avenue.

Two consecutive nights will be devoted to those who live on the west side, and on Thursday and Friday nights the south side singers will be heard in the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore drive. The public will be admitted to these contests. A 25 cent admission charge will be made.

These music teachers will attend a series of lectures and concerts, climaxed by the two festival events. Walter A. Erley, general manager of the school, plans to make this cooperation with the music festival an annual activity.

The convention will open at 9 a. m. today with registration in the school's headquarters at 410 South Michigan avenue. Among the convention speakers will be Georgia Kober, president of the school; Leo Podolsky, pianist, and P. Marinus Paulsen, composer.

VOLUNTEERS ORGANIZE TO BLOCK PADDING OF PRECINCT VOTE LISTS

George F. Barrett, Republican candidate for attorney general, said yesterday that the Illinois Volunteers Committee to Stop Vote Frauds is organizing a secret group of workers to make certain that the November polling lists are not padded. Barrett said trained workers would examine precinct lists in every doubtful ward to hunt out "floaters" and other illegal registrations.

"It is an established fact," Barrett said, "that in recent elections thousands of illegal votes have been given to Kelly-Nash-Nudelman candidates. That is not going to happen again, and the machine pay rollers who attempt such frauds will be detected and brought into court for punishment."

Barrett said that any persons with information on vote frauds, actual or potential, should turn it over to the committee, with headquarters at 39 South La Salle street, for investigation. He said names of such informants would be kept secret, and that any evidence of fraud would be handed over to County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki.

2 Women Hurt by Debris as Blast Sets House Afire

Two young women were injured last night by debris from an explosion and fire in a frame house at 1116 Cleveland avenue. Mrs. Geane Calamia, 19 years old, 2909 Clybourn avenue, was struck on the head by debris. Eleanor Piscitello, 16, of 1117 Cleveland, was cut on the arm by flying glass. Mrs. Calamia was walking past the building when the explosion occurred. Miss Piscitello was playing ball in the street. Deputy Fire Chief Anthony Mullaney estimated the damage at $1,500. Chief Otto Dahl of the 2d Battalion said gas escaping from an open jet on the kitchen stove caused the explosion.

500 ACCORDION DEVOTEES PLAY AT FETE IN PARK

5,000 Enjoy Program at Starved Rock.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Starved Rock State Park, Utica, Ill., Aug. 4 [Special].—The accordion was acclaimed one of America's most popular musical instruments today at an all-day accordion festival in which 500 players participated. The festival was attended by more than 5,000 men, women and children, seated on the state park lawn here.

Hundreds of those who played will go to Chicago Aug. 17 to play in a 1,000 piece accordion band which will be featured at THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S 11th annual Chicagoland Music Festival in Soldiers' field. Capt. Howard Stube, chairman of instrumental participation in that festival, and who will direct the band in Soldiers' field, was a guest conductor here this afternoon.

Valued At $112,500.

The value of the instruments in the massed band today was evaluated at $112,500 by Ray Bannon of La Salle, Ill., who was elected president of a newly formed Illinois accordion band association.

Let's take a typical family that attended the all-day outing here. From four miles northwest of Sycamore came Catharine Lee, 14 years old. Dressed in white slacks and blouse, with a white sailor hat, red, white and blue anklets and wearing saddle shoes, she was one of the most enthusiastic players. She brought with her her $350 accordion, her father, Marshall Lee, 57, a farmer of 647 acres; her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lee, of two miles east of Sycamore, and her sister Jessie, 30.

The most popular pieces played were "God Bless America," "Playmates," and "Neapolitan Nights."

Five Counties Represented.

La Salle, Peoria, De Kalb, Winnebago, and Champaign counties were represented by 15 groups in the massed accordion band. Other conductors for this band were Joe S. Daurer, composer and arranger of De Kalb; Paul Miners, accordion teacher of Chicago; Larry Yester, teacher and director of Birmingham, Ala. Among the speakers were J. Bradford Pengelly, editor of Presto Music Times of Chicago, and John C. Gerstner, editor of the Accordion World magazine of New York.

In addition to Mr. Bannon, the other officers of the accordion association are W. W. Cheney, vice president, of La Salle; Mr. Daurer, secretary treasurer, and the board of governors, Clifford Lloyde of Champaign, L. E. Cheney of De Kalb, Gene Elchar of Rockford, and Mr. Gerstner and George L. Byerly of Peoria, and H. L. Houghton of Decatur.

24 PASSENGERS HURT WHEN I. C. CARS OVERTURN

Central City, Ky., Aug. 4 (AP).—Twenty-four passengers were injured, one seriously, when the rear three cars of the Louisiane train of the Illinois Central railroad were derailed early today and overturned four miles north of here. Dozens of other passengers were shaken up. The train was bound from New Orleans to Louisville.

P. C. Pettit of Memphis, Tenn., chief dispatcher for the road was injured seriously about the face and body.

Crew members said the accident occurred when the iron tire of one of the small trailer wheels under the engine cab worked loose and damaged about 40 lengths of track.

The two Pullmans on the end of the train and the chair car immediately in front of them turned over onto their sides, throwing passengers against the down side of the cars. Many of the injured were asleep.

POLISH DAY HEAD GETS GREETING FROM PRESIDENT

Leon C. Nyka, president of the Polish Day association, yesterday announced receipt of a message from President Roosevelt expressing the President's belief that the Polish Day festival "will inspire all who participate with a renewed determination to be ever faithful to the glorious heritage which is theirs as American citizens."

The festival will be next Sunday in Riverview park. Proceeds will go to the Polish War relief, the Ambulance fund, and the American Red Cross.

Among those scheduled to speak are Mayor Kelly, Count Potocki, the Polish ambassador; M. S. Szymczak, member of the Federal Reserve board, and Senator James M. Slattery.

FOUND DEAD IN GARAGE.

Henry Schlayer, 53 years old, a carpenter, was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning yesterday in the garage behind his home at 1137 Schneider street, Oak Park.

"Yes, sir! These exhibition trains are a wonderful help to us farmers. Why, I've learned more about seed corn this afternoon than I have in years. Those pupils of yours, too, Miss Brown—they're sure taking everything in."

"They certainly are, especially the livestock exhibits. Most of the children are 4-H boys and girls, and never miss a chance to learn more about farming.

"Your railroad is doing a splendid work with this train. Is this the first one you've ever had?"

"Oh no! The Illinois Central has operated a lot of trains to help farmers. For instance, we've had the Purebred Sire Special, Dairy and Poultry Special, Agricultural College on Wheels, Livestock Special, Soy Bean Special. Then, too, our men are busy making soil surveys, conducting group studies and advising with individual farmers on better methods, herd improvement, sanitation and other problems.

"For years we have lent farmers purebred dairy sires of the Holstein, Jersey and Guernsey breeds free to improve their herds."

CONFISCATION BY JOKER.

The house has now voted to repeal a law which has been on the books for a little over a month. The senate is expected to take similar action. The law in question was first called to public attention some weeks ago by the Illinois Manufacturers' association in a survey of recent legislation altering the relations of industry to the government.

The measure permits the secretary of the navy to commandeer any manufacturing facilities if in his and the President's judgment he is unable to come to an agreement with the owners on the use of the plant. Seized properties can then be operated directly by the government or turned over to some one else and the secretary is given authority to fix the compensation to be paid for the property so taken.

The story is that the provision was inserted in the conference report on the naval bill at the request of a couple of rear admirals who appeared at a session of the conferees. Nothing was said about the change in committee and nothing was said later when the conference report was submitted to the house and the senate. The members of both houses voted for the Nazification of industry without knowing what they were doing. No printed copies of the conference report were available when the votes were taken.

There was no need for legislation of this sort. No evidence has been presented of recalcitrance on the part of private industry toward the rearmament program. Every bit of available evidence shows that industry is eager to coöperate. The law as it was slipped over congress and approved by the President had its origins in the lust of burocrats for domination and political spoils.

Legislation of this sort can legalize revolution, but it cannot promote the rearmament of the nation. There was a time when citizens could look to the courts for protection of their rights against a rapacious government, but that assurance is not worth as much as it formerly was. The citizen is learning to look to congress for protection, and when he finds jokers like this one slipped over the experience is more than a little disquieting.

In all probability there would have been no repeal of the section in question if an election had not been immediately in prospect. There is no reason to doubt that Mr. Roosevelt, with his characteristic distrust of business and equally characteristic thirst for power, favored the joker. Thus far there has been no intimation from the White House that he disapproves of the conduct of the naval officers concerned. He read the bill and signed it. If the law is now to be repealed it will not be because he disapproves the totalitarian organization of the nation's economy but because he doesn't want to give the opposition a powerful evidence of his real designs.

Nothing like this law has ever been enacted before in time of peace. It places every manufacturing facility in the country under the thumb of the burocracy. It invites all the evils of confiscation, including large profits for selected Democrats.

Under private management American industry has become renowned thruout the world for its productivity. This law, if it is allowed to remain on the books, can reduce productivity to the burocratic level. Navy officers who know no more about factory management than can be learned at sea can be placed in charge of critically important industries. With no more experience of labor relations than can be acquired in giving orders to men who can be shot for disobedience and jailed for grumbling, these officers can be entrusted with directing tens of thousands of civilian workmen.

There was no need for such a law and it can serve only to hamper the nation's effort to prepare to resist an enemy.

TAXING EXCESS PROFITS.

Altho congress raised the taxes to be paid next year on this year's income of both individuals and corporations, the President is insisting that congress pass another tax law raising taxes still further. The newest proposal is to be a tax on excess profits.

What are "excess profits"? The name itself suggests something above normal. The idea is that some businesses enjoy high profits as a result of the war, and a graduated tax on the over peacetime earnings seems appropriate when men are dying in battle.

Having been asked to frame a bill imposing an excess profits tax, the technical staff of the congressional joint committee on taxation has, it is reported, submitted a plan for a levy upon earnings of corporations above the average for a number of prewar years. Where profits during the prewar years have been abnormally low, the plan is said to provide that the taxpayer may elect to have the tax calculated as the excess over and above 8 per cent of the capital invested.

This is the plan followed in Great Britain in the last war, and which has been adopted by both Canada and Great Britain in the present war. But President Roosevelt, who during his 8 years has had some novel ideas about taxation, which congress has on several occasions rejected, is said to be standing out for a different plan. He wants the tax to be measured exclusively by the percentage earned on invested capital, and stiffly graduated.

Such a tax would impose heavy burdens on businesses which had been well managed in peacetime but which had not accumulated a lot of antiquated equipment still on the books. On the other hand, corporations which might be profiting enormously from the war, but had still in their accounts a considerable quantity of obsolescent equipment would get off lightly, if not scot free. The newer industries would be discriminated against, and older industries would be exempt or moderately dealt with. Such a tax would penalize the concern which is accumulating its capital, and the one which does not require a large amount of fixed assets.

The excess profits tax as proposed by the President is particularly unfair because it follows so soon after the repeal of the surplus earnings tax. The latter forced corporations under penalty to disburse substantially all of each year's earnings. That reduced the invested capital of many corporations and will therefore increase their excess profits tax if the President's plan prevails.

A further objection to the invested capital test for an excess profits tax is the difficulty of agreeing upon what constitutes invested capital. The complexity of the last excess profits tax "clogged the administrative machinery and even threatened a breakdown of the tax administration," Secretary of the Treasury Houston once said. It will require much time and thought to develop an excess profits tax which is equitable and workable.

THE WAR CONSPIRACY FAILED.

Wendell Willkie was too clever and too patriotic to fall for the conspiracy to get us into war with Germany by agreeing to the act of war of selling warships to the country with which she is at war.

They were false friends who urged this course upon him. Well they know that Roosevelt will get the war monger vote and the vast sums of war monger money.

If Willkie had fallen into the trap set for him, the election would not have been necessary. The third term would have won. The republic would have fallen.

PROSECUTE THE TAX FIXERS.

The board of managers of the Chicago Bar association has, after an inexplicable delay, made public an emasculated version of the report of its special subcommittee that investigated fixing of personal property assessments in the county assessor's office.

The report gives little more light on the practices followed than the public was given last winter when Assessor Clark discovered the shady practices in his office and set out to clean them up. He has fired the members of his staff who were involved. Altho the bar association admits that lawyers were involved with certain so-called tax service agencies in the frauds, the pallid report of the board of managers fails to name them. It names no one, in fact.

The subcommittee which the bar association appointed made an exhaustive investigation of the frauds, in which it was given full coöperation by the assessor. Its report discussed specific cases and named the men active in them.

It has been gossip for weeks that the board of managers considered this report too hot to handle. The rewritten report which was finally made public tends to confirm this. It has been said that the board of managers feared the original report was libelous. Since truth is a defense against libel, such fears, if they were entertained, indicate an unwarranted lack of confidence in the ability and integrity of the men whom the bar assigned to the investigation.

The recommendation of the board of managers that authorities prosecute offenders for the misdemeanor of filing fraudulent returns is both superfluous and insufficient. Forgery, bribery, and other crimes were committed. The men involved should be prosecuted for these offenses, and for criminal conspiracy, and sent to the penitentiary, not the county jail.

State's Attorney Courtney should lose no time in placing the matter before the grand jury. His first act should be to subpena, for the grand jurors, not the wishy-washy report of the board of managers, but the original report of the subcommittee that dug up the facts. Meanwhile, the conduct of the board of managers has done nothing to convince the public that the organized legal profession of this community either desires or is able to keep its own house clean.

PRE-BLITZKRIEG.

On the back page of THE TRIBUNE a few days ago a number of pictures taken at the Rock Island arsenal were published. One showed a tank in process of assembly. The tank looked pretty small, but perhaps it's all right.

Another picture showed 37 millimeter antitank guns nearing completion. All the evidence from the European battlefields indicates that these weapons are about as effective against the armor of modern tanks as pea shooters would be.

Still another picture showed some French 75s, left over from the last war, being fitted with new and improved carriages. Modernizing the guns will help some, but not much. Competent military observers have testified to the relative ineffectiveness of the 75 compared with field guns of larger caliber. The 75 was good enough a generation or two ago, but the successful army today employs a heavier weapon with greater range and striking power.

The 75 was an ideal gun when cannon were horse drawn. The gun was about as heavy as it could be in view of the fact that it had to be pulled over difficult terrain by animal weight and strength. Now cannon are motor drawn, and larger calibers, which were always preferable, are practical. That fact has been recognized in Europe, but our army is still operating at the old stand.

In short, the pictures from Rock Island reveal that our government is continuing to manufacture pre-blitzkrieg weapons which are outmoded, ineffective, outranged, and obsolete. That is where the billions for the army are going.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

KEY TO A RHYMING RIDDLE.

On July 17 this column published a brain teaser called "Pearls from Great Poems"—a patchwork set of verses, composed of lines from poems that can be found in the anthologies. It was a compilation by "Aitcheff" [Harwood Frost], who said that he had never written a line of verse in his life but remembered the work of his betters.

We intended to give a key to it a few days later, but have been dilly-dallying because to reprint the verses and give the sources would require too much space. Some readers have been clamoring for it, however, so we have decided to publish the key only. There are possibilities for a good parlor game in this thing, and the subscription department of the Tribune will supply the text of the puzzle to all and sundry, if properly approached with inclosed stamps.

"Pearls from Great Poems" contained 20 lines. We will number them from 1 to 20 and proceed with the elucidation:

1. Byron's "Childe Harold's Pilgrimage" [Canto iii., stanza 21; the "Waterloo" passage]. 2. "Hohenlinden," by Thomas Campbell [first line]. 3. Longfellow's "Excelsior." 4. "Lines Written for a School Declamation," by David Everett. 5. "The Cradle of the Deep," by Emma Willard. 6. "The Battle of Blenheim," by Robert Southey. 7. Give it up; "Aitcheff" has lost his notes on it, and a search of possible sources, such as Milton's "Lycidas" does not reveal. It's not in "The Home Book of Quotations." 8. Sir Walter Scott's "Marmion." 9. Longfellow's "Psalm of Life." 10. Pope's "Essay on Man" [line 289]. 11. "A Cradle Hymn," by Isaac Watts. 12. Byron's "Childe Harold's Pilgrimage." 13. Byron's "The Dream." 14. "The Rainbow," by Wordsworth [adapted]. 15. Longfellow's "Psalm of Life." 16. "New England Primer" of 1691, adapted from Luke xix, 4. 17. William Cullen Byrant's "The Battlefield." 18. Thomas Gray's "Elegy in a Country Churchyard." 19. Shakespeare's "Macbeth," act 1, scene i. 20. John Dryden's "Alexander's Feast."

AS SHE DESIRES THEM.

These things spell deepest pleasure to my mind:

Soft linen damask towels to dry my face,
(The family much prefers the terry kind);
My pen and scissors always in their place;
Chaise longue with satin throw in my own room—
An airy chamber with a lovely view;
A pink chiffon robe trimmed in marabou;
Sweet scented bath salts, French soap and perfume;
An odd job man, strong, sober, and alert,
Who'll weed and dig and trim as he is told
And not think he knows more than any skirt—
Ah! such a man is worth his weight in gold!
Kind Fate, pray grant me, if you cannot these,
Exclusive rights to my Corona, please!

The Decline of Soap Box Oratory.

Elbowing thru Washington square on a recent evening, and making the rounds of the packing box pulpits, I was saddened by the Decline and Fall of Bughouse Square! Gone was the blood-and-thunder of an earlier era of beetle brow and iron lung. Gone was the Chautauqua spirit of a happier day when Doc Ben Reitman was the patron of the fresh air forum, and the underdog was king. Gone was the rumbling oratory of John Lockman.

In their place I found an anemic hodgepodge of wheedlers and cajolers—a thin piped lot of amateurs in the art of persuasion who couldn't have lifted their voices as hecklers in the good old days. Even the audiences have become decadent! Standing on the steps of the Newberry library one of the new generation was delivering himself of a harangue for the Republican party—and the crowd was listening! Ten, fifteen years ago he would have been hooted down.

But worst of all is the demise of subtlety in passing the collection bonnet. Today the speakers circulate, hat in hand, with the cringing hopelessness of a stem on the main drag. It's all very sad. I remember Dave Tallman, one of the best in the golden age of free speech. Dave felt he needed a vacation after a busy summer seminar at the square, and so at the conclusion of his throaty discourses he would make an announcement—he was going away for some formal education. "So that when I return," he would say, "you will greet me not as Mr. Tallman, but——" in a thick guttural, "——as Dr. Tallman." Then he would proudly mingle with the rabble and allow them to chip in toward his study.

A CHILD'S PRAYER, 1940.

Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray Thee, Lord, the souls to keep
Of other children far away
Who have no homes in which to stay,
Nor know where is their daily bread,
Or where at night to lay their head;
But wander thru a broken land
Alone and helpless. Take their hand,
Dear Father-Mother God, I pray;
Keep them safe by night and day,
And give them courage when they wake.
This I ask for Jesus' sake
Who was a little Child, like them.
God bless us all tonight. Amen. Carillon.

A Hair of the Dog That Bites 'Em?

Dr. Cutter would tell you that it would not be "reasonable" to drink iced tea to stave off heat stroke [July 30]. He has written about this in one of his wise articles.

If you cannot turn to this, you might consult the "Handbook of Therapy," edited by Dr. Morris Fishbein [eleventh edition, 1937], page 726, where you will learn that hot coffee—not cold—is one of the remedies prescribed for heat exhaustion.

A View of Malta from Pegasus.

You might add to the lore of Malta [July 29] Lord Byron's cynical verses:

Adieu, sirocco, sun and sweat!
Adieu, ye cursed streets of stairs!
[How surely he who mounts you swears!]
Thou little military hothouse!
I'll not offend with words uncivil,
And rudely wish thee at the Devil,
But only stare from out my casement
And ask, for what is such a place meant?

EMPLOY HORMONES WITH CAUTION.

NOWADAYS, with so much talk about hormones and the wonders which they perform, it may be well to call attention to the fact that these products may be dangerous—particularly when used carelessly. Minute quantities can produce powerful reactions. Like T. N. T., a little will go a long way.

When a victim of myxedema [too little output from the thyroid] blossoms into an apparently normal person—stimulated by artificially fed gland substances—we realize that we are dealing with a great medical triumph.

The first historic case occurred but a few years ago when a physician by the name of Murray administered a glycerin extract to a 46 year old woman. Improvement was so startling that it was scarcely believable. She survived, aided by daily doses of this potent preparation, for nearly 30 years.

The resulting wave of enthusiasm which swept over the country was perhaps unfortunate. Many drug stores sold the medication and some people tried it on their own responsibility. Soon thereafter reports began to appear in which individuals developed symptoms of toxic goiter because they had been taking too much. No doubt a few lives were shortened because the material was employed without adequate supervision, sometimes without real reason.

What does this extract do? It speeds up the body's engine—with a more rapid heart beat and loss of weight. Furthermore, it has a pronounced effect on the way that sugar and calcium are used and—in children—it influences growth profoundly. Occasionally it can be utilized for the treatment of obesity but it should be clear that the consequences may be more disastrous than carrying about a few pounds of excess avoirdupois.

But when the patient is logy and thick mentally, when portliness is increasing, with sluggish movements and the desire to sit all the time, it is the drug of choice. It may supply the essential substance required to transform him from indifference to alertness. But the wise physician will make sure that the need is clear. Careful tests must be made to prove that the victim's own gland is lazy or deficient.

Another important chemical is derived from the outside of the adrenals which lie adjacent to the kidneys. In Addison's disease, in which the secretion of these special cells is lacking, a seeming miracle is brought about. Tablets of the preparation may be imbedded beneath the skin, where slow absorption permits the body to take in just as much as it desires.

The so-called growth hormone is frequently valuable in youngsters who have diabetes and who are underdeveloped. In other words, they may retain infantile characteristics far beyond the age at which they should be lost. Subsequent to its administration there may follow an increase in appetite and well being, altho the insulin dosage should perhaps be larger. Numerous cases of this character have responded satisfactorily to the feeding of anterior pituitary plus thyroid in small amounts. The plan is advised along with plenty of calcium, as little ones may sometimes rebel against injections.

But the end is not yet and we must regard our present day usage of most of these compounds as trial flights. All the more reason for caution, as we may be laying the foundation for some later out-of-balance symptoms which we do not now understand. We can take advantage of the various advances of science without trying foolhardy experiments.

EAT LESS.

Mrs. A. Y. writes: Is it safe for a patient with heart trouble to take glandular products to reduce?

REPLY.

Rarely advised—with or without heart disease. Use balanced but smaller meals. Getting rid of excess poundage will relieve the pumping organ of a goodly amount of strain. In this fashion you may banish your cardiac symptoms.

LOW BLOOD PRESSURE.

R. T. W. writes: What is the cause of low blood pressure?

REPLY.

Some are constitutionally weak and hence will present this symptom. More outdoor activity, sunshine, and nutritious meals may be helpful. If your health otherwise is excellent and you feel well—thank your lucky stars that your pressure is no higher.

SHINGLES.

A. L. K. writes: What causes shingles? How long does it last?

REPLY.

A virus, the exact nature of which is unknown, altho it appears to be closely related to the cause of chickenpox. Nerve depots are attacked. The duration varies from two or three weeks to several months.

PAY FOR SOLDIERS.

Western Springs, Ill., Aug. 2.—If world conditions call for a larger standing army, congress should provide the plan with salaries for soldiers in keeping with industrial competition. Such a plan should ease the tension on the subject of conscription.

Congress has been prodigal with appropriations of far less importance than adequate defense on the theory of emergencies. Why not plan for a nonemergency army need on a realistic basis?

Our standing army need is a good campaign issue for the Republican party on which to win the election. It would also provide a congress minded to take care of the issue on the basis of the will of the majority of the nation's voters.

A BIT OF ECONOMY.

La Grange, Ill., July 31.—On a recent western trip the writer learned that men of the United States department of agriculture, who have spent years of faithful service in the department's field service, are being let out. These men are employed at the various department experiment stations.

At a time when research along agricultural crop lines is so important, men who have contributed greatly to valuable studies are being dropped. Some have doubtless bought homes which will have to be sacrificed.

Men whose work has been of the highest order are being let out to save a few thousand dollars, while the government is spending millions for other purposes whose value is questioned.

We do not hear that any of the Triple A activities are to be curtailed in any way. But the "economy" program is to hit men who are too busy to play politics—men whose work can hardly be spared. They are the ones who are now being sacrificed by the Democratic administration.

POINTS TO AGENCIES' USE.

Chicago, July 31.—"Workingman's" complaint makes me laugh! He didn't have to go to the employment agencies, and I wonder if he realizes that they are not charities but that they have to pay rent, light, printing, and heavy telephone bills. They work purely on a commission and are on the telephone all day long trying to place people like him. If he doesn't like fees, there is the Illinois Employment Service.

There is a state employment board which keeps unethical agencies in line. I wonder if he realizes if he didn't go to an agency he would have to write innumerable letters, make countless telephone calls, and go on wild goose chases. By staying at home and being with an agency some one else does the work for him. Play that on your piano.

HOW THE PEOPLE FEEL.

Chicago, July 31.—Do our representatives in Washington know this government of ours is supposed to be representative of the people's ideas? Couldn't you publish a list of the senators and congressmen from Illinois? Perhaps if a few of our congressmen get a good idea of how the people feel about the conscription bill they may vote against it. This bill would be nothing short of political domination. Fellow Americans, if you are against such measures, write or wire your congressman at once. We have been asleep too long.

RALPH DAUBER.

MARRIED MEN EXEMPT.

Chicago, July 31.—I note that the army high command has indicated that married men would not be called to active service under the pending conscription bill. Are we to understand that if the present bill is passed, limiting service to the 21 to 31 age group, married men having no children would be exempt? If so, then congress would do well to throw this bill in the waste basket. Why should such married men whose wives are permanently employed be exempt from military service?

WILL J. FLEMING.

FROM A TOMMY TO HIS MOTHER.

Hinsdale, Ill., July 31.—Here is a letter written by a British Tommy to his mother in this country:

"Well, ma, here I am in England. We didn't run away and don't let any one tell you we did. The field of battle got a bit small so we came away to get to a bigger one. We had such fun on the beach at Dunkirk that I wouldn't have left it for anything, but it got a bit hot so I went for a swim—and a couple of airplanes with machine guns said to themselves, 'That's the boy we've missed all the way from eight miles north of Brussels' and did their best to remedy it, but a petty officer on a destroyer threw me a life line and they missed again and I clambered aboard and the petty officer said, 'It's all very well you just arriving in your shirt, how am I to know you aren't a fifth columnist?' And I said, If we argue much longer neither of us will know anything.' And I showed him my only other property than the shirt—an identity disk, and since then—talk about paper shortage—they have written my name and number on every piece of paper in sight, and soon, I am told, I will be allowed to go home.

"Say, it's great to be in England. I'll be seeing you! Son No. 4 Mike."

JOB FOR THE REPUBLICANS.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—If the Republicans expect a rebirth of moral consciousness it behooves them to roll up their sleeves and practice the ancient art of midwifery. Otherwise another still born child will be laid to rest along with our old horse and buggy ideals in the New Deal cemetery.

Here are a few of the things to be overcome. In the first place the solid south.

The Kelly-Hague plunderbund count the votes in their fiefs. The F. D. R.-ophiles will follow their Pied Piper of Utopia to the bottom of the river.

None of these elements is amenable to reason, so it will be necessary to get patriotic men and women to comb every precinct to get out the vote that usually stays at home and is willing to let George do it. Only an organization that is willing to do that task will be able to save the United States from a fate worse than Hitlerism.

HARRY E. HUSBELL.

RED CROSS TURNS HIM DOWN.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Every year the Red Cross puts on a drive and gets from the public hundreds of thousands of dollars. Now Uncle Sam has given them $50,000,000. Besides keeping a lot of people in jobs at fat salaries, who gets this money?

Last week I applied to Red Cross headquarters for food as my children were actually crying of hunger. I was turned down flat by the "Greatest Mother on Earth." What care they if kids don't eat? The personnel of most organizations of this kind are parasites who live year after year on public charity money. While children go hungry they buy automobiles and throw banquets with money intended for the distressed.

The bringing of poor children from England will be welcomed by the Red Cross. What a whale of a sales talk this can produce.

HUNGRY FAMILY.

HIS CONSCIENCE.

Wheaton, Ill., July 31.—The President's well trained conscience is now to the fore. His "conscience" forced him into a third term candidacy; his "conscience" forces him to demand conscription.

I am tired of living under a Cæsar whose conscience justifies an unbalanced budget, coddling of communists [like Bridges], wild schemes of spending, constant war hysteria, not to mention a conscience which permits a President to contradict himself again and again, and one whose conscience never permits him to admit a mistake. Have done with Conscience. Its real names are just Self, Ego, Pride, Vanity, and overweening desire for power and fame!

LANDLORD WITHIN RIGHTS.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—We have lived at our present address for six years and have been good tenants or we would not have been allowed to remain this long. Suddenly, in fact, several days ago, after a member of my family went to the renting agents' office to register a complaint about our ice box and was told we should buy an electric one, we received a registered letter stating that we would not have our lease renewed and giving an order that we vacate by Sept. 30, when the lease expires. 1. No reason was given and we can think of no good one. 2. Upon rereading our lease we note a clause which reads: "Lessee hereby waives all notice of any election by lessor hereunder, demand for rent, notice to quit, demand for possession and any and all notices and demands which may or shall be required by any statute of this state relating to forcible entry and detainer or to landlord and tenant, or any other statute of law." That clause could apply in our case. 3. We wish to know if by that clause we forfeit by law any right to question the right not to renew our lease, or is this clause contrary to the law?

M. B.

1. They are under no legal obligation to give a reason.

2. Even without such a clause, the landlord would not be obliged to give advance notice of his unwillingness to renew.

3. See 2.

Section 12 of the Illinois landlord and tenant act provides: "When the tenancy is for a certain period and the term expires by the terms of the lease, the tenant is then bound to surrender possession and no notice to quit or demand of possession is necessary." Hence, whenever either party wishes to be in a position to count on the ensuing year, it is proper for him to ask the other party for an agreement and if it is refused to make other arrangements.

If the lease contains an express renewal clause, the effect depends on the wording.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Aug. 5, 1864

Admiral Farragut won the battle of Mobile bay, sealing up the last important port of the confederate blockade runners. When Farragut's leading monitor, the Tecumseh, was blown out of the water by a mine, the leading frigate stopped and lost headway. Farragut, on the second frigate, uttered his famous "Damn the torpedoes!" and sailed his wooden ship directly thru the mine field to take position above the defending fort.

DESIGN CONTEST AMATEURS GET CHANCE AT JOB

Chicago Concern to Hire Top Ranking Winner.

Amateurs who enter the Tribune American Fashions contest have an added incentive to make a name for themselves in the world of fashion designing.

This arose yesterday when the firm of Eisenberg & Sons, creators of women's apparel, offered to place on its designers' staff the top ranking amateur among the first six winners of the contest. The offer accompanied a letter from Sam J. Eisenberg indorsing the contest.

"We want to do everything within our power to help any movement that will make people realize there are wonderful designers in America and that the merchandise made here is just as smart as anything created in any other country," the letter said. "It is regrettable that it took a war to make people even think about us, and, since THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has been so generous in its attitude, we feel it is our duty to assist in any way that we can."

Contest Looks to America.

The contest looks to America as the style capital of the world now that Paris fashion houses have been eclipsed by Nazi occupation. The contest is open to professional and amateur designers thruout the country. All designs must be original.

The sketches are to be in the American Fashions contest office of THE TRIBUNE by Aug. 15.

Twenty-five cash prizes are offered —one of $3,000, one of $2,000, three of $500, and 20 of $50. Models made from winning sketches will be exhibited at two style shows the evening of Oct. 2 in the W-G-N studio. Descriptions of the selected gowns will be broadcast on a coast to coast hookup.

In Chicago 25 Years.

The house of Eisenberg & Sons has been established in Chicago for a quarter of a century. The winning amateur will be given opportunity to work with the company's two well known style creators, Virginia Loeb and Irma Kirby.

Miss Loeb said the firm was prominent in the movement to bring cotton out of the kitchen and into the drawing room. It took nail heads out of the tool box, too, and gave them the glamor of sequins.

"Our firm, nevertheless, has stood for typical American design," said Miss Loeb. "We never have been influenced by Paris styles, but have endeavored to create gowns suitable to the life of the American woman."

300 TINY PLANES COMPETE IN GAS MODEL CONTEST

Three hundred tiny planes flew over Chicago yesterday. They were entries in the fourth annual midwestern states gas model contest conducted by the Gas Model Aeronaut club and the park district at Model Flying field, 79th street and Kostner avenue.

Trophies and prizes valued at $700 were presented to winners of the various events. The major award, a five year trophy, was won by Edward Manthey of Maywood for high time of the entire contest. Monthey also won first place in class C division. Other first places were won by Carl Goldberg, 4720 North Lawndale avenue, class A, and Edmond Lauer of Crawfordsville, Ind., class B.

The contest was sanctioned by the National Aeronautics association and the Academy of Model Aeronauts. It was supervised by Neil J. Pollock of the Gas Model Aeronaut club and John J. Rappold of the park district.

FILM DIRECTOR, ACCUSED BY SIX BOYS, ENDS LIFE

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 4 (AP).—Gus Meins, 47 year old film director, recently charged with morals offenses against six youths, was found dead today in his automobile.

Joseph K. Coady, attorney for Meins, expressed the belief the director, who left home Wednesday night after telling his son, Douglas, "You probably won't see me again," took his life by inhaling carbon monoxide fumes. A rubber hose extended from the exhaust pipe to the interior of the car.

Meins was born in Germany. He was a painter and astronomer and at one time a newspaper cartoonist. He began his screen career in 1919 with the old Fox studios. He specialized in comedies. His most recent direction was in "Ladies in Distress," "The Higgins Family," and "His Exciting Night."

Youth Drowns in Quincy's Municipal Swimming Pool

Quincy, Ill., Aug. 4 [Special].—Russell Mansperger, 20 years old, drowned in the municipal swimming pool this afternoon. His body was found in nine feet of water. He was believed to have been seized with cramps.

NATION TURNS ITS FASHION EYE ON CITY THIS WEEK

Apparel Makers to Show 10,000 Fall Styles.

Fashion interest in the 350 million dollar a year wash apparel industry will center here this week in the Palmer House. Fall market week, promoted by the Chicago National Wash Dress and Apparel association, opened yesterday. It will attract dealers from every part of the country for a showing of 10,000 styles developed for American women by American designers, using American-made fabrics and supplies.

The industry assembles here at this time, its leaders feel, in a new light of favor emanating from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's nation-wide contest of fashion design, the purpose of which is to encourage and develop American fashions.

Need American Designers.

"The wash apparel industry," said Glenn G. Hayes, executive director of the association, "represents the bulk of the 'ready to wear' clothing market in this country. For that reason we need designers trained in the American way—trained to create the smart, simplified styles that make an immediate appeal to the practical demands of our women.

"The timely move by THE TRIBUNE to uncover designing talent thru its American Fashions contest has the hearty indorsement of this industry. I believe there is a vast wealth of designing talent in this country and that it can be discovered and used in all types of ready to wear garments, from the lowest to the highest price brackets."

Cater to Most Women.

The majority of American women are clothed by the wash apparel manufacturers, Mr. Hayes' surveys show. This is the industry which produces the garments that range in retail selling price from $1 to $16.75. Altho the trade name, wash apparel, suggests to the layman only washable clothes, the industry actually takes in most of the rayons and even woolens. That means a year round business.

The market week showing will demonstrate, Mr. Hayes said, that the production trend in the industry has taken a 40 per cent turn to junior models for high school and college girls.

Four hundred of the new styles selected from the extensive market week display will be presented in a style show Thursday night in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House.

Boy, 12, Found at Bottom of Swimming Pool, Lives

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 4 (AP).—Twelve year old Raymond Newman is being pointed out in his neighborhood as the boy who drowned and lived to tell about it. Limp and unconscious, he was found yesterday at the bottom of a playground swimming pool as the water was drained off after the pool had closed for the day. Lifeguard John Nolan applied artificial respiration. Within 15 minutes, Raymond was breathing freely.

2 CULTISTS HELD IN SNAKE INQUIRY END FOOD STRIKE

Adel, Ga., Aug. 4 (AP).—A three day hunger strike was abandoned in jail here today by two members of a religious cult which handles poisonous snakes "when the power is on" to demonstrate belief that "faith" will counteract the venom from their fangs.

Held on charges of assault with intent to murder, pending developments in the condition of 6 year old Letha Mae Rowan, who was bitten by a copperhead snake during rites in a farmhouse ten days ago, W. T. Lipham and Albert Rowan ate hearty breakfasts.

Rowan is the father of Letha Mae, said by relatives to be "doing fine."

Tomorrow a physician will examine Letha to determine her condition. When the case was called to the attention of authorities last week, the sheriff said her hand and arm were badly swollen and her tongue so thick she scarcely could talk. Yesterday an investigation of the death of a woman in Berrien county two years ago from snakebite got under way.

Mixup in Studio 'Props' Causes Injury to Actress

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 4 [Special].—Working in the movies is a headache to Carole Landis today. By tomorrow, she hopes, a bump on her head will have receded enough for her to return to work in the Hal Roach studios. Miss Landis' headache is the result of a mistake. A carnival riot scene was being filmed yesterday and the script called for Miss Landis to be hit on her head by a thrown vase. In such scenes a harmless "breakaway" is used. The mistake was that whoever threw the vase used the genuine article, and a slight concussion resulted.

OPEN CCC ROLLS TO YOUNG MEN IN COLLEGE CLASS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4 (AP).—Now college boys may join the civilian conservation corps. Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, today announced a modification of the corps' enrollment regulations which broadened the recruiting field.

"Young men attending college whose families are in the moderate income group now are eligible for enrollment in the CCC," McNutt said.

Officials said the idea is to transform CCC "from a relief agency into a true service organization, capable of supplying the needs of this country in matters of national defense and industrial rehabilitation."

McNutt said the expansion was decided upon following a series of conferences with James J. McEntee, CCC director. McEntee recommended the change, he said, "as a means of providing useful employment and vocational training for young men whose parents, while not on relief, are unable to give their sons the training needed to provide them a start in life."

Hopkinsville (Ky.) Hotel Burned; Damage $250,000

Hopkinsville, Ky., Aug. 4 (AP).—The 48 year old Hotel Latham was destroyed by fire today despite a four hour battle by firemen from three cities. Damage was estimated at $250,000. Two firemen and another man were injured. Thirty patrons escaped with most of their belongings.

HOW YOU CAN GET A CASH LOAN
QUICKLY AND SIMPLY

You can borrow $100 on your own signature if you can pay back $6.43 a month—See table for other loan plans—No credit questions asked of friends or relatives—Quick, private service.

YOU can get a personal loan—without red tape or delay—if you can repay in small monthly installments. All you do to apply for a loan at Household is to acquaint us with your problem. You need no bankable security—no endorsers or guarantors.

You may repay your loan on any of the schedules shown in the table below. Thus you may choose the payment plan which best fits your own needs and income.

Payments to fit your purse

Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will see, for instance, that monthly installments of $9.77 each will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.43 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

You will note that the sooner you repay the less your loan costs. Four monthly installments of $26.60 each, or a total of only $106.40, will repay a $100 loan in full. Installments shown in the table repay everything.

You are spared the embarrassment of asking friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. And no questions regarding your credit are asked of friends or relatives.

Considerate treatment

You may expect every consideration in case of sickness or unemployment while paying on a Household Finance loan. Last year we foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 20,000 loans. This action was taken only as protection against fraud.

Same rate to everyone

These installments include charges at Household's rate of 2½% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $100, and 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100. Andrew McNallys Active at Thousand Islands, N. Y.

Thousand Islands, N. Y., is a popular summer resort with many Chicagoans, among them the Andrew L. McNally family of Evanston, which has a summer home there. Mr. and Mrs. McNally are active on the entertainment committee of the Thousand Islands Yacht club, where a dinner-dance was given Saturday night for the competitors in the annual Thousand Islands Country club golf tournament, which was brought to a close yesterday.

Miss Eleanor McNally was playing well up toward the top in the woman's division of the tournament. Her brother, Andrew McNally Jr., and his wife and their children are expected from New York to spend part of the summer with the McNallys.

Mrs. Nathaniel Owings and her twin daughters left Friday for Birchwood farm, Harbor Springs, Mich., the summer home of Mrs. Owings' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Otis. The twins will be a year old on Aug. 31 and Mrs. Owings is planning a double birthday cake for them. Mr. Owings expects to go to Harbor Springs for the birthday party and to remain over Labor day.

Mr. and Mrs. John Goodwille [Betty Kellogg] are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter, their second child, on Friday at Passavant hospital. Mrs. Goodwillie's mother, Mrs. John Kellogg, received the news in Colorado, where she is on a holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson L. Barnes Jr. are leaving tomorrow for Harbor Point, Mich., to spend two weeks with Mrs. Barnes Sr.

Ravinia Sights and Sounds

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

The Ravinia festival season came to an end over the week-end with a triumphal bang. There must have been other things of interest happening on Saturday night and yesterday afternoon, but it seemed as if every one was at the park on the North Shore.

Young and old, rich and poor, formally clad and the opposite to the point of definite negligee, were there—all intent on hearing, and seeing if possible, the great Kirsten Flagstad. Some who stood outside the pavilion used pocket mirrors to catch the image of the soprano on the platform. Others climbed trees or tried to balance on the spiked fence. Many of the audience, content to hear, made themselves comfortable on camp chairs, blankets, coats, and newspapers. The petunia beds will be rather a sorry sight today, for as many as could squeeze in sat on them.

There probably never were as many picnics at Ravinia as were held there Saturday evening and yesterday noon. Every inch of ground was in use by parties who had brought their supper or luncheon, hoping thus to obtain the pick of the free seats. One of the largest and gayest picnic parties on Saturday was composed of young married couples who had been to a cocktail party given by the Stewart Boals in Winnetka for their house guests, the Thomas Luckenbills of New York.

In this group was William Whipple Miller, who was receiving congratulations on the arrival of his second daughter and fourth child Friday night at Passavant hospital. Mrs. Miller's mother, Mrs. Percy A. Robbins, learned of the baby's birth at Candle, Alaska, where she is spending the summer with her son, James Robbins, and his family. The baby has been named Mary Owen.

A few of the many seen at the concert Saturday night were the Howard W. Fentons, the junior Edgar Stantons, the Corwith Hamills, the William B. Hales, Durant Smith, the Gordon Kelleys, Mrs. Walter J. Cummings and her three sons, Walter Jr., Arthur and John. Others were the young Frederic McLaughlins, the Jameson Rawleighs, John Harold Lawrence, his daughter, Miss Kitty, who was escorted by young Nan Blatchford, the Ambrose Cramers, the Gaylord Donnelleys, the Edwin A. Seipps, the Charles H. Rosses, and Miss Claire Beneke.

The Walter R. Kirks, who will be departing soon for California, Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Proxmire, the James B. Addingtons, the junior Calvin Fentresses, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Getz, and the young Watson Armours also were in the crowd.

Many of those who were at the concert yesterday afternoon remained in the park for an entertainment given last night by the Festival association and the musicians of the Chicago Symphony orchestra for those who have helped to make the festival a success. A buffet supper was served between the afternoon and evening programs.

The park will not be dark this week, tho the regular season is ended, for a special post season attraction consists of six evening concerts by the Pro Arte quartet, starting tonight.

BY CECIL SMITH.

The final orchestral concert at Ravinia park yesterday afternoon attracted 7,400 listeners—only a few hundred fewer than Saturday evening's record crowd. Kirsten Flagstad, great dramatic soprano of the Chicago and Metropolitan Opera companies, again appeared as soloist. Edwin McArthur, Mme. Flagstad's accompanist and protégé, made his Ravinia debut as guest conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

As he himself admits freely, Mr. McArthur has reached his present prominence largely thru the assistance of Mme. Flagstad, who has asked that he be engaged to conduct for her whenever possible. In a way, this has been fortunate for the young Denver born musician, for he has had opportunities to conduct first grade orchestras which might otherwise not have been responsive to the idea of engaging him.

In another and more significant way, however, this process of speeding up his career has not been so fortunate. He does not have command of an adequate basic mechanical technique for orchestral conducting, and the main impression he made yesterday was one of enormously over reaching himself. He tried to make his music dramatic and thrilling without knowing how to obtain either a round or a balanced sonority from the orchestra, and his climaxes were tonally blatant and coarse. His beat, especially during Strauss' "Don Juan," was so floppy and lacking in precision that it soon became apparent that the orchestra was giving its own performance of "Don Juan," and not the conductor's.

Talented young American musicians should have opportunities, but should they not be required to master their craft before being asked to conduct a group of the stature of the Chicago Symphony orchestra? Yesterday's concert undermined the prestige of Ravinia and laid the sponsors open to a charge of favoritism, when much better equipped young American conductors, like Izler Solomon, are not asked to conduct there.

Mme. Flagstad was in glorious voice. The aria from "Der Freischütz" rose to a thrilling climax. The three Grieg songs were expressively, if heroically, sung, and the final passages of "Tristan and Isolde" attained to their customary nobility.

In the evening, after a buffet supper, several hundred guarantors, workers, and friends of Ravinia attended a special program in the pavilion, in which merrymaking and serious music were shuffled together. Among those taking part were Nicolai Malko, John Barbirolli, John Weicher, Franz Polesznу, and other members of the orchestra.

Maria Matyas and Orchestra Please at Park

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The mezzo-soprano Maria Matyas—long a member of the Chicago Opera company, now a resident of Ithaca, N. Y., and an infrequent visitor here—came to the Grant park band shell last night to appear as soloist with the opera orchestra under Joseph Raffaelli.

She was the same Maria Matyas, with the same grave charm of manner and the same liquid, not too dark, and easily produced voice. She sang with the same intelligence and restraint and drew the same friendly applause from her audience.

In the "Voi lo sapete" from "Cavalleria Rusticana" she phrased and colored so aptly that the sorrow charged story of the Italian village girl of the opera seemed to darken for a moment the holiday air which Grant park always wears on a fine Sunday night. In a flash the singer changed the mood, romping into the gavotte from "Mignon" with the familiar Matyas verve and gaiety.

For reasons which elude an outsider, Miss Matyas included "L'Amour, Toujours L'Amour" in her second group. The announcer went off the deep end, as his genial way is, and described it as "the greatest love song ever written." In this same group the singer offered "Believe Me, if All Those Endearing Young Charms" and the "Habanera" from "Carmen."

Miss Matyas' only fault [an occasional lack of a fully satisfactory legato] seems to be an offspring of one of her notable virtues [the extreme precision of her diction]. This was especially noticeable in "Believe Me."

Mr. Raffaelli and the orchestra gallantly refused to steal any of Miss Matyas' fireworks and prefaced her first appearance with three of the most uneventful pieces in the répertoire—a Grand Festival March of Wagner and Godard's "Dans le Bois" and "Au Village." Later, things picked up considerably, with a performance of the Mottl arrangement of some Gluck ballet music.

Another event of the Grant park week-end was the appearance of Evelyn Davis, concert master of the Woman's Symphony orchestra, as soloist Saturday evening under Walter H. Steindel's direction. She played the Tschaikowsky violin concerto in a confident, bravura manner and with great beauty of tone.

Cloth Coat Fur Trim Ripples and Ruffles

BY REA SEEGER.

Revolutionary news from the August fur trimmed winter cloth coat collections! The fur is applied or attached with a splendid new dash. You no longer look strangled even tho it is with luxury pelts like platina, or silver fox, mink or other flattering furs. Even the face framing collars that copied the pompous swank of Elizabethan court beauties' collars have gone out for what is to be hoped a long absence. Fur this year of grace and charm is rippled, ruffled, looped, or tied in bows, a fashion trick worthy of chest medals for the inspired designers.

Something also new is the long waist or lowered waistline, and tho it is a mere matter of an inch it's surprising what this additional inch will do for every one. Side ties are other waist defining details; so are soft unpressed folds or plaits knowingly arranged across the façade of the skirt. This, too, accents a small, neat waistline. Tuxedo collars are plentiful. They take inches off the width and add inches to the streamline.

This winter you'll wear dramatic coats . . . black coats with blonde furs, black coats with cinnamon brown fur trim and dark colored wool coats considerably more eye catching than ever before because of flashing bright colored waistcoats of red, green or old gold suede.

Sleek tubular affairs for the sophisticate are excitingly new after the last couple of season's ingénue models with wide flared skirts and little if any particular adult swank.

Bands of fur will be used around the hemlines, or to outline the neck and the swoop down the side where the coats will fasten or tie. Collars, no matter whether rippled and complicated or narrow and small, will fit snugly and look comfortable.

This winter there's a coat for every streamline, a model for every personality, all kinds of coats that flatter. The newest ideas in colors, color combines, new silhouettes, new fur trim and fabrics are out now. No wonder this is the month for smart shoppers.

Sally Arranges Special Treat for Next Party

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Here's more news about our party for Aug. 15, boys and girls!

As I told you yesterday, 100 boys and girls will have an opportunity to come with me to see a new and different kind of show. It's just like the old time vaudeville shows, but will be given especially for us by a group of talented boys and girls.

You've heard many of these youngsters on W-G-N shows—in fact one lad played in the radio preview of "Tom Brown's School Days," working with Freddy Bartholomew. The majority of the children who will take part in the party performance have had radio or stage experience.

I can promise you an entertaining afternoon, so if you like singing, tap dancing and comedy, you'd better see if you can't win an invitation to our party at the Jack and Jill studios.

I want as my guests the youngsters who particularly enjoy a show of this type, and if that description fits you, write a letter and tell me all about it. Just tell me why you think you'd have a good time at this party, and if you write a good letter, and don't forget to include your name, address and age, maybe you'll see your name in next Sunday's TRIBUNE.

If you do, it means that you're a winner. So if you want to be in the lists of fortunate 50s send that letter to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago, by next Thursday.

Murder Is Not Mute

SYNOPSIS.

Detective Patrick Doyle of New York City is vacationing in a small town resort when, while walking in the woods on the estate of Adolph Wunsch, he stumbles upon a skeleton. He tells Thurman Briault, Munsch's brother-in-law, his discovery, and Briault tries to bribe Doyle to keep quiet. Instead the detective reports it to police headquarters, and Officer Madden and Judge Blain accompany him back to the spot only to find the skeleton gone. Trailing fresh footprints, they find the skeleton buried a short distance away. Dr. Blake, the coroner, says it is the skeleton of a girl in her late teens and that she was murdered. Madden asks Doyle to help him solve the mystery. The judge finds some blue yarn on nearby twigs, and Doyle finds a watch chain. The three men encounter Wunsch playing golf on his estate and question him. In the meantime Wunsch's young wife, Paula, is worrying about her unhappy marriage. She married for money in order to help her mother and her brother and found that her husband has treated them all like prisoners, tho he has allowed them to live in their home along with his aged father and his 18 year old daughter, Texie. Miss Doty, a trained nurse, takes care of his father. Wunsch has sent Paula's mother as chaperon, with Texie, for an extended tour of Europe, and Paula has been leading a lonely existence. Lately Wunsch has been driving to town every night with his chauffeur, Follins, and Paula has become so suspicious of her husband that she puts a detective on his trail. Doyle and Madden arrive to question the household, and when they find that Truman Briault, Paula's brother, is the owner of a blue sweater they ask to talk to him. They cannot find him, and when Doyle questions Follins he learns that Briault is planning to leave that night.

INSTALMENT XIII.

The butler was admirably impassive when Doyle reappeared at the door, this time demanding Mrs. Wunsch. He admitted the detective, took his Derby and whisked it out of sight into a closet, then glided soundlessly up the stairs to Mrs. Wunsch's suite.

Almost immediately he returned. Madame was not at home.

"Do you mean honest to God not at home?" Doyle pressed. "Or just go to hell not at home?"

The butler winced at the uncouth inquiry. Madame was not in her apartment. She had not been seen since luncheon. But she would certainly be home for dinner at 8. If Mr. Doyle chose to wait—the butler's unfinished sentence said plainly—there was nothing he could do about that.

For some time Doyle just waited and watched the hands of the hall clock crawl past the hour of 6. Then he entertained himself by a little skilful reconnoitering. At the rear of the hall was the door thru which the butler made his appearances. Midway of the hall the staircase mounted in a magnificent curve. Coming toward the entrance doors arches opened on the right into the drawing room—a big, square apartment. Beyond the drawing room he could see the conservatory and the dining hall.

He turned back into the hall. To his left there was a closed door, and he strove against temptation to open it.

But the next person he saw was Adolph Wunsch, in full evening dress, descending the stairs just as Follins drove under the porte cochère.

Wunsch frowned. "Nonsense. She's always in." He turned toward the stairs and bellowed, "Paula! Paula!"

When there was no response he made an exclamation of annoyance and shrugged his thick shoulders. "I can't be bothered with this foolishness." He stalked past Doyle and was driven away.

Soon after that the big clock bonged seven times. Doyle whistled in consternation. Ellen would be in what she called "Suchastate."

Doyle remembered that his Derby had been tucked away in a closet off the vestibule. But when he opened the closet door he forgot all about his hat. For among the assortment of wraps hanging there he saw the blue sweater and pounced on it eagerly. Its label bore the size 40. That clinched it. Wunsch had not buried the skeleton—he'd wear about a 44; it was definitely Briault. Doyle had suspected as much, of course. But here was proof he could offer a jury. He was examining the pulled stitches in the right sleeve of the sweater when he heard a sound back in the hall.

He hurriedly thrust the sweater into the closet and tiptoed toward the door. A key was turning slowly in its lock. The doorknob revolved.

The next moment the door opened, and Doyle stood face to face with one of the most beautiful women he had ever seen. Her beauty was not lessened by the obvious fact that she had been weeping. Long black lashes swept up in starry points from brilliant dark eyes. Her burnished gold hair, curled high, showed where she had thrust her long, nervous fingers thru it. And now her hands pressed to her lips as tho to hold in a scream.

He spoke quickly and reassuringly. "Mrs. Wunsch?"

His tone brought her some measure of poise. "Yes?" she said. "What is it you want?"

"To talk to you a moment," Doyle explained. "I've been waiting some time to see you. Your husband could not locate you for me."

She stood aside to let him enter, and he saw that the room was a library—dark and airless. His trained gaze took in every detail. A whisky glass with a drain of liquor in it stood on the desk. The blotting pad had been pushed askew, and there was a dark wet mark on it. Mrs. Wunsch had wept with her head on the desk. Before that she had sat on the couch reading. There was an open book lying face up on the crumpled cushions.

As Doyle moved over to the couch to sit down he glanced at its title.

"I presume you've heard about the skeleton, Mrs. Wunsch?"

She moistened her lips. "Briefly. My husband said a skeleton had been found in the woods."

"I'm working on the case," Doyle explained.

"Homicide," she repeated blankly.

"I'm on vacation," he explained. "Staying at the Seaview. This is a chance to keep my hand in." He grinned. "I had no idea I'd turn up a murder when——"

"Murder?" Paula drew her breath in sharply. "Did you say murder?"

"I'm sorry," Doyle apologized. "I thought Mr. Wunsch had told you."

She was racked with agitation.

"There's something queer about this place. I've been so frightened."

"Frightened of what?"

"I don't know."

"Have you spoken to your husband about this feeling?"

She looked at Doyle now with eyes that were bleak. "It wouldn't do any good," she said.

Doyle lifted the book he had found on the divan. "You are interested in criminology?"

He read the title of the book aloud. "Crimes of Love and Passion."

Paula said hastily, "I wasn't reading that. I put my book back on the shelf."

"Isn't this yours?" Doyle drew a wet wad of handkerchief from beneath the pages of the book and held it toward her.

She took it from him barely glancing at it. "No," she said. "It isn't. And walked to the desk and threw the handkerchief into a wastebasket.

Doyle attacked suddenly.

"I want to ask some questions about your brother."

She put one hand on the desk to steady herself. She had paled, but she answered calmly, "What is it you wish to know?"

"Is he married?"

"No."

"Ever been married?"

"No."

"Engaged?"

She looked at him blandly. "May I ask the purpose of these questions?"

Doyle ignored her query. "How long has your brother lived here?"

"Ever since my marriage, three years ago."

"Has he had any young women here to visit? Or have you?"

"Just friends of my husband. Middle aged married women and their husbands."

Doyle said slowly, "Did your brother ever get a girl into trouble?"

Her head lifted haughtily and her tone was frigid. "You overestimate my patience. You had better go."

Good Morning!

This picture, based on Jane Austen's famous novel, is a masterpiece of delicate irony.

It has just the light, quizzical attitude that was imperative, if the dated story was to go over with a swingtime audience, and the acting, clever, potent, but never unduly emphasized, blends in with the richly authentic backgrounds and costumes so as to make the whole seem a living tapestry.

The tale—as you probably know—is about Squire Bennet, an English gentleman, his vulgar and talkative spouse, and their five daughters, whom Madame Bennet would marry off quickly and well.

Cleverest and most arresting of the Bennet girls is Elizabeth. The most beautiful is Jane. Lydia and Kitty are flibbertygibbets, and Mary is a serious soul in spectacles who thinks she can sing. Elizabeth and Jane attract two handsome bachelors of high degree. . . .

Darcy, the elder, proud of his blue, blue blood, feels that neither he nor his friend, Bingley, should permit themselves to love a Bennet. . . . Bingley's sister, a handsome miaow-miaow who has designs on Darcy, does all in her power to belittle the flowers of the Bennet family and their parent stems.

But Elizabeth's subtle something conquers Darcy in the end and makes him a slave—willing, anxious, and able to smooth her path and the varied ones trod by her family. [I MUST tell you here that Lydia, who loves a uniform—as her mother had before her—elopes with a gay deceiver, who has to be brought to time by the noble Darcy.]

Greer Garson's portrayal of Elizabeth is easily the white light of the production. She has a rare, indefinable charm and a marvelous feel for pantomime. Edna May Oliver is great as Darcy's eccentric aunt. Laurence Olivier, looking a bit plumper than usual because of the neckwear that pushes up his jowls, is a sultry and interesting Darcy.

Direction couldn't have been improved upon, and the stilted dialog is bewitching because of its delivery, while the old-fashioned dances and the things that go on during them are just too intriguing for words!

I LOVED the picture, and if you don't, too, well—I WILL be surprised!

Looking at Hollywood by John Chapman

The Week's Wash.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 4.—Sunday: A slight morning of work, then to Hidden Valley for huge platters of fried chicken and a touch of ranch life. The San Fernando Valley road, main route to San Francisco, is a discouragingly outmoded thorofare to one who has been spoiled by New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut express highways, being full of two lane bottle necks.

Monday: Spent the morning with Del Goodman, far eastern manager of Twentieth Century-Fox, who has been called in to confer with Boss Zanuck. Many of the movie companies have called in their foreign agents for the lowdown on markets. Goodman, having had 19 years in the far east, hopes he can switch to an American berth for a while. "I'm tired of taking vaccines every three months," he says. . . . A touch of golf in the afternoon with Frank [Moon Mullins] Willard and Humphrey Bogart. Bogart plays stripped to the waist, has a chocolate tan. Willard is sold on California, says he is going to remain here instead of traveling, as he has done for more than 15 years, from resort to resort. It must be wonderful to be a cartoonist . . . Dinner at the Beverly Derby, where Bettina Bedwell, the fashion expert, and husband Abe Rattner, are across the way.

Tuesday: Lunch with Frank Lloyd, who is putting the finishing touches on "The Howards of Virginia" at the General Service studios, which used to be the Harold Lloyd plant. In the fall he moves to quarters at Universal, where he will make six pictures for Universal release. . . . On from the Lloyd date for a chat with Darryl Zanuck, and late on account of having to stop for gas. But it was all right, because Zanuck was on long distance, talking with New York and Salt Lake City about the opening of "Brigham Young." The calls, I was told afterward, ran to about $500. Zanuck makes a wonderful movie fan, jumping around in excitement as he steams himself up about a picture. "Brigham Young," he says, is bigger than "The Covered Wagon."

Wednesday: At Metro, for visits with Walter Pidgeon and Myrna Loy. Pidgeon told of having recently sought an interview with Boss Louis B. Mayer and finally getting it. But Mayer talked so fast and so hard that Pidgeon couldn't get a word in. Finally Walter managed to utter a conversational nothing about the picture he's working in, the third of the "Nick Carter" series. Mayer stopped his fast chatter, looked immensely relieved and said, "You mean you don't mind playing Nick Carter?" "Certainly not," said Pidgeon. "Whew!" says Mayer. "Now what did you want to talk to me about?"

Thursday.—Lunch with Wesley Ruggles, who recently finished shooting "Arizona." He has a deep, leathery, weather beaten tan, and I'm struck by the observation that most Hollywood tans are too perfect. Ruggles' color was obviously obtained the hard way, on location in Arizona. He's the latest important convert to horseback riding in this saddle silly community. He never rode much before, but in Arizona the ponies were the only means of travel and he grew to like them. . . . To the Humphrey Bogarts' for dinner, with Bogey cooking immense steaks on a perambulating charcoal grill. After dinner Mayo Methot Bogart brings out her scrapbook, made me read to the assembled guests the notices I wrote on plays she was in New York.

Friday: A call on H. N. Swanson, one-time editor, now the pilot for a host of Hollywood scenarists. "You ought to write a movie," he says. I assure him I have no such intention and wouldn't know how, anyway. "Just team up with an author," he says. "Be sure you get yourself an A writer, not a B writer." This teaming up is a weird business out here, the theory apparently being that two heads are harder to chop off than one.

Saturday: Luncheon at Chasen's with Humphrey Doulens, who told of the successful Pons-Kostelanetz concert tour. They're en route to Hawaii, will Clipper back in a couple of weeks so that Lily can start with Valentina on costumes for "The Daughter of the Regiment," which the Metropolitan opera is reviving. Miss Pons, unwilling to have an off-stage drummer do her stuff, is taking drum lessons.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

One reason for the housewife's growing preference for frozen lima beans is the uniformity of their size and tenderness. And they cook quicker than fresh ones, too.

If there are cooked lima beans left from a meal, it's a good idea to add a French dressing to them and chill them for salad next day. Leftover lima beans deteriorate in flavor somewhat like leftover peeled and cooked potatoes, so that they may have a hashy taste if served next day buttered or as they were served at their first appearance. The tart dressing will prevent this change in flavor, and next day minced onion, a little chopped pickle, and celery may be added to make the salad.

Follow the directions on the package when cooking frozen lima beans. Fresh ones are cooked in the same way, in boiling, salted water, without a cover, but they must be cooked slightly longer, unless they are very young and tender. Twenty minutes is sufficient unless the beans are oversize.

Serve the boiled beans with salt, pepper, and plenty of melted butter, or follow one of these suggestions:

1. Add a plain medium white sauce to the boiled beans. A little chopped pimiento or chopped parsley may be added to the sauce.

2. Put the cooked beans in a shallow casserole, cover with a medium white sauce, and top thickly with grated cheese. Place under the broiler until hot and browned.

3. Use tomato juice for the milk in the white sauce.

4. Thicken canned tomatoes with cornstarch and combine them with beans in a casserole dish.

5. Combine fresh cooked limas with fresh cooked, canned, or frozen corn, and season well with salt, pepper, and butter.

6. Combine the beans and corn and serve as suggested in any of the first four of these variations.

7. Combine fresh cooked lima beans with cooked sliced onions [leeks or green onions are delicious this way] and serve with butter and seasonings.

8. Combine the limas with diced beets and serve in a sweet-sour sauce [vinegar, sugar, and seasonings].

9. Combine cooked limas with cooked celery, and add a medium white sauce. This combination is good also with the cheese topping suggested in the second variation. And corn may be added for a third vegetable, if desired.

10. Combine the lima beans with tiny, young whole carrots and serve with butter. Or use sliced cooked carrots.

11. Add chopped, crisp-fried bacon and a little of the bacon fat to the freshly cooked beans.

Pinafore Daytime Costume

JUMPER IN JUNIOR SIZES.

Altho the autumn fashion season officially is underway, the calendar testifies incontrovertibly that warm weather still calls for appropriate clothes. That's why we're presenting this jumper costume for general daytime wear in hot weather and for sports purposes. In a dainty pastel cotton, with a contrasting shirtmaker blouse, it's as good for general daytime occasions as it is for sports. And, come autumn, fashion it of silk or woolen or a combination of the two.

Style No. 3360 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19. Size 15 requires 1¾ yards of 39 inch material for short sleeved blouse; three yards for jumper.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Conflict Over Music Publishing Looms at Radio Sessions

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 4 (AP).—The men who bring music to 45,000,000 American radio listeners converged here today. They are here for the joint convention of the National Association of Broadcasters and the National Independent Broadcasters.

One issue the hundreds of delegates will decide is which of two powerful publishing organizations is going to control the music these stations broadcast. Involved are the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, and Broadcast Music, Inc.

The ASCAP, which embraces some of the most prominent of popular songwriters, wants nearly double, or $8,750,000, from the broadcasters for the right to use its music during the ensuing year. (In answer the National Association of Broadcasters organized Broadcast Music, Inc., to produce music by lesser known writers in competition with ASCAP.

Direct Energy of the Small Child Wisely

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I am writing to you about my son," begins a letter from a father.

"He's a pretty nice little chap, I think, but he certainly is getting our women folk down, said women folk consisting of my wife and my mother.

"'Jiffy' is a big boy, strong and healthy, and two years and three months old. Some one must watch him all day long.

"We live in the country, but on a well used road, so naturally can't let him run alone about the house. He might run on the road. I built him a pen, but now he knows how to get out of it. His mother ties him to a tree, but he manages to get loose.

"He has all sorts of toys, but takes little interest in them. He never sits down to play a few minutes of the day, just seems to annoy and be in the way all day long."

I find it hard to answer your letter briefly because I think it is your women folks' general management that is wrong. The main trouble is that your boy is well and active and inquiring and adventurous, all good qualities.

Often children are docile and easy to manage until they have acquired the ability to do things, and then the trouble [for the parents] begins.

This boy must not be kept in a pen or tied to a tree. Isn't it possible for him to have more physical freedom without being endangered by automobiles? I should think your place would have to be fenced in.

It may also be that you have not found the right toys for your boy. I have advice on that which may be helpful.

I believe your wife and mother would be helped to understand your little son by some brief reading on the subject, on angles such as patience, and how to gain obedience, and the child's desire to touch everything. We have such reading.

Numerology

Aug. 5, 1940.

Universal Day—Tie up all the loose ends you left lying around last week.

Universal Month—Yesterday I explained how to find your personal-year number, and now I want to give you the method for finding your personal-month number and in the next nine days I will give one of the keywords for each of the nine numbers [October, November, and December reduce to 1, 2, and 3 respectively]. To find your personal-month number add the number of the month [January is 1, February 2, etc.] to your personal-year number, which I explained yesterday. Suppose you know you are in a 6-year, then add 8 for August to 6—giving 14, or reducing to one digit, 1 plus 4, gives 5. So August for you will be a 5-month.

Year Ahead—Most of this year has already past for you, so if it has been tough going, relax and look forward to better breaks in 1941.

Would you like to know what kind of a year 1940 will be for you? Send for your personal yearly, monthly, and daily guide.

Wild West Modernized.

A letter from a lad vacationing at Boyer ranch, near Savery, Wyo., tells of the new airfield at the ranch and adds that invitations are out for a "light plane party" early this month. Some 15 planes from Denver and the vicinity will fly over the continental divide to the ranch, and their occupants will spend a few days at the ranch, where a mountain square dance will be one of the festivities.

A western rancher wrangled 40 horses 18 miles by airplane last week by flying over them and got them into their corral without assistance. Owner of 50,000 sheep, he visits all his sheep camps by plane. He also "rides fence" in his plane, inspecting many miles of fences in a fraction of the time it used to take on horseback.

Exhibition Matches.

Jack Macy, tennis pro at the Saddle and Cycle club, is securing the services of extra efficient linesmen for the exhibition matches, open to the public for the first time, that are to be played at the club next Saturday and Sunday by William T. Tilden II., Frederick J. Perry, Vincent Richards, and Ben Gorchakoff. Tilden, who now is 47 but who boasts he can beat any player if he can last out the match, is temperamental about close calls and often questions whether a ball is on the line or outside. Tilden beat Budge and Perry two months ago in California.

Perry, by the way, has taken out American citizenship papers. The English player doesn't like to play exhibition matches unless his wife, Helen Vinson, is present, according to Macy, but she will not be in Chicago next week-end, as she is making a picture in Hollywood.

All the players like iced tea after a match. It will be kept handy during the match at the Saddle, too, for the players usually like a swallow or two when they change courts.

Pleasant Voice Is Necessity in Business World

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

A pleasing voice is a real necessity in the business world, and you girls and women who are in business, or looking for jobs, should cultivate this aspect with as much earnestness as you do your appearance, if you want to win a job.

The fundamental principles of a good speaking voice are that it must be moderately pitched [neither too low nor too high] and, above all, it must not be slovenly. By that we mean that carelessness of diction results in improper word formations, which are likely to annoy the person to whom you are speaking.

A voice should be assertive enough, too, to demand attention. This does not mean that in order to demand attention you must speak loud. On the contrary, speak quietly, distinctly, and with conviction.

If your voice is dull and lacking in color, read aloud sentences from a book, magazine, or newspaper that demand a change in expression. And most important of all, learn to enunciate clearly. Move your lips freely to form the words properly.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

Experts take enormous liberties with bidding conventions, but there is one thing they never, or rarely, do and that is make a psychic takeout in a suit that is higher ranking than the one they intend for the final contract. Consider South's technique in today's hand. It is true that he was "fancy," but it must be noted that he incurred little, if any, risk.

North, dealer.

Both sides vulnerable; both sides 60 part-score.

SOUTH

♣ 9 7 5

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Double	2 diam.[!]	3 spades
3 diam.	Double	3 hearts	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

Over East's take-out double of the one heart South, with tremendous heart support but a very poor general hand and little defense, really wanted to "psych" in spades, since that was the suit which could embarrass him most if the opponents should bid it. Of course, he also had to fear both diamonds and clubs, but at least he could overbid these with hearts at the same level. But he realized that to bid spades as a bluff would be dangerous, since if North had good spade support he would raise strongly, and then hearts could be returned to only at a prohibitive level. South discarded the thought of preempting in hearts, feeling that on the state of the score this would merely induce West to "stretch" for a bid. He adopted the two diamond bid as the best of the safe psychic bids, intending, of course, after he had misled the opponents as to the distribution of his hand, to return to hearts.

East certainly had a splendid double of three diamonds, and West's pass to three hearts also was correct, since his partner might be waiting for it with a bludgeon. But East went far astray when he doubled three hearts. He foolishly assumed that, since South had bid diamonds and North had supported them, he would make two or three diamond tricks even with hearts as trump. The fallacy of this assumption is obvious: There was no guarantee that South's diamond take-out had been "on the level." West cannot be blamed for leaving in the double, because it was not up to him to nurse his partner.

North-South made an overtrick at three hearts doubled, whereas four spades would have been a laydown, even against the best defense of a diamond opening lead and a continuation which South would ruff.

Thru the LOOKING GLASS

Are you pretty careless about the mid-day freshening up ritual? Do you try to get by by slapping fresh powder over old? Most of us do and, according to one of the best professional makeup artists we know, it's a great mistake.

This man says it's important to carry a bottle of skin freshener in your purse, and tissues. When your makeup has frazzled out and it's impossible to do a complete new one, he advises blotting with a tissue. Not rubbing, but blotting, to take up the oil and dim the sheen. Then, he says, the face should be dabbed with face freshener on tissues and blotted dry. After this you can press fresh powder on. If you need rouge, apply it before the powder, blending it at the edges with the fingers. He adds, too, that if your powder puff is dirty there's only one thing to do—throw it away.

Here is his tip for camouflaging the dark circles under the eyes that are such a trial to many women:

Roll a small ball of cotton between the palms of your hands. Dip this cotton into a powder that is dead white in tone and press the powder firmly into the skin under and around the eyes until you have a white half moon completely covering the dark circles. Then powder the face—but not the white patches—with your regular shade of powder. Then press your puff very lightly over the white area. This done, blend the two shades of powder together in a half circle movement with your small finger. Blend so that no line of separation is visible between the two shades of powder.

This last is a screen trick worth practicing. It's invaluable when you're tired and look it.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Otto Jaretz Jr. of the Chicago Towers club, National A. A. U. indoor and outdoor 100 yard free style swimming champion, paced the finalists in the Chicagoland races yesterday afternoon in the Lincoln park lagoon, setting a world record for this distance. Jaretz's time in the Class E race, in which boys 19 years old and over competed, was 50.3 seconds.

Jaretz won the final 100 yard event of the day. The program lasted for an hour and 45 minutes and included 14 semi-final races in seven of the ten age classes. From 2 o'clock, when the first semi-finalists plunged into the lagoon from the northern float opposite the Lincoln Park Boat club, until the climax provided by Jaretz, thousands lined both banks of the course. Hundreds more looked on from the stone bridge to the north of the boat club.

Most Satisfactory in History.

Measured by the stellar performances in all divisions, the races were the most satisfactory in the 11 years the Chicagoland championships have been sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Jaretz's record time was attested yesterday by three timers—J. J. Lipp, William Faeshe, and W. A. Blake—all accredited by the Central association of the A. A. U. However, because the lagoon is sometimes affected by a slight current from the openings connecting with the lake at Diversey beach and North avenue, the new mark may not be accepted. Comparison with other marks yesterday indicated, however, that the record was established fairly.

Wins by Three Yards.

Jaretz took the lead in the first 10 yards, steadily improved his position, and in the final sprint earned a three yard victory over his teammate from the Towers club, Ed Kirar. Bill Mueller of La Salle, Ill., was third, while Bill Starke Jr., unattached swimmer from Chicago, finished fourth. Gold, silver, and bronze medals were the awards for the first three positions in the 10 championship events.

Chicago Towers club, coached by Stan Brauninger, won both team trophies. The Towers' girls scored 18 points and won titles in the highest three age divisions. The boys' team took first place with 16 points. Jaretz's championship performance was matched by Arthur Koblish, a team-

THE GUMPS—CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE—

SENATORS BEAT LYONS ON ERROR IN TENTH INNING

Chase, Rigney's Foe, Yields 3 Hits.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox, who for three weeks had been joy riding thru the American league, were flagged down yesterday in painful fashion, altho they managed to remain in the first division. Washington's Senators, aided by Luke Appling's prowl in left field, which is not on his beat, captured the front end of a double header, 4 to 3, in 10 innings, much to the distress of Ted Lyons and 15,866 spectators. Then the Senators did it again, 1 to 0, because James Dykes' boys couldn't furnish many base hits in behalf of John Rigney.

Emil Leonard.

Lyons was unlucky enough to draw Emil Leonard as an opponent and the latter's knuckle ball functioned as in the past against the Sox bats. The ex-National leaguer was given a two run lead in the second inning and this wasn't disturbed until the seventh when Bob Kennedy and Jim Webb paired up for a run. Then in the eighth Taft Wright tied it with his fourth homer of the year. But Appling's blunder, along with an error by Mike Tresh, permitted two runs in the 10th, just one more than the Sox could harvest in their half when they gave Leonard the bounce.

Walker Scores Winning Run.

Appling's desire to take in too much territory came when Buddy Lewis hoisted a fly to short left. Larry Rosenthal was there to take it, but Luke chased him away and then let the ball fall for a double with one out. Gerry Walker had collected enough glory for one game, what with a previous two bagger and a pair of swell catches, so Lyons gave him a more or less intentional pass. Cecil Travis followed with a two bagger to right center. Lewis scored and Walker, spurning the signals of his manager, Bucky Harris, coaching at third, tore on toward the plate to score when Tresh, after tagging his ex-mate, dropped the ball.

Grieved by the light hitting display in the first game, Manager Dykes brought back Julius Solters from a week's vacation in the second struggle, but the return of the power man was of no help to Rigney. The Sox's slugging was slowed down to three hits by Ken [Lefty] Chase, just half the number yielded by Rigney. One of them was a triple by Jake Early, which drove in the lone run. And of the Sox three hits none went to Solters, who was up three times with a mate on base.

FIRST GAME

Lyons walked Travis to open the second inning of the first game and bad news came quickly. Bloodworth looped a single over Kuhel's head. Myer bounced to Webb for a double play, but even this assistance wasn't sufficient for Lyons. He pitched himself into a 3 and 2 hole against Pofahl, who slapped the next throw

REDS SHIP BODY OF HERSHBERGER TO CALIFORNIA

Boston, Mass., Aug. 4 (AP).—The body of Willard M. Hershberger, suicide second string catcher of the Cincinnati Reds, was shipped by train today to his widowed mother in Visalia, Cal.

Hershberger, apparently depressed by his own recent playing and that of the league leading Reds in the current Boston series, was found dead late yesterday afternoon in a downtown hotel, his jugular vein slashed by a razor. Medical Examiner Timothy Leary said he was a suicide.

The 29 year old catcher, who was serving his third season with Cincinnati, had been moody for the last few days, club officials said, and had complained that he was sick.

Packer Coach Eyes Revenge on All-Stars

BY EARL (CURLEY) LAMBEAU.

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 4.—The football fans of the nation have spoken and what they've said pleases the Green Bay Packers. The squad selected in the recent poll is the best balanced and most versatile collegiate group sent against the professional champions in the Chicago All-Star series. We hoped it would be that way.

It fell to the Packers in 1937 to meet the strongest of the first six All-Star squads and we kicked away victory. Our revenge on Soldiers' field in Chicago Aug. 29 would be hollow if we were forced to gain it against a team inferior in any respect to that 1937 aggregation.

Evaluating the strength of an opponent and the talents of its individual players is one of a coach's first chores in preparing for any game. It is especially important in getting ready for an All-Star game, for there are no past performances to go by. The coach of the professional team can only pool the information he has on individuals, speculate on how the All-Star coaches can best utilize these specialized talents and hope that he and the All-Star coaches see eye to eye. He must also hope that the information that has come to him on whether or not this half back is a good kicker or that end is a good defensive player is correct. Sometimes it is wrong. I know, because this is the information on which we draft players.

What the Coaches Know.

Pooling the information we have on this year's squad, Red Smith, my assistant, and I know that the All-Stars are capable of waging a wide open game, with superb passing, powerful line thrusts, and, if we are not properly fortified, long touchdown runs by men who can get up anywhere and go all the way. This, plus the fact that we specialize in the spectacular, convinces me that this year's game will be one of sensational plays and a record breaking All-Star score.

The outstanding strength in this 1940 All-Star ensemble is at right half back. The All-Stars never have had the strength at this position that Lou Brock of Purdue, Olie Cordill of Rice, and Jack Padley of Dayton give them. Here is a trio of backs who can handle the blocking assignments in any system, but, more important,

GULDAHL WINS IN MILWAUKEE OPEN WITH 268

Oliver's 270 Is Second; Snead Has 271.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 4.—Ralph Guldahl, the big Chicago professional who was becoming an old settler in the winners' circle of American golf until he lost the victory knack over a year ago, is back again. He reëntered that circle today by shooting a 72 hole score of 268, 16 under par for the North Hills Country club, to win the first annual $5,000 Milwaukee Open tournament.

Guldahl, National Open champion in 1937 and 1938, and Western Open winner in both of those years as well as in 1936, scored his last individual triumph in April, 1939, when he took the valuable Masters' title. This afternoon, four shots back of Johnny Bulla of Chicago at 54 holes and still three away at the 64th tee, Guldahl turned on his old time finishing steam and collected a final 67.

Sets New 54 Hole Record.

Bulla, whose morning round of 66 enabled him to set a new American professional record of 197 for 54 holes, played the final two rounds with Guldahl as one of his partners. Bulla couldn't find any 66s in his kit this hot afternoon, and eventually escaped with a 75 that gave him a final total of 272. He was tied by the year's leading money winner, Ben Hogan of New York, who had a stretch run of 68 that included a five on the par three sixteenth.

In between this threesome finished Ed Oliver of Hornell, N. Y., and Sam Snead of Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa. Oliver, recent winner of the St. Paul Open, took second place with a 270, off a final round of 68. Snead was third with a 271. Playing with Oliver, Snead had a six foot putt for a 64, and the 270 that would have tied Oliver, but he missed it.

Gets 30 on Opening Nine.

Jimmy Foulis of Chicago's Ruth Lake club put on the best scoring act of the tournament for a single nine, doing up this afternoon's front side in 30, five under par. That score included a bogey at the eighth. Foulis modified that swift pace to a 36 coming home and finished with a 274.

Jim Ferrier of Australia, finished as low amateur in his third consecutive Open. Top simon pure player in the Chicago and St. Paul tourneys, Ferrier fired a 68 this afternoon for a finishing aggregate of 278.

Why?

When I was just a little girl
I dreamed of joys that were ahead
And pictured fun that life would hold
Along the path that I would tread.
And now with girlhood far behind,
I'm looking backward over years
And envy her that used to be—
The child that sometimes reappears.

We let the present slip away;
Obsessed with dreams and memories,
Ignore the blessings of today.

Mirage.

We build a house of comradeship,
My one true love and I;
No two were happier than we
And pleasant days passed by.
When obligations seemed too great,
Together we pressed on
Till every barrier we had known
Was overcome and gone.

But as I looked beyond our fence,
My hands reached out to grab
The wilder, gayer things which made
My way of life seem drab.
The things that I had thought were sweet
Became as bitter gall,
And life seemed much too dear to me
To sacrifice it all.

I manufactured reasons why
My thoughts should not be stilled,
And wrecked the house of comradeship
We spent our lives to build.
But, O, the world is all mirage
Where I had sought to roam,
And I have lost that which I had—
My home! My home! My home!

CUBS WIN, 11-3; LOSE 2D IN 11TH ON HOMERS, 7 TO 6

Camilli's Drive Defeats Passeau.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 4.—The Cubs broke down under the burden of too much success today. After making it three straight over the Dodgers in the first game of a double header before 29,928 with an 11 to 3, 21 hit triumph, the Cubs made a whirlwind start in the second game, acquiring four runs in the first inning and adding two in the third.

Leading 6 to 1 at the end of the fifth inning, it seemed Claude Passeau, seeking his 13th victory, had adequate insurance. But Claude blew up for four runs in the sixth and a homer by Peewee Reese with one out in the ninth tied the score. Then, with two out in the 11th, Dolph Camilli socked one high over the right field wall and the Dodgers had salvaged the series final, 7 to 6.

Medwick Is Benched.

The Dodgers won that second game with a revised lineup, the most spectacular change in which brought the benching of Joe Medwick, bosom pal of Manager Leo Durocher, for whom the Dodgers on June 12 gave $125,000 and four players. Medwick made only one single in the first three games of the series and failed as a pinch batter in the ninth inning of the second game today.

The Cubs made 32 hits in the two games, five in the first inning of each game. Hank Leiber was retired only once all day. He made four singles and reached first on an error in the first game, then added three hits, including a homer and a double, in the second game. Zeke Bonura had a double and two singles in the first game and a single and a double in the second game before he retired with a pulled leg muscle.

Rout Fitz Quickly.

Fred Fitzsimmons was the starting and losing Brooklyn pitcher in the first game. He was knocked out on five hits and three runs before he accomplished the second putout of the spectacle. Vern Olsen won his seventh victory, tho he had to be relieved by Larry French. Passeau, who suffered his ninth loss in the second game, was the only Chicago right hander who pitched in the series.

FIRST GAME

The Cubs felt no surge of sentimentalism about Freddy Fitzsimmons' popularity hereabouts as they tore into the fine old gentleman from Mishawaka at the earliest possible moment. Hack opened the first game with a single and went to third on Herman's single. Gleeson's fly to Medwick scored Hack. Nicholson and Leiber singled to left, Herman scoring. Bonura also singled to left, scoring Nicholson. At this juncture Tex Carleton replaced Fitzsimmons. Todd forced Bonura and Warstler was called out on strikes.

Cubs Get Two More.

Lee Grissom was the Dodger pitcher at the start of the seventh and Leiber opened with his third single. Bonura singled to center, putting Leiber or third. Todd singled to center, scoring Leiber.

Camilli opened the home seventh

PAGEANT OPENS DERBY WEEK AT HOMEWOOD OVAL

Contenders for 3 Year Old Title Meet Saturday.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

American Derby week began yesterday with a colorful pageant and will be climaxed Saturday by what promises to be a spectacular horse race. Twenty thousand visitors thronged Washington Park yesterday for the annual open house, which was marked by a revival of 19th century Chicago and the rerunning of the first American Derby.

The pageant, "Cavalcade of the Horse," covered the history of the horse from the days of Alexander the Great to the running of a modern race. The 1884 American Derby, the inaugural, won by Modesty with Jockey Isaac Murphy up, was reënacted and the horse which took Modesty's part with colored Jockey Raymond White as Murphy, won by a nose.

Enacts Phil Sheridan.

Roy Dickerson, Washington Park starter, in the costume rôle of Gen. Phil Sheridan, sent the field away to the roll of a drum. Lillian Gish, stage and screen star, in a costume she wears in "Life With Father" congratulated the winner of the revival of the 1884 race.

After this nod to the past, horse racing fans turned their attention to the future—specifically to next Saturday's big race. They scanned the list of probable starters and found that all of the contenders for the three year old championship are either already at Washington Park or are due to arrive within a day or so.

3 Year Old Stars Renew Struggle.

Winners of most of the important 3 year old stakes to date will renew their struggle in the American Derby. The field includes the Milky Way farm's Gallahadion, which led the way home in the Kentucky Derby; Dixiana farm's Sirocco, which dominated the Arlington Classic, and E. R. Bradley's Bimlech, which scored in the Preakness and the Belmont stakes.

Sirocco will be getting his chance to show whether he can continue to perform in the excellent style he displayed when he won the Classic by seven lengths. Many think he may be one of those slow developers which come up to best form in midsummer and late fall. It will be recalled that Challedon really began to run in earnest in last year's Classic, when he overthrew the reigning champion, Johnstown, just as Sirocco turned the trick over Bimelech. Not that Sirocco has as yet shown any signs of being a second Challedon, but if he continues to run as he did at Arlington, he will gain recognition as the best of the present crop of 3 year olds.

Other Strong Contenders.

In addition to the big three—Sirocco, Bimelech, and Gallahadion—there will be other strong contenders in the American Derby. Charles S. Howard's Mioland has come back well after a lapse in training. W. B. Simpson's Weigh Anchor, winner of the Tanforan Derby, second in the Hollywood Derby and third in the Santa Anita Derby, is on the scene, pointing for Saturday's big race.

Other candidates now on the grounds are Roman, Super Chief, Alhalon, Blue Flyer, and Inscolassie. There is a possibility that Belair stud's Dusky Fox, Manhasset stable's Call to Colors, and C. V. Whitney's Parasang may be shipped out from the east.

The possible field follows:

HORSE.	OWNER.
Bimelech	E. R. Bradley
Sirocco	Dixiana
Gallahadion	Milky Way farms
Mioland	Charles S. Howard
Weigh Anchor	W. B. Simpson
Dusky Fox	Belair stud
Call to Colors	Manhasset stable
Parasang	C. V. Whitney
Roman	J. E. Widener
Super Chief	Mrs. Emil Denemark
Alhalon	A. C. Ernst
Blue Flyer	John Marsch
Van	R. V. McIlvaine
Inscolassie	Woolford farm.

Men, Women Start 2 Golf Meets Today

The 12th annual derby of the Women's Western Golf association, longest women's medal play event in the game, and the 36th annual Chicago amateur tournament, grandpappy of all local metropolitan battles, will share top position in Chicago golf this week. This morning, another brilliant field will go to the post at Westmoreland in the first 18 holes of the 72 hole derby, which will continue at 18 holes each day thru Thursday. The city amateur also opens today, with the qualifying round at the venerable Jackson park course, the tournament scene since it began. Match play will start tomorrow, continuing thru Saturday's championship final.

Defending the derby title will be Elizabeth Hicks of Long Beach, Cal., who set a record of 307 in winning last year's meet in Evanston. The California star will have a time of it to retain her title, for competition in the derby is consistently keen, as evidenced by the 1939 fight, in which the first three rounds found as many different pacemakers before Betty shot a 73 on the final run.

The city amateur is the most democratic of all local fairway shows, attracting entries from private clubs and daily fee and park courses. Gene Budd of Lake Hills, Ind., is the defending champion. Another entrant this year is Chick Evans of Edgewater, who will be celebrating the 35th anniversary of his first appearance in the tournament. President J. F. Reilly of the Jackson Park Golf club anticipates a field of more than 200. Entries will be accepted at the tee this morning.

In 1937, after they had dazzled us with the traditional All-Star spotlight prolog that surpasses even Ziegfeld's genius for glorification, we kicked off against such a formidable array as Sammy Baugh, Gaynell Tinsley, Johnny Drake, Ed Widseth, Sam Francis, Bud Svendsen, and Eddie Jankowski, among half a hundred others equally as talented.

All-Stars Are Strong.

The present squad can match this one. Hal Van Every of Minnesota will be just as dangerous as Baugh. Van Every is more than an outstanding passer; he is extraordinary. Lack of receivers at Minnesota during his three years of eligibility prevented Coach Bernie Bierman from exploiting Van Every's passing ability. On the All-Star squad Van Every will be surrounded by exceptional receivers.

Ken Kavanaugh, Tinsley's successor at Louisiana State, is Tinsley's equal as a pass catcher, and some of my scout reports state that he is better than the former Chicago Cardinal. Kavanaugh is six feet, three inches and weighs 210 pounds. As an end, he has made more long touchdown runs than any back on the squad with the exception of Ben Sheridan, the Notre Dame flier.

Sheridan is the most dangerous climax runner in the All-Star corps, altho there is little to choose between him and Banks McFadden of Clemson; Kenny Washington of U. C. L. A.; Ambrose Schindler of Southern California; George Cafego of Tennessee, or Frank Emmons of Oregon, once any of these backs break into the open.

Picks Out the Stars.

Washington and McFadden quite likely will be the collegians' stars, carrying on from where Bill Osmanski of Holy Cross and the Chicago Bears left off in 1939. These two men are the pick of the finest set of backs ever assembled for the All-Star game. Washington, U. C. L. A.'s rugged Negro half back, is the eptiome of football perfection. He was the toast of the Pacific coast, where great football players abound. And we're not overlooking Iowa's Nile Kinnick either.

All-Star supporters need not worry about that line. Any squad which contains such centers as Bulldog Turner of Hardin-Simmons and Johnny Schiechl of Santa Clara, and such tackles as Stan Andersen of Stanford, Lee Artoe of California, and Win Pedersen of Minnesota need never want for adequate line play.

Thus, having appraised the opposition and its possibilities, we can turn our attention to the next problem confronting a coach preparing for the All-Star game—his own squad.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The Aga Khan's undefeated Epsom Derby winner, Bahram, one of the most valuable horses in the British turf, has been sold for 40,000 pounds Sterling to a New Zealander, it was learned today. Bahram, unbeaten in two seasons he raced, won nine events including the Derby, the two thousand guineas and the St. Leger in 1935. His winnings were 43,000 pounds sterling [about $160,000].

CHICAGO BOY, 15, WINS NATIONAL SAILBOAT TITLE

Michigan City, Ind., Aug. 4 [Special].—Coleman Anderson, 15 year old Chicago youth, won the annual one-design sailboat race for the national championship. Anderson, a sophomore at Calumet High school, defeated 32 other yachtsmen, all older than he, in his 17 foot sloop Irish. He flew the Burnham Park Yacht club burgee.

The fourth and final race of the three day regatta was won by Yenee, owned and sailed by Otto Palm of the Michigan City Yacht club, sponsor of the regatta. Yenee's winning time for the four mile race was 1 hour 22 minutes 25 seconds. Governor II., defender of the national championship, was second to finish in 1:25:59, followed by Tusuen of the South Shore [Milwaukee] Yacht club and Gypsy of the Burnham Park Yacht club.

Skipper Coleman won the title award, the Wawasee trophy, by consistent sailing. He took two-fourths and two-fifths in the series, with a total score of 1,343 points. His crew consisted of Don Friend, 16 years old, and Charles Weege, 14. Governor II., Herman Landon's defender from the Illiana, Ind., Yacht club, was second with 1,337. Mart Carlson of the Muskegon, Mich., Yacht club was third in his Yankee with 1,288, and Orville Sonnentag of the Burnham Park Yacht club was fourth with 1,245 in his Gypsy.

Kuehn and Taylor Win Six Hour Bicycle Race

Bill Kuehn of the Mazzini club and Sears Taylor of the Belgium-American C. C. won the six hour Mazzini A. C. bike race last night on the Humboldt park bowl despite a crackup with only five minutes to go that sent Kuehn's brother, Eddie, to the hospital. Taylor and Bill Kuehn were one lap ahead with 17 points, against the point leading team of Ed Carfagnini and Bill Jacoby, who were second with 206 points, gained in the sprints.

Ted Duncan Wins Main Event in Midget Races

Ted Duncan won the 30 lap main event in the midget auto races last night at Riverview speedway, leading his nearest competitor, Tony Bettenhausen, by five car lengths. His time was 7 minutes, 50.08 seconds. Cowboy O'Rourke was third, Harry MacQuinn, fourth, and Myron Fohr was fifth.

JARETZ BREAKS WORLD MARK IN 100 YARD SWIM

mate, who won in Class C, for boys 15 and 16 years old.

The Lake Shore club of Chicago, was second in the boys' team race. Wilmette, Ill., and the Shawnee Country club were tied for second in the girls' division.

One hundred and seventeen boys and girls were eligible for yesterday's finals. They had qualified the week before in four sectional meets and each had received a gold qualifying medal. Adolph Kiefer, internationally famous swimmer, was unable to compete in the Class E finals because of a family picnic. Kiefer's fame, of course, does not rest primarily on free style swimming, and he scarcely could have expected to defeat Jaretz.

Irene Burke Wins Title.

Possibly the closest race in the championship events was the Class E for girls which was won by Irene Burke of the Towers club. Miss Burke and her team mate, Patricia Heekin, swam on even terms until the last 20 yards when the new champion pulled ahead to win by the narrow margin of one stroke. As Miss Burke touched the finish barge, Miss Heekin gave her last stroke and then touched. In third place came Virginia McEvoy of Joliet, Ill.

Robert Amundson of the Lake Shore club came from behind to win the Class D [boys 17 and 18 years old] championship from his teammate, Gordon Morrison, in the final 10 yards. Morrison visibly weakened from his pace, but managed to save second position. Amundson's winning time was 1:01.2. Eldon Stegen of Peru, Ill., was third.

Fourth Title for Jaretz.

This was Amundson's third Chicagoland title. He won in Class A in 1934 and in Class C in 1938. Jaretz's victory yesterday was his fourth. His other titles were Class B, 1936; Class C, 1937, and Class D, 1939.

Riley Rogers of the South Side Boys' club won the Class A title. Joe Durkin of Peoria, Ill., now competing for the Bloomington, Ill., Country club, won in Class B. Durkin was the 1939 Class A victor. Betty Harrison, Class D, and Jane Cloyd, Class C, were the other Chicago Towers club champions. Two years ago Miss Cloyd was the Class B champion. She then lived in Indianapolis, Ind.

In yesterday's Class C final, Mary Ann Schulz of Bettendorf, Ia., was second and Francoise Rose, Bloomington, Ill., former champion in both Class A and B, was third. Lois Wenzel, Shawnee Country club, and Shirley Schweger, Wilmette, Ill., were crowned champions yesterday in Classes B and A, respectively.

Picks Seven Winners, Get $5,000 Prize

Herman A. Birkholz, 44 year old electrical engineer, who resides at 15729 South Paulina street, Harvey, yesterday was announced as the winner of the $5,000 Patrons' handicapping contest at Washington Park. Birkholz named the winners of the first seven races on Saturday's card.

Herman Berkholz.

Of the 48,182 sets of selections filed on Saturday, 126 named six winners.

In the eighth race, which is used only in the event of a tie, Birkholz saw his first choice, Getaway Jack, nosed out by the long shot, Her Reigh, which he had placed third, but that race did not enter into determination of the winner. Birkholz's seven straight stood unchallenged.

The Washington Park handicapping contest starts each Monday with a $1,000 prize for the person picking the first seven winners. In the event none succeeds, that day's total goes over to the following day, and so on thru Friday. On Saturday the rules change so that the person picking the greatest number of winners, not necessarily seven straight, is declared the winner. Every Saturday's prize is $5,000.

Quinn, Laevin Win Parks' Doubles Tennis Title

The team of Eugene Quinn and Benny Laevin of Waveland park defeated Charles Shostrom and Art Long of Hamilton park yesterday on the Waveland courts to win the Chicago public parks doubles tennis championship. The scores were 6-4, 4-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3. The victory qualified Quinn and Laevin to represent Chicago in the national public parks meet, which will be held in Cincinnati.

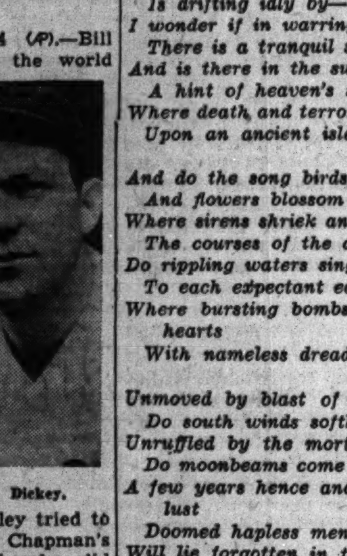
Dickey Hurt as Indians Win Over Yanks, 3-1

Cleveland, O., Aug. 4 (AP).—Bill Dickey, star catcher of the world champion New York Yankees, was severely spiked today as the Indians, behind Bob Feller's five hit pitching, defeated the Yankees, 3 to 1, and moved to within half a game of the Detroit Tigers, who lost to the Boston Red Sox in Detroit. It was Feller's 18th victory, achieved before 42,207 fans.



Bill Dickey.

Dickey was hurt in the fifth inning when Rollie Hemsley tried to score from third on Ben Chapman's fly to Tommy Henrich. Hemsley slid into Dickey with such force that Bill's left shoe was knocked off and the Yankee catcher suffered a three inch gash on the foot. Several stitches were required to close the wound and Dickey left tonight for New York for further treatment. He will be lost to the Yankees indefinitely.

Feller hit a new strikeout low for his major league career by fanning only one. The lone strikeout was Feller's mound opponent, Charley [Red] Ruffing. Score:

Summer Soliloquy.

Above my head a fleecy cloud
Is drifting idly by—
I wonder if in warring lands
There is a tranquil sky,
And is there in the sunset's glow
A hint of heaven's smile
Where death and terror rain like hail
Upon an ancient isle.

And do the song birds carol still
And flowers blossom fair,
Where sirens shriek and horror rides
The courses of the air.
Do rippling waters sing their song
To each expectant ear
Where bursting bombs fill helpless hearts
With nameless dread and fear.

Unmoved by blast of battle din
Do south winds softly blow,
Unruffled by the mortal strife
Do moonbeams come and go—
A few years hence and those whose lust
Doomed hapless men to die,
Will lie forgotten in the dust
While fleecy clouds drift by.

Sox Lose Two to Senators, 4 to 3 and 1 to 0

for a two bagger to left center, Travis scoring. Ferrell added to Lyons' discomfort by tripling to right center, Pofahl counting. Kennedy threw out Leonard to end the inning.

Except for a couple of errors, the Sox didn't have much of a chance against Leonard until the fourth when Kuhel singled to right for the first hit. One was out at the time, and with two out Appling also singled to send Kuhel to third. Travis threw out Rosenthal. The sixth fetched the Sox another opening, but they turned their backs after loading the bases. Kuhel singled with one out, and after two were disposed of, Appling and Rosenthal walked, whereupon Tresh poked a lazy liner to Myer.

Kennedy Starts Rally.

Kennedy's single to left started the Sox on the trail of their first run in the seventh. He went to second on Lyons' infield out and home on Webb's single to center. The inning was cut painfully short by Kreevich's double play bounder to Leonard. But in the next inning, with one out, Wright drove his fourth homer against the right field upper railing, tying the score. Appling then walked and stole second, but neither Rosenthal nor Tresh was able to lend a hand.

The futile Sox splurge in the tenth opened with Kreevich's two-bagger, a drive which eluded Walker. Kuhel singled to right to score Kreevich and send Leonard into retirement. Wright, a hero in the eighth, went to the opposite extreme by fanning and Appling grounded to Pofahl for a concluding double play.

SECOND GAME

Bloodworth laid down a bunt to open the second inning of the second game and the maneuver caught the Sox infield by surprise. West bounced to Kuhel, who pegged to Appling to force Bloodworth at second. Appling threw back to Kuhel, but the latter, tho receiving the ball in time, couldn't locate the bag so the double play was lost. And the loss was costly. Pofahl flied out, but Early tripled to right field scoreboard and West raced home with the only run of the game.

The Sox countered with singles by Appling and Turner with one out in their half of the second, but Kennedy fanned and Rigney flied to Case. In the sixth they had two on as the result of a pass and an error, but Appling flied to Lewis. They had another slim chance in the eighth. Webb led off with a pass and was bunted to second by Kreevich. Both Kuhel and Solters struck out. Appling tried to start something by coaxing a pass from Chase with one out in the ninth, but the whole thing ended with Turner's double play tap to Bloodworth.

Eddie Smith, the little round man who was plunked in the tummy by a batted ball during the recent series with the Athletics, has recovered, and will pitch for the White Sox today in the opener of a four game series with the Cleveland Indians. Mel Harder will work for the Indians.

Eric McNair has been given permission to go to his Meridian, Miss., home until next spring. His request to be placed on the voluntarily retired list was granted yesterday. He explained his inability to play ball this season was due to worry and that he figured relaxation might restore his former efficiency. He led the Sox in hitting last season with .324. McNair was taken from Boston Dec. 21, 1938, in a trade for Infielder Lou Berger. He was in 66 games this season, batting only .226.

Elmer Winegartner, an infielder recently called in from the Rayne, La., club, was optioned yesterday to Rogers Hornsby's Oklahoma City team, which, with McNair's departure, leaves the Sox with only one extra infielder, Jack Hayes, who has a cataract in his right eye.

The Sox have a busy week ahead. They are booked for a double header with the Indians tomorrow and two with the Tigers Saturday and Sunday. In addition there are daily single games, one of them Friday night with the Tigers.

Cubs to Spend Day on Train; Reds Are Next

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 4.—The Cubs left for Cincinnati shortly after midnight and are due to arrive there at dinner time tomorrow. Three single games will be played in Cincinnati. The Cubs cannot even the season series with the Reds, even if they sweep the three games. To date the Reds have won nine and the Cubs only five.

Either Larry French or Jake Mooty will pitch the opener Tuesday, according to Manager Gabby Hartnett's present thoughts.

The big Brooklyn crowd gave Joe Medwick the Bronx cheer today when his name was read in the lineup announcement. The boys here are calling Joe the Big Bust from Carteret, Carteret being the former Cardinal's New Jersey home near by.

Cubs Win, 11-3, Then Lose, 7-6, to Brooklyn with his tenth homer. Mancuso and Hudson singled, and when Reiser was sent up to bat for Grisson, French replaced Olsen. The next three batters were easy outs.

The Cubs had still more fun in the ninth at the expense of Luke Hamlin, despite three strikeouts. After Nicholson had struck out, Leiber knocked his fourth single and scored on Bonura's double to left. Todd's fourth straight hit was his fifth homer, scoring Bonura. Warstler executed his fourth strikeout of the game and French also fanned.

SECOND GAME

The Cubs scored on Hugh Casey before anybody was out in the second game and added three before the second putout was accomplished. Hack walked and tallied on Herman's double. Gleeson bounced to Casey and Herman was run down, Gleeson reaching second. Gleeson scored on Nicholson's single. Leiber then lined a homer into the left field stands, scoring Nicholson. Bonura and Todd singled to center, but Todd was out when he foolishly tried to take second on a cutoff throw toward third. Warstler flied to Walker.

Reiser singled with one out in the second inning. Wasdell popped to Hack, but Vosmik sent Reiser to third with a single off the right field wall. Herman couldn't quite get a grip on Hudson's mean bouncer toward right and it went for a single, Reiser scoring. Tamulis fouled to Hack.

Big Guns Roar.

With one out in the sixth, Reiser reached first on Warstler's error. Wasdell singled, then Vosmik singled, scoring Reiser. Hudson singled, Wasdell scoring and Vosmik reaching third. Franks batted for Tamulis and bounced to Passeau. Vosmik was run down between third and home, Hudson reaching third and Franks second. Reese singled to center, scoring Hudson and Franks. Reese stole second and went on to third when Todd threw the ball into center field.

Cubs Get Lucky.

Walker apparently had a score tying hit speeding for center when the ball hit second base and caromed 15 feet almost at a right angle into Herman's hands. Herman tossed to Bonura for the putout, while the Dodgers almost went crazy.

Reese then knocked his second ninth inning homer in two days, to tie the score. Curt Davis became the fourth Dodger pitcher at the start of the tenth and he struck out with the bases full for the third out in the Dodger half. Then came Camilli's game winning homer.

BARBARA BOXES JIM BIVINS ON MARIGOLD CARD

Perils Golden Glover's Winning Streak.

Jimmy Bivins, who has climbed from the amateur ranks to within striking distance of a place among the leading professional middleweights in a few months, will seek to prolong his undefeated record in a 10 round bout against Johnny Barbara in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, tonight.

After being eliminated by Vernell Williams in the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions semi-finals last year, the rangy Bivins turned pro and scored the first of a string of victories which has reached 13 straight.

Bivins Wins, But—

Barbara will enter the ring with two victories over Fritzie Zivic to his credit. These triumphs followed on the heels of Johnny's impressive conquest of Joe Sutka on Jan. 8.

Bivins lost some backers after scoring unimpressive decisions over Frankie Hughes June 24 and Paul Frazier July 15. Prior to these accomplishments Jimmy, who is 21 years old, knocked out Enzo Ianozzi, Frazier [in their first meeting], Johnny Dean, and Young Tiger Flowers. He also has beaten Nate Bolden.

Weight tonight is 160 pounds, eight more than Barbara carried in his last appearance.

Brown Meets Henry.

Harold Brown, west side middleweight, who beat Johnny O'Hara recently in his first encounter in two years, will meet Patrick Henry in his second comeback appearance. The match is set for five rounds. Other contests:

Settino Terracina vs. Al Tibiets [5], 168.
Ramey McKnight vs. Bobby Ryan [4], 145.
Booker Beckwith vs. Fred Washington [4], heavyweights.

Fritz Von Schacht and Fred Grubmier will meet in the one hour windup match on the wrestling program this evening in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. Jack [Bad Boy] Brown will encounter Bert Rubi in a secondary feature. . . . Another mat card tonight will be held in Parichy stadium, Harrison street and Harlem avenue, featured by Ralph [Ruffy] Silverstein, heavyweight protége of Ed White, and Al Williams. . . . Tickets will go on sale today for a 10 round nontitle fight between Tony Zale, middleweight champion, and Billy Soose of Scranton, Pa., in Mills stadium Aug. 21.

FARMERS CHAFE UNDER AAA CROP QUOTA METHODS

Acreage Fixing System Is Called Unfair.

[Following is the second article in a series by a Tribune reporter who traveled thru seven farm states and parts of the south to gauge accomplishments of the Agricultural Adjustment administration. Today's article discusses AAA methods in fixing acreage allotments.]

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

In April, Farmer John Doe of Iowa learns the AAA has decreed he shall grow 5.3 acres less corn this year than last. He wonders how the AAA arrived at this figure. Did it use sound methods? Were the methods fair to him?

To answer these questions it is well to begin at the top and follow the federal farm program's allotment system down thru the national, state, county, and township organizations to the individual farm.

Wallace Exercises Control.

The wheels start turning on a day late in winter in the offices of the AAA in Washington, D. C. Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, now Democratic nominee for Vice President, is determining the acreage allotment for the nation as a whole on the basic commodities. These include wheat, corn, tobacco, rice, and others. The cotton allotment will be in bales.

Under the Agricultural Adjustment act of 1938, soil conservation is the device by which Wallace seeks to control production. The object of production control is reduction of supply on the theory that this will force up prices artificially.

To determine the nation's corn acreage, for example, Wallace first estimates, on the basis of past years, the number of bushels the country will need in the present year. Then he fixes the number of acres he believes will be necessary to produce these bushels.

How He Fixes Quotas.

The secretary does this by figuring the average yield for the last 10 years in the commercial corn belt, roughly the central west. He "adjusts" this for abnormal weather and yield trends in those years. Next, he estimates the coming yield in the unrestricted corn area, chiefly the south.

These two then are readjusted until their total is equal to the "reserve supply level." This figure is reached by adding 10 per cent to a normal year's domestic consumption and exports. The secretary also has the power to determine what constitutes a normal year.

When the national quotas have been established they are parceled out to the states on the basis of the states' las. crop performances. State committees, composed of five men, including a chairman, go into action. They parcel the acreage out to the counties.

A Little Guesswork.

The county's allotment is based upon the acreage it has seeded in a given commodity in the previous 10 years. This can't be known exactly. It must be averaged and guessed at. This figure is adjusted for yield trend and weather. The result is balanced against the amount of soil depleting and soil building crops alloted the county out of its total tillable acreage—the quota being based upon its crop history and soil types.

It is then the county committee's turn to act, but first it would be well to know something about it and its subdivisions. The building of this structure starts in the townships. The farmers in each of these meet and elect a committee of three. One of the three is sent to a convention which elects a county committee of three.

These men are the AAA's executives. The township committeemen are its field workers. They judge the individual farms for a share of the county allotment.

Tells Types Shown on Maps.

The tillable acreage, type of soil, topography, and crop rotation practices are considered. The first is simply that part of the farm available to crops. And there is little chance of going wrong on types of soil, since these are shown plainly on colored maps prepared by experts of the state university farm extension service.

But from there on, many farmers think, there is cause for complaint. Topography, which has a bearing on the amount of cash crops a farmer is allowed to grow, means the shape or slope of the land. Fields are classified as level, undulating, rolling, hilly, or steep. The steeper the field, the lower is its rating.

Township committeemen walk onto farms not with scientifically corrected slope finders, but with gadgets. The gadget is a board upon which has been sketched a segment of a circle containing 120 degrees. There is space for two "sighting pins" and a third pin, from which a weight—usually a pocket knife—is hung by a string as a plumb.

The operator stands at one end of the field and sights across the pins "at something he THINKS is the height of his eyes," tilting the board, if necessary, to draw a bead. Then he reads the degree of slope where the string crosses the curve.

How the Gadget Performs.

If the object chosen for sighting is higher or lower than the operator's eyes, the gadget will indicate slope where there is none. A Tribune reporter, whose eyes are six feet from the ground, stood on a level highway and sighted at an object four feet high. He got a reading of "rolling."

The township committeeman also judges fields for erosion and, since he is a farmer and is supposed to know, his judgment generally is accepted. Sometimes the farm operator appeals, but the records show that usually he doesn't. [More about this will be told in a later article.]

A farm's average yield of the last ten years is taken into consideration. Farmers who had been rotating their crops for years before the AAA came say this works an injustice upon them. For example, the history of such a farmer's land will show a comparatively small acreage in soil depleting c.ops.

Share in Quota Is Cut.

And the township committeeman, alloting acreage on the basis of past performance, will give such a farmer a correspondingly small share in the county's quota.

After collecting their data the township field workers gather in the local AAA office and parcel out the acreage. The farmers are represented, in theory, by the men who are deciding what they shall have and what they shall not have. There are no hearings.

County committees seldom appeal the allotments handed them by the state. State committees seldom appeal those handed down by Secretary Wallace. It is in the final division, among the individual farmers, that the rub generally comes.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Brain Child

Kankakee, Ill., Aug. 4 [Special].—Miss Shirley Bloch, 18 years old, of 819 South 14th street, Maywood, Ill., died in St. Mary hospital here today of injuries received last night. She was injured when her car overturned on a curve on highway 45 two miles south of Kankakee. Coroner A. E. Kerger has continued the inquest.

The two women who were in the car also are in the hospital, but their injuries were said not to be serious. They are Mrs. Sophia McCall, 59, grandmother of Miss Bloch, also of Maywood, and Miss Elaine Semmel, 17, of Cairo.

The party was en route from Cairo, where Miss Bloch and Mrs. McCall had been visiting, when Miss Bloch commented that her father once overturned on the curve which they were approaching. Shortly afterward her car upset.

CAPTURED BANDIT TO BE ARRAIGNED IN CICERO TODAY

Joseph Kostek, who was seized during a gun battle with police Friday after he and three accomplices had committed a robbery in Cicero, will be arraigned on a charge of robbery today before Justice of the Peace H. J. Sandusky in Cicero. His confederates, who escaped during the battle, are being sought.

Lieut. Kyran Phelan of the detective bureau yesterday arrested Michael Marcelli, 33, an ex-convict, in connection with the robbery investigation. Marcelli, who had been sought for passing bogus checks, denied participating in the Hurley robbery. He has a long police record.

O, THE FIREMAN SAID, AS SMOKE CLEARED AWAY

Detective Sergeant Eugene Ruland was driving down Davis street in Evanston last night, away from a fire which did heavy damage to an auto agency at 1019 Davis street. Suddenly he saw smoke eddying under the door of the Randolph Fruit market at 906 Davis street.

Ruland sent the alarm to Harry Witt, police radio operator, who notified firemen. In no time at all engines were on the scene, hoses were ready, and a fireman had his ax raised to smash the plate glass window of the store.

Then an employé happened to pass by and called to the fireman to halt. He did.

"That's just the fumes from our automatic bug sprayer," the clerk said.

"O," said the fireman.

KILLS HIMSELF, TWO SONS AFTER ROW WITH WIFE

Three Bodies Found in Gas Filled Car.

Racine, Wis., Aug. 4 [Special].—A Racine father killed himself and his two young sons with carbon monoxide to day following a dispute with his wife. The victims were Ben Grant, 29 years old, a mechanic; Danny, 4½, and Dickey, 3.

Grant left home this morning, taking the children with him. A few hours later the three bodies were discovered in his car, which was parked beside the Racine Supply company building, where Grant worked. The motor was running and a hose carried the monoxide fumes inside the car thru a ventilator. The doors were locked from the inside.

Note Found in Car.

Attached to the windshield wiper was a note, which read: "Dear Martha: I love you and always will. I am taking our children with me where you can never hurt them. Have a good time." The note was signed "Ben, Danny, and Dickey."

Police pieced together the details of the Grants' marital rift. Detective Rudolph Bergensen said the couple visited some taverns last night, and that at 3 a. m. Grant wanted to go home, but Mrs. Grant, who is 25, refused. Police said that Grant then went home alone, and that Mrs. Grant walked around until about 5 a. m. When she went home he and the children were gone, but, she told police, she surmised he had taken the boys to his mother's home.

Widow Informed by Coroner.

It was several hours later that Coroner E. B. Yanny informed her of the tragedy. Tonight she was in a state of collapse.

Frank Wood, who worked with Grant, discovered the three bodies in the car when he went to work today. The fire department rescue squad worked over the victims for 45 minutes.

BATHING BEACHES SHOW 2 MILLION ATTENDANCE GAIN

The number of bathers using the Chicago Park district's 12 beaches during the first 28 days of the season, July 1 thru 28, showed an increase of 2,131,696 over the comparable period of 1939, Sam Pecoraro, supervisor of golf and beaches, announced yesterday. The total was 10,997,310.

The large increase was attributed primarily to the unofficial opening July 1 of the new North avenue beach, which can accommodate 75,000 bathers. Attendance at this beach and the adjoining Fullerton beach during the 28 day period totaled 1,984,025, and was exceeded only by the attendance of 2,088,130 at the Montrose-Wilson beach.

No fatalities occurred during the period—in keeping with last year's record of no fatalities during the entire official season. However, 5,385 minor first aid cases were reported.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by HOMER WEISZ

Corn Ruined by Heat.

Aug. 4, 1940.

MORE hay than is needed, a fine crop of small grains, and a corn crop that looks like a failure—that is the manager's brief summary of the present crop outlook for the Du Page county farm.

Drouth during the last month has dried up the pastures and virtually ruined the corn. Workers doubt that the corn would make half a normal yield, even if adequate rains should come soon. There were rains in various communities not far from the farm last week, but only a few light showers have fallen there since the first week in July.

The abundant crops of hay and small grains developed while there still was plenty of moisture in the late spring and early summer.

Hay Harvest Goes On.

Hay harvest has been almost a continuous job since harvesters started filling silos with the first cutting of alfalfa on June 12. By the time all the alfalfa and red clover had been cut the timothy was ready for harvest. As soon as the timothy was out of the way the alfalfa was ready to cut the second time.

The second cutting of alfalfa is making only about half as much per acre as the first cutting, but the hay is of fine quality and the yield is considered good for the second crop. The hay is being baled in the field. About 25 acres of alfalfa have been cut the second time, leaving 30 acres yet to harvest.

Another silo is to be filled with alfalfa. Two were filled in June with first cutting alfalfa and red clover. The manager says the hay to be put in the silo this week may need some water added as it goes thru the hay chopper in order for the silage to settle properly and not leave air pockets along the silo walls.

Surplus May Be Stored.

All available storage space on the farm should be filled with hay when harvest is over. Much of the hay had to be baled to make room for it. There are not enough animals on the farm to eat all the hay before the next crop is due, and the manager says the surplus may be stored for future use.

Hay likely will be less plentiful next year if the drouth continues much longer. The men are afraid the alfalfa meadows may be damaged so much that the stands will be winter killed.

The drouth already has damaged young clover and alfalfa that was seeded in oats and wheat last spring. Some of the plants have been killed and more are likely to wither when the oats are cut unless they get moisture. There were good stands of both clover and alfalfa and the plants were growing fine until about two weeks ago. Now they are drying up.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

COCA-COLA SETS NEW QUARTERLY EARNINGS PEAK

Common Share Net Equals $2.15.

June quarter earnings of the Coca-Cola company reached $12,210,503, the largest quarterly figure in the history of the big soft drink company, an interim report showed yesterday. The balance of earnings applicable to common stock, after class A dividends and other charges, was $8,584,503, or $2.15 a share, compared with $8,254,421 and $2.07 a share in the corresponding period last year.

Earnings for the first half of 1940 were $19,843,170, compared with $17,295,085 in the 1939 period. Reserves for taxes in the half year were $4,813,000, an increase of 44 per cent over the $3,322,900 provided in the 1939 period. The balance for the common stock was $14,130,170, or $3.54 a share, against $13,072,185 and $3.27 a share in the first half of 1939.

Air Line System Has Loss.

Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., announced operations for the first six months of 1940 resulted in a loss of $390,680, compared with a loss of $355,868 in the corresponding period last year. The report stated that altho the line has carried mail between Chicago and Pittsburgh, New York and Kansas City since last December, no mail revenue has been received because the civil aeronautics board has not yet set a rate of compensation.

Passenger revenues rose 54 per cent, from $2,047,814 in the 1939 period to $3,149,122 this year.

Pillsbury Flour Mills company, second largest company in the flour milling industry, announced net earnings for the fiscal year ended May 31 amounted to $900,913, equal to $1.64 a share, against $1,692,318 and $3.08 a share in the preceding fiscal year.

Small Loan Profits Rise.

American Investment Company of Illinois, which does a small loan business and has headquarters at St. Louis, Mo., announced profits in the six months ended June 30 were $847,051, equal to $1.98 a share. In the first half of last year net income was $614,443, or $1.52 a share.

McElwain factories. Net income in the first half of last year, adjusted to take account of the McElwain acquisition, was $1,477,217, or $1.34 a share.

TREASURY'S TAX YIELD MAY SET PEAK SINCE 1918

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Corporation profits for the first half of 1940 have shown a sharp upswing, indicating revised federal levies on business earnings may yield the treasury the richest harvest since 1918 and 1919.

Four hundred leading industrial corporations reported combined net profit of $648,928,000, compared with $409,123,000 in the first half of 1939, a gain of 58 per cent, according to a tabulation by the National City Bank of New York.

The treasury, Washington reported, is aiming at a yield of about $2,185,000,000 from 1940 corporate profits, including about $700,000,000 from the yet-to-be-enacted excess earnings levy, compared with $1,130,000,000 for 1939 and $1,233,000,000 for 1937.

For 1918 world war tax schedules and excess profits levies brought the treasury more than $2,500,000,000, not counting $653,000,000 from ordinary federal income taxes.

EXPORT OUTLOOK FOR AGRICULTURE TERMED DARKER

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4 (AP).—The department of agriculture described the outlook for export of American farm products "highly unsatisfactory" today and expressed belief there would be no improvement until after the end of the war.

Continental European markets which furnished an outlet in recent years for approximately a third of United States farm exports, are now closed.

The dark export outlook, the report said, is being partially offset by improvement in domestic demands.

Seek Recovery of Plant Costs at End of War

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5 (AP).—The National Association of Manufacturers proposed today that congress amend the tax laws to permit companies manufacturing defense materials to recover the cost of special plants and equipment which might be "entirely worthless" at the end of the emergency.

H. W. Prentis Jr.

The association, of which H. W. Prentis Jr. is president, said in a statement to the house ways and means committee that its proposal would remove a "serious bottleneck now holding back progress of the national defense program."

Claim Dual Advantage.

"There is a dual advantage in reassuring manufacturers now that this special loss in defense facilities will be recognized for tax purposes," the statement said. "It will stimulate the rapid production of equipment required for a highly mechanized army, navy and marine corps. A sound amortization provision will stimulate business activity, put idle men to work, and produce badly needed tax revenues."

The association said it did not oppose enactment of an excess profits tax to help meet the cost of the defense program, but did not favor such a levy as a permanent part of the tax structure.

Object to Profiteering.

"Since the beginning of the national emergency," the statement said, "business men have made clear their objections to 'profiteering.' A new excess profits tax unless carefully drawn with due consideration for all factors involved, might not necessarily prevent 'profiteering' and could seriously interfere with production for national defense."

EXPECT NEUTRAL TRADE TO SHRINK THRU BLOCKADE

Chicago manufacturers of motor trucks, machinery, canned food products, and other materials which have been shipped to neutral countries in increasing quantities since the outbreak of the war yesterday anticipated a decline in shipments to more normal levels in view of the extension of the British blockade.

The tightening of the blockade is designed to strangle shipments to belligerents thru neutral countries.

At the same time, however, manufacturers and exporters expect that the use of navicerts will do much to speed the shipment of British approved cargoes and lessen the current complications of international trade.

All ships are subject to search and seizure unless their entire cargoes are listed in the navicert, which evidences British inspection and approval before the ships left port.

Thus vessels carrying navicerts will be able to clear the blockade and proceed to their destinations after a relatively short wait, instead of being forced to lie over in a British port until authorities inspect cargoes and decide to issue or deny clearance papers.

CHICAGO GROUP OPENS CITIZENS' DRIVE TO POLLS

Launching a nation-wide campaign to encourage all citizens to vote in the forthcoming election, the American Enterprise association, Chicago, yesterday declared that if present federal policies are allowed to continue, "we will drift into totalitarianism thru public default."

The association, a division of the Transportation Association of America, is conducting the campaign with the aid of chambers of commerce, trade groups, farm organizations, and women's clubs.

Donald D. Conn, executive vice president of the Enterprise association, in a statement urging all to vote, attacked government spending which he said totals 500 million dollars a month.

Chemical Exports Gain 55 Pct. in Six Months

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4 (AP).—Chemical exports in the first six months of 1940 were valued at $128,361,000, an increase of 55 per cent over the similar period of 1939, the department of commerce announced today. While some of the warring nations purchased larger quantities of American chemicals, most of the gain was the result of increased demand from other areas, the department said.

War Adds $100 to Your Share of Public Debt

The European war, reaching across the Atlantic to alter the economic structure of the United States, has boosted each citizen's share of the national debt nearly $100 since the 1936-1937 fiscal year. This was shown yesterday in an analysis of governmental expenditures made public by the Federation of Tax Administrators, Chicago, an organization whose members are public tax administrators and officials.

The per capita debt in the 1936-1937 fiscal year, chosen as a "relatively normal" year because it preceded the inauguration of vast defense preparations in Europe, amounted to $263. Now, in the 1940-1941 fiscal year, it amounts to $361 on the basis of budget estimates plus supplementary tax and expenditure measures and proposals.

Takes Jump from $40 to $50.

Per capita taxes jumped from $40 in the "normal" year to $50 this year, and government expenditures increased from $66 to $104 per capita. The survey attributed the increases primarily to the national defense program.

In Canada taxes have increased from $35 to $61 per capita, government expenditures from $48 to $117, and the debt from $316 to $387.

Great Britain's taxes per capita were $81 in the 1936-1937 fiscal year, but this year they have climbed to $135. The government debt has jumped from $703 to $1,025 for each person—more than twice as large as the per capita debt of either the United States or Canada.

Great Britain's per capita government expenditures—$93 in the "normal" year—will amount to $354 this year. The normal per capita national income is $514.

Disparity Is Explained.

The apparent disparity between the figures for Great Britain and the United States and Canada is not as pronounced as it might appear, the survey stated, because the British national government carries on a larger proportion of the total governmental activities than do the national governments of this country and Canada.

The survey estimated that 47 per cent of the German national income was absorbed by taxes, primarily for war preparations, in the 1938-1939 fiscal year. In August, 1939, Germany's debt was placed at $252 per capita, and taxes at $121.

Kapp Jr. of Springfield said yesterday. The bonds have been called for payment on Sept. 1.

Profiteering Unlikely, Says Steelmaker

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, said today he believed American industry would refrain from rearmament profiteering, declaring: "No true patriot will seek to enhance his position at the cost of national need and national welfare."

Eugene G. Grace.

In an announcement to corporation employés, Grace wrote:

"We must do our part in supplying the materials needed for the defense program in addition to those required for the normal economic life of the nation.

Stresses Avoiding Boom.

"The thing to be avoided is a boom condition such as has occurred at various times in our national history. There are certain mistakes of the past which need not be repeated.

"Industry today is more farsighted than ever. There is no expectation of a period of unusual profits. The heavy tax burdens in themselves will prevent that. Moreover, it is recognized that a sound national economy requires that prices be kept at reasonable levels. Particularly is this true with respect to national defense materials. The defense dollar should be made to stretch as far as possible.

Advocates Self-Control.

"The economic system should be kept in balance by self-government and self-control.

"The ability of industry to perform this rôle has been notably demonstrated in the last decade. In the business activity of 1937 there was no tendency to profiteer. There was no skyrocketing of steel prices.

"I believe we shall continue to operate on the same principles, with costs, prices, and earnings on a reasonably stabilized basis."

In planning for its labor needs, Grace said, the company has made a survey of present and probable requirements, and no shortage was found to exist in the ranks of skilled, semiskilled or common labor.

RAIN IMPROVES CORN PROSPECTS IN SOME AREAS

Altho this year's corn crop may be the smallest since 1936 at about 2,322,000,000 bushels, according to Chicago statisticians' estimates based on Aug. 1 conditions, the crop outlook has improved in some sections.

Since Aug. 1 heavy rains have fallen in Iowa, Minnesota, and parts of North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, and Wisconsin, aiding prospects in those areas. However, grain men observed yesterday that dry and hot weather continued in Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, and Oklahoma, and said deterioration in the crop had resulted.

Corn prices turned downward late last week and wheat also lost early gains. The week's range of prices on the Chicago Board of Trade follows:

STEEL PROFITS HIGHEST SINCE 2D '37 QUARTER

19 Producers' Net Tops 46 Millions.

Earnings of 19 leading steel producers which make 87 per cent of the nation's steel totaled $46,793,114 in the three months ended June 30, the best second quarter the companies have had since 1937, the magazine Steel reported yesterday. The publication, in its weekly review of the industry, said buying of the heavier steel products is gaining.

The summary of earnings said the 19 companies' combined profit was more than four times their total for the second 1939 quarter. Their net income in the 1937 second quarter was $71,500,000.

Half Year Net Quadrupled.

Profits of the same producers for the first half of this year were $91,225,128, more than four times the $22,340,862 earned in the first six months of 1939, Steel said.

Using the figures for the 19 companies as a basis for estimating profits for the entire industry, Steel said net income of all producers probably was $104,970,000, equal to $3.66 a ton on ingots produced in the six months. In the corresponding 1939 period aggregate profits equaled $1.26 a ton. The magazine estimated the industry will earn a little more than 5 per cent on total capitalization for all of 1940. That would be the second highest return [before interest and dividend requirements] since 1929. In 1937 the return was 6.07 per cent.

Backlogs Still Increasing.

Discussing the week's developments, Steel said:

"Heavier steel products, bars, plates, shapes, and semifinished, are being bought more freely, the low point apparently being passed. In spite of almost peak production, mill backlogs are increasing.

"Mills are pushing production close to practical capacity, the rate advancing 1 point last week to 90½ per cent, the highest since mid-December."

Steel's composite scrap price rose 12 cents to $18.29.

The magazine said July pig iron production totaled 4,058,488 net tons, 6.4 per cent more than in June.
